Such a Proposal Shows U. S. Charges Not Worth a Hoot, Vishinsky Declares

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Andrei Vishinsky of Russia today followed up the new Communist manifesto of yesterday by rejecting any compromise on the border warfare in north Greece.

He denounced as a "horse trade" last Saturday's offer by the United States to drop its indictment of Greece's Communist neighbors if they approved the creation of an Assembly commission to watch the border.

Such a proposal, Vishinsky told the Assembly's political committee, showed that the United States did not believe the truth of its own accusation. The American charges, embodied in a resolution now before the Assembly's committee, are that Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Greece have been guilty of helping the Greek guerillas.

Cites Earlier Charges

"Have we forgotten," Vishinsky asked, "how the United States beat all the drums for months, and how all the birds screeched from all the New York rooftops for months, about the wicked sins of Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania?"

This was a reference to the long debates in the Security Council on the same subject.

"By agreeing to waive these charges now, the United States demonstrates that all its accusations were not worth a hoot," he went on.

"It's about time to remember that we are no longer in the nursery here. It's about time to quit playing cat and mouse on this Greek issue. It's about time to stop making deals.

"There are certain moral values, like truth and honor, that cannot be left at the mercy of certain countries that fish in troubled waters to serve their own ends.

Leave It to Greeks

"The Soviet delegation is convinced that the only right and just method of solving this problem is immediately to withdraw foreign troops as well as all kinds of military and civil instructors and so-called experts, and give the Greek people an opportunity to settle their own problems themselves."

The Greek people should have a chance to act, he said, on a basis of "democratic principles" and "good-neighborly" relations with the other Balkan nations.

Vishinsky's speech left many of the non-Soviet delegations determined to vote for an indictment of Greece's northern neighbors as well as for the creation of an Assembly commission on the spot.

Canada's spokesman, Minister of Justice James L. Ilsley, told the committee afterward that Vishinsky had left no alternative but to find the northern neighbors guilty.

And the Netherlands delegate,

Pakistan State Is Surrounded By Indian Forces

New Delhi, India, Oct. 6 (U.P.)—Strong Indian army, navy and air force units landed on Kathiawar Peninsula in a surprise move yesterday and surrounded the small princely state of Junagadh which has joined Jakistan under its Moslem ruled, the government announced today.

Indian forces made an amphibious landing at Porbandar, midway between Bombay and Karachi. They were ordered to cut off Junagadh's sea lanes to Pakistan but not to penetrate Junagadh territory or intimidate any Moslem populations in neighboring states.

India's move climaxed weeks of wrangling with Pakistan over Junagadh's right to join Pakistan. The state has an approximate 80 per cent Hindu population although it is ruled by a Moslem, Nawab Sir Mahabat Khanrasul Khanji.

Austria Seen as Target

Communist International Believed Brewing New Rows

London, Oct. 6 (AP).—Diplomatic sources said today creation of a new international Communist organization was the signal for openly intensified political and possibly economic warfare between the Soviet Union and the Western powers.

Reports from European capitals indicated such a conflict was already brewing in the wake of yesterday's announcement that Communists in nine countries had banded together to fight "American imperialism."

Diplomatic informants saw the move as Russia's counter-strategy to the Marshall Plan for European reconstruction through mutual cooperation.

In Vienna, diplomatic sources said the Austrian government, convinced there is no possibility of agreement between the Allies on the Austrian treaty, had launched an all-out attack against Communist propaganda and tactics.

"We cannot allow Austria to become another Hungary, a high Austrian official was quoted as saying. "We must not let the Communists secure a dictatorship of the minority. Therefore we must expose their aims and their methods at every possible opportunity."

An informant said Austria based its hopes for salvation on the Marshall Plan, and declared the government would not dare to attempt an offensive against the Communist without at least the moral support of the Western powers, notably the United States. The Russians, through their occupation forces, control Austria's bread basket and most important industrial regions.

In Berlin, Western military government officials predicted the Communists would launch strikes and demonstrations in the Ruhr to be timed with the scheduled dismantlings of German factories for reparations.

Officials said such an attack would have the purpose of undermining British-American efforts to put western Germany on its feet so that a German collapse might jeopardize the success of the Marshall Plan.

The coal mines are a key factor in European recovery. In some mines more than 40 per cent of the workers are Communists.

The British Foreign Office said the new Communist organization would be given "close attention and study."

There was no indication from either British or American sources as to whether the document would

Jacksonville Beaches Hit By New Storm

'Unprecedented' Tides Threaten to Wash Homes Into Ocean

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 6 (U.P.)—An unexpected tropical storm with winds up to 80 miles an hour began lashing the Atlantic seaboard today, and brought "unprecedented" tides to the beaches east of Jacksonville, where high seas last week took a one-million-dollar damage toll.

Northeast storm warnings were hauled up from Mayport, Fla., to Cape Hatteras.

Huge waves were piling onto Jacksonville, Neptune and Atlantic beaches threatened to wash homes into the ocean and slosh into business districts.

Police Chief Jarboe of Neptune Beach appealed by radio for "every able-bodied citizen to come immediately with at least five sandbags—more if possible" to bulwark the dunes protecting the town. The Navy and Coast Guard sent 300 men to man the beaches, already deeply gullied by the September 28 storm and subsequent tides.

Purple Gang Linked To $500,000 Raid

Cleveland, Oct. 6 (U.P.)—Police today said they had received information possibly linking the $500,000 Mounds Club robbery last week with the notorious Purple Gange of the Detroit-Toledo area.

A former member of the gang, police said, reported he had been invited to take part in the raid.

Clay, Smith Flying Here For Parley

Expected to Confer On November Meeting Of Foreign Ministers

Berlin, Oct. 6 (U.P.)—Gen. Lucius D. Clay and United States Ambassador to Moscow Walter Bedell Smith left Berlin by plane today for Washington to confer with high Government officials in what was believed to be preparation for the November foreign ministers meeting in London.

Gen. Clay

Robert D. Murphy, special State Department representative in Berlin, also was aboard.

There was strong feeling in Berlin that the November conference would fail to accomplish anything definite toward unification of Germany.

Germans in the Russian zone told of reports the conference will be followed by a Russian call for a plebiscite in the east to make the Soviet zone of Germany a separate nation, ruled from Moscow.

In Washington, Clay said he would discuss financial matters with the War Department, because additional appropriations will be needed to keep military government operating through the fiscal year.

While Police Check Parking

Victim Saves $3000 in Holdup; $1500 Taken by Two Bandits

(Picture on Page 4)

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

A 38-year-old unarmed office manager of slight stature and light weight saved his firm $3000 in cash yesterday, although he was forced to give up more than $1500 in a daring sidewalk holdup.

The Ninth Precinct, in which the holdup took place, had only two foot policemen on duty in the precinct at the time of the holdup, precinct officials revealed. These two were assigned to the overtime parking detail.

The man, John J. Tucker, a former serviceman, was carrying a paper bag containing $1500 in bills, $27 in coins and $5470 in checks to the northeast branch of the Hamilton National Bank at 8th and H sts. ne. for deposit. He had and additional $3000 cash, also intended for deposit, in his pants pocket.

As he was about to enter the 8th st. side entrance of the bank about 11:20 a. m., a man stepped from between two parked cars and poked a gun into his side, ordering, "Give me that bag," he told police.

Tucker, employed by the Morris Bressler & Co. wholesale poultry, butter and egg firm, admitted he "was scared," but nevertheless heaved the bag into the front yard of the residence at 805 8th st. ne.

A second man darted past him, snatching up the bag, and raced into an alley behind the H st. stores heading toward 9th st. ne., Tucker told police. Tucker immediately took after the fleeing man. The gunman hailed a passing cab, Tucker said.

The man with the money-laden sack eluded him. Police summoned to the crowded business section cruised the area for several hours with Tucker attempting to spot the holdup pair. Two men were held for questioning, but

71,548 See Yanks Win World Series

Page Hero in 5-2 Victory Over Bums; Brown Connects With Pinch Double

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Yankee Stadium, New York, Oct. 6.—The new baseball champions of the universe are the New York Yankees, ushered into that role today, past the fighting, clawing Brooklyn Dodgers by Joseph Francis Page, tall, left-handed citizen of Cherry Valley, Pa.

They beat the Dodgers, 5 to 2, in the seventh and decisive contest of this World Series before 71,548 who sat in on baseball's first two-million-dollar series and saw Page seal the Dodgers' doom with one-hit relief pitching in the last five innings.

Page and Bobby Brown—they were the guys who swung the victory to the Yankees and declawed the Dodgers who were bouncing along with a 2-1 lead today and threatening to slap the Yankees down in a World Series upset.

Brown's Hit Was the Payoff

Brown, the Seattle kid, who couldn't make a regular job in the Yankee infield, came off the bench as a pinchhitter in the fourth inning and struck the big blow of the ball game—and a World Series record fell.

It was Brown batting for Yankee Pitcher Bill Bevens in that fourth with the Dodgers in front, 2-1, and making his third consecutive pinchhit in a World Series. What he hit was a double off Brooklyn Starter Hal Gregg, a flaming drive into left field that scored the tying run and put the winning run in position to score on Tommy Henrich's single to right that followed.

Then it was that Page took charge to deflate the Dodgers for the rest of the ball game and pitch distress at all Brooklyn. Manager Bucky Harris wheeled him into the contest as the Yanks' third pitcher after the Dodgers slugged Frank Shea out of the box and were making menacing gestures at Bill Bevens.

Page Invincible

The 6-foot 3-inch Page, who had shattered a major league record by pitching in 56 games during the Yankees' pennant drive, held the Yankee's lead safe with an artistic five-inning job. For the next four innings, the Dodgers not only couldn't get a hit off Page, they didn't even get to first base in any manner.

He did give up one hit to the Dodgers in the ninth when Eddie Miksis singled with one out to fan the last-ditch hopes of Brooklyn, but at that point Little Phil Rizzuto took a hand for the Yankees.

Rizzuto, who made three of the Yankees' hits today, drove in their first run, and figured in two more, plus stealing a base, poleaxed the Dodgers on the final

Throw Out Red Leaders, Unions Told

Labor Is Defended By Schwellenbach; Row Over Lewis May Divide AFL

San Francisco, Oct. 6 (INS).—Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach strongly defended organized labor today but urged that union leaders under domination of "a foreign power" be thrown out bodily.

Schwellenbach told the sixty-sixth American Federation of Labor Convention that union leadership should carry on "in the same spirit as in the days of Gompers (the late President Samuel Gompers of the AFL.)

But he cited two types of leaders who have brought discredit to unions—the complacent, satisfied type who should be retired and those who "carry out the directions which are given them by some foreign power."

Should Be Turned Out

The latter group, he recommended, should be "picked up by the seat of the pants and the nape of the neck and thrown out bodily."

Other highlights of the opening day of the convention included:

1. A bitter fight that may split the federation was reliably reported swirling around the head of John L. Lewis over his refusal to sign a non-Communist affidavit.

2. President William Green bitterly assailed the Taft-Hartley Act, called for its repeal and for the defeat of all members of Congress who supported it. Green also denounced communism.

Secretary Schwellenbach listed the high cost of living as the principal issue before the country today. He called upon the AFL to support President Truman's program for saving food to feed Europe.

Doesn't Blame Labor

The Labor Secretary said there was "a relationship" between wage increases and price increases but asserted the wage earners were not "exclusively responsible" for high prices.

He contrasted a 45 per cent drop in the savings of wage earners of between 1945 and 1946 with an increase to 857 million dollars in corporation profits in the first quarter of 1947 as compared with the same period in 1946.

Schwellenbach ridiculed Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) for saying tha ttax reduction as proposed by the GOP majority in Congress and vetoed by President Truman would enable people to meet high prices. He contended the vast majority of Americans would have

Operation Televised

Pain Held Last Consideration In Correct Ailment Diagnosis

Surgical Operation Shown on Television 1st Time in History

Doctors Advised Complaints Not Always Reliable

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

The first public television broadcast of a surgical operation was presented here yesterday as a special feature of the eighteenth annual scientific assembly of the District Medical Society.

It was performed in a Georgetown University Hospital operating room with a minimum of pain, discomfort and danger of infection to the anonymous patient. It was presented to the public by Dumont television studios with a minimum of unpleasantness to the viewers.

Today, the same television system proposes to telecast another operation, this one from Doctors' Hospital. The patient is a woman; the operation scheduled is a unilateral mastectomy, or surgical removal of one breast.

Television sponsors said today's program will be presented, like yesterday's appendectomy, "with delicacy."

Yesterday's televised operation was performed on a 23-year-old man who suffered his second attack of appendicitis before his recent entry into Georgetown University Hospital. He agreed to be the television guinea pig and was conscious throughout the operation.

The television cameras followed the patient and operating room procedure from his admittance to the room to his wan smile when he

Physicians of the Washington area were told here yesterday that their patients' pain should be the doctors' "last consideration."

"In modern medicine," declared Dr. Louis M. A. Krause, "the first and most important step is careful, correct diagnosis. The last should be relief of pain by treatment for the patients' symtoms.

Dr. Krause, associate professor of medicine at the University of Maryland, spoke before a luncheon session of the eighteenth annual scientific assembly of the District Medical Society, at Hotel Statler. Nearly 2500 physicians are participating in the three-day conclave which opened here yesterday.

The speaker also advised the doctors to leave their practices occasionally for vacations or to attend scientific meetings.

"Take a vacation and widen your horizons and you'll double your value to your practice," he declared.

Comparing improvements in the practice of medicine today with progress in transportation from the stagecoach era to modern air travel, Dr. Krause said that "today's number of specific remedies available to physicians call for accurate diagnoses.

Midwest Markets Hike Grain Margins to 33% To Curb Speculation

Example of Self-Denial

Fish and Cheese to Feature Trumans' 1st Meatless Menu

A cheese souffle and salmon steak will be served at the White House today, as President Truman and the members of his family observe the first of the "no-meat" days of self-denial.

On Thursday, the first of the "no poultry, no eggs" days, the White House family will have stuffed peppers for luncheon and baked ham for dinner.

The menus, announced last night by Charles Luckman, were prepared by Mrs. Mary E. Sharpe, executive housekeeper of the White House. They were in line with President Truman's directive, calling on all Government agencies and the armed services to observe the program for food conservation drawn up by the Citizens Food Committee.

The menus are as follows:

For Tuesday, October 7:	For Thursday, October 9
LUNCHEON	LUNCHEON
Grapefruit	Corn Soup
Cheese Souffle	Peppers stuffed with Rice and Mushrooms
Buttered Peas	Lima Beans
Grilled Tomatoes	Glazed Carrots
Chocolate Pudding	Baked Apples
DINNER	DINNER
Clear Chicken Soup	Melon Balls
Broiled Salmon Steak	Baked Ham
Scalloped Potatoes	Baked Sweet Potatoes
String Beans	Asparagus
Sauteed Eggplant	Cauliflower
Perfection Salad	Green Salad
Sliced Peaches	Coffee Mallow

Perfection Salad Recipe

PERFECTION SALAD

1 tablespoon granulated gelatin, soaked in ¼ cup cold water
1 cup boiling water
¼ cup vinegar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt

As jelly begins to thicken, fold in 1½ teaspoons chopped onion, ½ cup shredded cabbage, celery and 1½ tablespoons pimiento or green pepper, finely cut.

The recipe for Coffee Mallow is as follows:

COFFEE MALLOW

16 marshmallows
½ cup hot coffee
1 cup heavy cream
½ teaspoon vanilla

Cut marshmallows in quarters with wet scissors. Add coffee. Cook in double boiler until melted. Cool. When beginning to thicken, fold in cream beaten stiff and add vanilla. Mold in dessert glasses. Serves 6.

President's Request Heeded as Meatless Program Sets Off Wide Price Break

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The campaign of President Truman's Citizens Food Committee for voluntary food rationing got off to a good start yesterday.

Within a few hours after receipt of a telegram from the Commodities Exchange Commission requesting higher margin requirements for grain futures, the Chicago Board of Trade voted to require margins of one-third of the sum involved, beginning at once. Directors of Minneapolis and Kansas City exchanges quickly followed suit.

This new margin amounts to about double the previous requirement and conforms to a request made of the exchanges several weeks ago by Agriculture Department officials. The action voted yesterday forecasts similar action by the other commodity exchanges. President Truman called for such action in his Sunday night broadcast urging the Nation to cooperate in conserving food.

Meatless Test Today

The new program will get its first test today—the first Meatless Tuesday for the country since World War I days.

Designed to reduce prices at home and to conserve food for export to food-deficit countries, the program for Meatless Tuesdays and Eggless and Fowl-less Thursdays, was credited with halting the bull market in food commodities that has been steadily boosting prices for months.

Late yesterday the committee caught up with an oversight when it urged the public Sunday night to do without poultry on Thursdays. Special dispensation was granted for poultry on Thanksgiving Day, Christmas and New Years—all traditional turkey, goose or chicken days, and all this year falling on Thursday.

During those holiday weeks the committee urges the public to refrain from eggs and poultry on the Mondays preceding the holidays.

Catholics Not Excepted

In response to inquiries, the committee announced that it would not relent on its dictum for Meatless Tuesday for members of religious bodies who already refrain from meat at least one day a week. Many such inquiries originated from members of the Roman Catholic faith, who now observe Friday as a day without meat.

Shortly after the opening of trading yesterday prices dropped in nearly all important commodity exchanges. The extent of the slump is shown by the Dow-Jones Commodity Future Index, which went down 2.59 points to 155.49 per cent of the 1926 base figure.

Butter dropped its full limit of 3 cents a pound at Chicago; eggs followed suit, dropping the full 2 cents permitted in a single day's trading.

At the close, offerings outnumbered takers, indicating that had it not been for the arbitrary floor under the prices, the drop would have been even greater.

Grain went down the limit at the opening, but reports of Government buying and cash purchases sent them up enough to erase most of the early slump. At the close wheat was down only from 1 to 3½ cents; corn from ½-cent to 1-cent, and oats off 1½ to 2¾ cents.

Cattle and lambs also were off,

2 High Court Justices File Acid Dissent

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Justices Jackson and Frankfurter yesterday accused the Supreme Court of encouraging administrative lawlessness.

As Chief Justice Vinson and his colleagues settled into their chairs for the fall term, the first business was Jackson's announcement of a stinging dissent to a decision handed down last summer.

Jackson said—with Frankfurter joining him—that the majority backed up administrative authoritarianism with false facts and double talk.

These hard words grew out of the reorganization of the Federal Water Service Corp. 10 years ago. During the reorganization, several Federal directors and the Chenery Corp., a "family" company, bought 11,600 shares of Federal preferred stock, in the over-the-counter market, for $328,347.

Under the terms of the reorganization, these officials were able to swap this preferred for common stock with a book value of $1,162,431. But the Securities and Exchange Commission blocked them, and ordered them to turn the preferred over to the new company—Federal Water and Gas

U. S. to End Monopoly on Atom Power

Detroit, Oct. 6.—American industry learned today that the government eventually will break up its atomic power monopoly, and hand it over to the business man.

At the same time the Commission announced formation of a board of consultants to speed up industrial opportunities in the atomic energy field.

It appointed James W. Parker, president and general manager of the Detroit Edison Co., chairman, and named these business men to serve under him:

Doctors Say: Why Argue?

Let Junior Eat When and What He Wants Is New Food Theory

Atlantic City, Oct. 6 (AP).—Let junior choose his own food, without using tricks or force to stuff down his spinach. He'll eat better, and parents can avoid jangled nerves from meal time battles.

This idea was reported today to the American Public Health Association meeting by Dr. Margaret F. Gutelius of Pharr, Tex., who told of a husband and wife, both physicians, who tried the plan on their two girls, starting when one was 18 months old, and other 15 months.

The girls, now 6 and 4 years old, have grown and developed normally with no tooth decay, and half or more of their meals are individually well-balanced.

The freedom of choice was modified so the girls could not get too much sweets or refined foods that had lost in vitamin content. The girls ate by themselves, with no restrictions on time or actions at table.

The children take about one third of their food between meals, but this consists largely of fruits, raw vegetables and milk—things they might skip at regular meals, Dr. Gutelius said. These and other prepared or nonmessy foods are always available for them.

Sometimes, the children had huge appetites for weeks, then would slacken off for no apparent reason, she continued. Often they went on food jags, eating the same thing at every meal for days or even a couple of weeks. At one meal, they might concentrate on cucumbers, eggs, or bread. But they never have any stomach upsets.

They like each food for itself, and not mixtures like hash, stew and fancy salads. For a while they preferred desserts in the middle of the meal. They now are eating a wider variety of foods at each meal.

It cannot be assumed, Dr. Gutelius added, that the method would work as well on children who already have eating habits. It also presupposes a fundamentally happy home without undue emotional stress in fields other than eating, she said.

Farmers Earn Half As Much as Others

High Prices of Products Here to Stay Thomas Tells Joint Agriculture Group

Government officials told a joint meeting of Senate and House Agriculture Committee members yesterday that, in spite of present high prices for food, the Nation's farmers earn only about half as much as its other workers.

Not only that, but a prominent member of the Congressional group, Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma, ranking Democrat on the Senate committee, declared that high prices for farm products are here to stay.

"The country should be advised that we are not going back to $1 wheat, 10-cent cotton and 4-cent hogs," Thomas declared. He added that the high taxes necessary to meet present high costs of Government, including payments on the unprecedented national debt, require that farm prices continue high.

Still Heartier Appetites

Also the joint group heard that Americans who in 1946 were already eating a startling 17 per cent more food than they ate in prewar days, are this year even eating more than they did a year ago—partly explaining the huge demand with accompanying price increases that have marked this year's cost of living.

In its long-range planning for agriculture, the department committee hopes to increase even the present figures of per capita consumption. Here are the figures presented to the legislators:

	Consumption		Planned
	1937-41	1946	1950
	Pounds	Pounds	Pounds
Corn	62.6	65.2	68.1
Peanuts	4.6	6	5.7
Sugar	97.5	73.2	108
Potatoes	127	131	126
Beans	8.7	8.2	8.8
Truck crops, fresh	96.3	123	118.1
Truck crops, canned	33.9	47.7	33
Wheat	218	211	219
Rice	5.8	4.2	6.9
Citrus fruit	61.7	91.8	92
Other fruit	131.2	139.1	134
Edible fats and oils	49.6	41.9	48.8
Milk and milk products	807	813	848
All Meats	154.7	171.2	178.5
Eggs	38.9	46.9	46.5

In non-food farm items the comparison is:

Cotton	29.3	33.9	31.0
Tobacco	8.6	10.8	9.9
Wool	5	7.5	6

"We have been shipping record quantities of grain abroad but our own people are eating one sixth more food than before the war," Charles F. Brannan, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture explained.

"Last year farm people nettel only $620 per capita:" he said, compared with a capita earnings for nonfarm people of $1326.

"Even after deducting the cost of food, nonfarm people had half again as many dollars as farm people."

Farm people are demanding, Brannan said, parity not only in income but "in the standard of living."

"Rural people generally are at a disadvantage in education and health facilities, in housing nd house conveniences, and in various other livin gconditions," he said

To Draft Long Range Policy

The testimony was given before the joint House-Senate Group engaged in drawing up a long-range plan for Agriculture, to replace the present Federal program which will virtually expire next year.

The first witnesses were officials who make up the Agriculture Department's Policy and Program Committee.

"The desperate need for food makes it imperative that we consider world food demands as never before in planning a long-range policy," Chairman Clifford R. Hope of the House Committee declared in opening the session.

"American farmers will grow every pound of food and fiber for which they can foresee a reasonable demand. The world need have no fear of their willingness to produce to capacity."

"I didn't feel a thing."

It came to the public tuned in, and to interested groups around television receivers set up in Hotel Statler for physicians attending the scientific assembly.

The operating surgeon, the anesthetist and a member of the hospital staff kept the public advised with a running commentary as the operation progressed.

U.S. Will Relinquish Monopoly On Atomic Power to Industry

the board, Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, Chicago.

And Col. Walker Cisler, chief engineer of power plant, the Detroit Edison Co., who will serve as executive secretary. He now acts as consultant to the Commission.

Lilienthal said the board would help toward "the earliest possible practical application of atomic energy by private business," and meanwhile would keep industry informed of developments, within security limitations.

In his address to the Economic Club, Lilienthal predicted an experimental bulb may be lit or a motor turned by atom-generated electricity within 12 to 24 months.

He warned, however, that a "practical demonstration" of atomic industrial power lies eight or ten years in the future.

This country still lacks the basic knowledge to build or plan a practical atomic power plant, he disclosed.

Red Report Denied

Communist-inspired rumors that the United States could keep Europeans warm this winter with atomic furnaces, but was refusing for "imperialist" reasons are completely false, he said.

Lilienthal also disclosed that a "large-scale program" of expansion, improvements and refinements is under way at Hanford, Wash., and other atomic centers—a program that represents a "major effort even for this country." So far, he said, $2,500,000,000 has been spent on atomic development.

He gave the electric power industry a clear go-ahead on construction of new generating plants, whether operated by fuel or water power. Atomic power, he said, will not spring into being overnight.

Lilienthal, decrying the European rumor that America's "imperialist passion" alone stands in the way of solving Europe's need for energy and heat, did not name Communists directly, although his meaning was clear.

More Knowledge Needed

Such reports have figured in anti-American propaganda in Italy, France, the Low Countries and even in England.

"This story is completely without foundation in fact," Lilienthal asserted. "The fact should be faced squarely that the first commercially practical atomic power plant is not just around the corner, not around two corners."

Lilienthal said he is confident that an atomic power industry can be developed. He added, however, that it cannot be done "until we have increased the country's present store of knowledge and skill."

In announcing the consulting board, the atomic chief said possibly one or two more industrial leaders would be added. He said all members will be "cleared" for access to secret data.

"Our industry will more quickly see the urgency for haste if it is kept informed," Lilienthal added, "and recognition of this urgency is the only thing that will keep us progressing."

"Such civilian participation," he said, "will fortify the military effort."

The new board will meet October 20 in Washington. Lilienthal said they would make a survey of the Commission's activities in the field of power development, including research at the atomic commission's facilities. This will include the program for the new Knolle atomic power laboratory now under construction at Schenectady, N. Y., and the Clinton national laboratories at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

The group will then recommend to the Commission methods of expanding and intensifying industrial participation.

Lilienthal said the Commission proposed—"and I have no doubt that it is the intention of Congress"—to move away from the present Government monopoly provided by law as fast as it can be done with due regard for the national security.

determine if our patient should have a teaspoon or a tablespoon of a cough expectorant.

"It was only a few years ago that we tried to kill germs with corrosive chemicals. Later, we tried to build up the patient's resistance with antibodies, through injections of serums.

"Today, we attack the germ at one phase. We have available specific remedies for this attack, so our diagnosis must be specific."

Dr. Krause said there is "little need" to hurry treatment for "the average chronic patient."

Correct Diagnoses Needed

"If you treat him immediately for his symptons, you waste valuable time that could be spent in making correct diagnoses," he declared. He excepted delaying treatment of "recognizable, acute disorders where delay of treatment might be dangerous to the patient."

Where specific remedies are not available for the patient's ills (Dr. Krause mentioned nephritis and "some forms of heart disease") the physician's duty rests in relief of suffering, "after careful diagnosis has been made."

"Fortunately, today we can admit when we are in doubt about a diagnosis," he declared. "We can even afford to admit when we have made a mistake. But in our diagnosis, we must constantly remember that though a wrong diagnosis may mean little more than a fraction in our statistical tables it might mean everything to the patient, his life."

Technical sessions or the assembly yesterday dealt with such subjects as esophageal lesions, gastric surgery, the pancreas and cirrhosis of the liver. They were well attended by specialists and students in the fields, even in the afternoon when a televised broadcast of the World Series baseball finale coincided with a panel discussion of orthopedic, neurologic and vascular origins of pain in the upper extremities.

Coincident to the assembly, scientific and generally informative exhibits have been set up on the second floor of the Statler Hotel, some of which are open to the public for the first time.

Exhibits Featured

Exhibit features include the well known "Mechanical Quackery" exhibit of the American Medical Association which displays mechanical contraptions foisted on the public in past years with claims to cure all manners of ailments.

Virginia Restaurants To Aid in Food Saving

Richmond, Va., Oct. 6 (AP).—The Virginia State Restaurant Association today promised to cooperate with President Truman's food conservation program and asked its members "to comply wherever possible" with the four points outlined in the President's Sunday night radio appeal.

Robert L. Walker, executive secretary of the association, said, however, that the volume of business done by larger eating establishments in Virginia "makes it impossible, because of advance menu planning and buying, to begin Tuesday."

Chicago Grain Margin Hiked

although hogs moved upward slightly.

Cocoa opened 100 points lower.

The reports of Government buying that marked last week's trading in the grain exchanges were confirmed when the Production and Marketing Administration announced it had bought 23,963,674 bushels of wheat during the week ended Friday noon.

PMA also bought 37 million pounds of flour and 311,595 bushels of barley.

Brokers Act Reluctantly

In voting to increase its margin requirements as requested by President Truman, the Minneapolis Exchange board of directors issued a statement, according to the Associated Press, saying it did so "with great reluctance since we know such a move will neither alleviate nor correct the situation for which the President seeks a remedy—high prices."

"Grain prices are being given undue emphasis in the overall food price situation and are being unfairly and illogically used as a whipping boy.

"Against our better judgment, we are asked to take a step which we fear can only result in driving out that needed liquidity in the market—risk capital—which has heretofore been a vital stabilizing influence. There is grave danger that order is being replaced with confusion.

"We must place the responsibility of the narrowing of the market, to the possible detriment of both producers and consumers, upon the Government."

President Truman's program of self-denial, was generally hailed yesterday:

1. Senator Kenneth S. Wherry (R., Nebr.) said it amounts "to 100 per cent indorsement" of a proposal by Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) that Americans "eat less."

2. CIO President Philip Murray and the National Meat Industry Council called for reimposition of Federal controls.

3. Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.) of the Senate-House Economic Committee, announced his group would consider the feasibility of restoring Federal food controls, but added: "I do not want to go on record as favoring a return to rationing or price control."

Restaurant owners assured the Citizens Committee they are cutting waste and will feature less costly foods.

Howland Shaw to Speak

Two Justices Score Decision

Corp.—for the cost, plus accrued dividends.

The Federal officials bought the stock to protect their holdings in the company, and the SEC did not question their good faith or personal integrity, nor did the SEC find anything secret or crooked about the deal.

Finding there was no rule against officials buying their company's stock, the Supreme Court set aside the SEC order, in 1943, in an opinion by Frankfurter, joined by Roberts, Jackson and the late Chief Justice Stone. Black dissented, joined by Reed and Murphy.

Officials Told to Sell

The SEC took the case back and again ordered the officials to sell their stock to the company, this time for cost plus four per cent interest.

When the order got back to the Supreme Court, Black, Murphy and Reed were joined by Burton and Rutledge. These five upheld the SEC. The opinion, by Murphy, said that even if the Federal officials did no harm, to allow such officials to trade in their own stock would be dangerous. They might, Murphy said, be tempted to rig the reorganization to make the public sell at low prices while they—with inside information—were buying, and making money.

Burton concurred only in the result. Douglas and Mr. Vinson did not take part in the case.

Jackson said in his dissent that there had been no change in the law, and no change in the facts. The reason the decision was different, said Jackson, was "a fundamental change in the prevailing philosophy."

Jackson said Murphy first gave the SEC credit for experience in handling such cases, then upheld its order as "a new standard." Jackson called the "experience" fictitious and said the majority opinion came to this:

"The commission must be sustained because of its accumulated experience in solving a problem with which it had never before been confronted."

Such a ruling put administrative agencies above the law, Jackson said, and made appeal to the courts a hopeless formality. "It is," Jackson went on, "the first encouragement the court has given to conscious lawlessness as a permissible rule of administrative action."

"I give up," Jackson remarked after his comments on Murphy's reasoning, adding, "now I realize fully what Mark Twain meant when he said, 'the more you explain it the more I don't understand it.'"

The only other court action yesterday was announcement that a Pennsylvania citizen had dropped his effort to force a public school bus to take his 10-year-old daughter to and from a parochial school.

Attorney General Tom C. Clark presented the new solicitor general, Philip B. Perlman. About 50 other lawyers were sworn in.

Justice Douglas, ill after a tonsil operation, was not on the bench.

Food-Saving Drive Starts Slowly Here

The Greater Washington area's food-saving drive got oc to a sluggish start yesterday as most restaurant patrons indifferently ordered bread at mealtimes and few places prepared for a meatless Tuesday today.

Inother developments on the local food conservation front:

1. The Washington Restaurant Association postponed indefinitely a planned meeting today with District Commissioners to present a long-range food-saving campaign. The postponement was in order to incorporate national conversation suggestions.

2. Two organizations—the American Veterans Committee and the League of Women Shoppers—scheduled discussion meetings to consider the food problem.

3. The heads of the Federation of Citizens Associations and the Federation of Civic Associations indorsed the Citizens' Food Committee suggestions.

4. Hotel Association of Washington officials made plans for an early meeting to consider how to cooperate with the national recommendations.

Restaurants Comply, Patrons Don't

5. Two consumer groups, which had previously declared the voluntary conservation program was inadequate, continued their attack, saying the added recommendations made Sunday night would still fall short of meeting Europe's relief needs.

Robert J. Wilson, executive secretary of the Restaurant Association, said most restaurants yesterday halted service of bread and butter with meals, unless specifically requested. However, he said most patrons asked for bread and butter.

The chairman of the baking division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, Freeman H. Sisson, said that he observed "most people asked for bread and butter." He declared that he doubted that the presidential recommendation to pass up the items "will make much difference."

Wilson said he expected relatively few restaurants to feature meatless meals today since printed menus are prepared several days or weeks in advance and perishable foods may be on hand which will be lost if not used on schedule.

Quick Changeover Impossible

District institutions were described as being in a similar position, according to R. M. Brennan, District purchasing agent. He said most hospitals and other institutions planned meals several days in advance and would be unable to make the quick changeover.

The chairman of the wholesale meat division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, Raymond C. Briggs, said wholesalers were not "contemplating any changes" because of the meatless Tuesday recommendation. He said meat men will "cooperate with the President," but it "will be up to the people to cut down."

The District chapter of the League of Women Shoppers, which has criticized the food-saving proposals as inadequate, will meet at 12:30 p. m. today in the YWCA at 17th and K sts. nw. for a luncheon discussion of food prices. Roderick Riley, former research director of the Office of Price Administration, will be the main speaker.

The American Veterans Committee, which has taken a similar stand on the suggestions, will hold an open public meeting tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the Department of Interior auditorium on the food problem.

Sees Return to Sensible Living

The second consumer group to attack the proposals was the Washington Consumer Protection Committee, headed by Mrs. Sarah Newman. Mrs. Newman said more than "voluntary cooperaton" was needed and the "longer on ewaits, th eworse the situation gets overseas."

The president of the Federation of Citizens' Associations, Clifford H. Newell, said he did not "believe in people wasting food." He said he was brought up not to waste food, but the "country is different today, they waste everything." He hoped the food-saving program would get Americans "back to a sensible way of living."

The president of the Federation of Civic Associations, Woolsey W. Hall, said he supported the Presidential suggestions and would ask the presidents of the 26-member units to implement the program. The officials are scheduled to meet October 16, he said.

The Progress Club, a social group of about 150 Jewish professional and businessmen who meet for dinner every first and third Tuesday of each month, will get behind President Truman's food-saving program at their first opportunity. At tonight's meeting at the Hotel Willard, they'll be eating a sea food dinner and from then on will stay off meat at their affairs, Ferdinand M. Ney, house chairman ,announced. Ben Rich is president of the club.

ABC Board Drops Charges Of Unspecific Advertising

Charges of failure to specifically identify brands of alcoholic beverages in advertisements were dropped against one defendant and decision was deferred in two other cases by the District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday.

The law states that no licenesee may publish advertisements of any alcohol, spirits or wine which do not provide information as to the name of the brand, type and, except as to wine, proof or alcoholic content of such alcoholic beverages.

The case against Oscar Gildenhorn, Celia Gildenhorn and Hymen Tash, operators of a liquor store at 1845 Columbia rd. nw., was dismissed when the board decided that the regulations do no apply to beer.

Failure to describe beer had been the basis of the complaint lodged against the three.

Fred Burka, 3300 Wisconsin ave. nw., told the board he had made every reasonable effort to comply with the regulations. He said he even had the advertisement in question checked with the board. If it was still in error, it was the result of a misunderstanding, he said.

He explained that one afternoon newspaper had run his dveratisement before the corrections called for by the ABC had been made. In the uncorrected ad, rum, gin, brandy, whisky and cordials were advertised in a box without the brand named. In papers of the following day brand names were given.

Decision was deferred in the case against Burka and also against George M. Jacobson and Jack Rubin, 1727 Connecticut ave. nw. Their attorney, Jeff Lichtenberg, protested that if his clients' advertisement was a violation it would also be a violation just to list the name of the store with the word liquors in an advertisement. Their ad announced drastic liquor price cuts on everything in the store except one brand ,and said the sale included Scotch, Buorbon, rye, blends, gin, wines and cordials, without giving specific information on any item.

Cent a Quart Milk Boost In Offing

Milk prices may be increased one cent a quart for greater Washington consumers as a result of action disclosed yesterday by the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association which is seeking a boost in producer prices.

The association announced that it had petitioned the Virginia Milk Commission for permission to raise producer prices. The commission, the association declared, has already set October 17 for hearing on the petition in Alexandria.

If the request is approved, the producer cost of Class 1 milk in the area would be boosted $5.60 to $6.06 a hundred-weight, or the equivalent of "about a cent a quart," a spokesman for the association said.

Although the association is asking only for an increase in the price paid farmers, spokesmen for two local dairies said yesterday any raise approved by the commission would "unquestionably" have to be passed on to consumers. They said they had not yet been notified formally of the association's petition.

Class I milk, the only classification for which a price raise has been asked, includes all fluid milk, chocolate milk and buttermilk. Average milk prices in the Washington Metropolitan Area are now 17 cents a quart at stores, and 19½ cents delivered.

In asking that the producer price be raised, the association said it had been unable to "absorb round after round of ever-increasing food and labor costs in the production of quality milk."

The Maryland-Virginia association furnishes about 90 per cent o fall milk consumed in the metropolitan area. Although there are no producer price controls in the District or Maryland, members of the group in both these areas have adhered to price levels enforced by the Virginia commission.

Picture Is Grim

World Faces Starvation, U. N. Warned

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Starvation will kill more people in the nex t12 months than died in an yyear of the war from bullets and bombs, the United Nations were warned today.

Sir John Boyd Orr, director general of the Food and Agriculture Organization, said the extra wheat production of the United States has "saved millions of lives."

But h epainted a grim picture of the future in all parts of the world. Even if 1948 produces a bumper harvest "the shortage will continue for many years," he told the economic committee.

He pleaded for "complete agreement" on the necessity for "international cooperation to provide food for the people of the world."

The Marshall Plan, he declared, is a regional action only for the benefit of Western Europe. A similar plan is needed for Eastern Europe, the Middle East, Asia "and all the regions of the world."

Declaring that a 110 per cent increase in food production is needed throughout the world in the next 25 years to feed expanding populations, Sir John warned:

"There is a real danger that widespread and continued hunger with resulting social and political unrest, will undermine the foundations of governments, and the whole structure of human society may collapse in chaos."

U. S. Is Asked to Release Its 200 Million Dozen Eggs

Boston, Oct. 6 (AP).—Senator Saltonstall (R., Mass.) tonight demanded the release of more than 90 million pounds (200 million dozen) of Government-held eggs "for the benefit of the consuming public."

In a letter to Charles Luckman, Citizens Food Committee chairman, the Massachusetts Senator said: "I, for one, certainly want to know why the United States Government owns 29 million pounds of dried whole eggs and over 61 million pounds of frozen whole eggs."

"In view of the present price of eggs and the President's request for eggless Thursdays . . . I hope these egg products will be released as speedily as possible for the benefit of the consuming public."

Administration Finds Eggs a Problem

The Administration found itself in the paradoxical position yesterday of asking the public to observe one egless day each week while the Government hodls about 29 million pounds of dried eggs and 61.7 million pounds of frozen eggs purchased under federal laws requiring the Government to maintain support prices.

Officials of the Agriculture Department said that the high price of eggs prevents their export to Europe as relief food, while the law bars their sale in the domestic market.

Officials said tha thte Agriculture Department hopes to dispose of the eggs through the school lunch program. Several million pounds of dried eggs already have gon einto this program.

A department spokesman said that by expending our available relief funds for whe atand flour, we could provide far more calories for needy countries at much less cost than if we used eggs."

Water to Be Sought From Ft. Belvoir

The Groveton, Va., Parent-Teachers Association yesterday planned to appeal to Army officials at Ft. Belvoir in an attempt to solve the acute water shortage at Groveton School.

Principal Emmett Day said the well which supplies the school does not furnish a sufficient supply, either for drinking or sanitary purposes. Another P-TA delegation will ask Fairfax County officials to effect a permanent solution.

Va. Parole Board to Act Today on Reprieve Plea

Richmond, Va., Oct. 6 (AP).—A spokesman for the Virginia Board of Pardons and Reprieves said late this afternoon that a petition for areprieve for Raymond Laurence had been heard but that a decision in the case probably would not be ready until tomorrow.

Laurence, 29-year-old ship's cook, was found guilty and sentenced to the electric October 24 for shooting to death a Newport News policeman, Charles N. Doughty.

Laurence was conficted of the slaying in August and a writ of error petition was later denied by the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals. The petition for the reprieve was presented by Victor J. Ashe of Norfolk and R. Wendell Walker of Newport News, attorneys.

Gaines Says U. S. Must Redefine Democracy

Atlanta, Oct. 6 (AP).—Dr. Francis P. Gaines, president of Washington and Lee University, said today that redefinition of democracy in terms of opportunity for all is America's last chance to avoid state socialism.

Speaking to the Atlanta Rotary Club, Dr. Gaines declared that "Freedom is usually lost through a sell out. People sell out for something that they think is better, only to find out too late that they were bilked in the deal. Fascism will come in disguised as socialism."

Dr. Gaines said that of 10 students in the average fourth grade of a public school, one will go to college and only two will finish high school.

"Those three will be the leaders, but the country's destiny will lie with the other seven," he declared.

VMI Battalion, Band To Attend Ga. Game

Lexington, Va., Oct. 6 (AP).—A battalion of 400 Virginia military institute cadets, including the 44-piece band, will attend the V. M. I.-Georgit Tech game in Atlanta next Saturday, Maj. Gen. Richard J. Marshall, superintendent of V. M. I. announced today.

The battalion will be commanded by Cadet First Capt. A. L. Loth, jr., of Richmond.

Philadelphia Democrats Seek 1948 Convention

Senator Myers (D., Pa.) and David Lawrence, Pennsylvania State Democratic chairman, put in o plug with President Truman yesterday for Philadelphia to be the scene of the 1948 Democratic national convention.

They told reporters Mr. Truman is keeping "hands off" the selection of the convention city, and is leaving it entirely to national committee members who meet here October 29.

Brother, Sister 'Blue Babies' At Johns Hopkins

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 6 (AP).— Brother and sister "blue babies," the first ever examined at Johns Hopkins hospital from one family, arrived here today from London, Ohio, to see if the Blalock-Taussig operation can correct their condition.

Frank Valentini, jr., 6, and his sister, Lenora, 9, both have been afflicted with a heart condition depriving the blood of oxygen since they were babies. Each will undergo a series of examinations to determine whether they have the kind of heart malformation that can be helped by the operation.

Doctors said they could not provide statistics on the odds of two children in the same family being born with rare ailment, but said is was the first case they had ever observed.

The are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Valentini, Lorain.

Five Are Injured In 3-Car Crash Near Warrenton

Warrenton, Va., Oct. 6.—A mother and her 4-year-old son were seriously injured and three others suffered minor cuts and bruises in a three-car collision three miles northeast of here on Route 211 shortly after noon today.

Mrs. A. G. Willis, of Lignum, Va., suffered a broken pelvis and cuts and bruises about the face, and her 4-year-old son, Edwin, suffered concussion and cuts about the head.

Police said the Willis' 1946 Chevrolet collided almost head-on with a 1946 Buick, driven by Dennis A. Johnson, 1111 Eastern ave. ne., Washington, after the Buick had sideswiped a Dodge sedan driven by Marie Campbell of Broad Run. She was not injured.

Sarah Lee Willis, age 6 months, and Mrs. R. W. Garnett, of Danville, Va., other occupants of the Willis car, escaped injury, Catharine Simms, of 1333 Wylie st. ne., and Corrine Simms, of 1325 Wylie st. ne., Washington, who were in Johnson's car, received minor injuries. Johnson also was injured.

The Market Basket

Butter Drops 3 to 4 Cents

By Lucia Brown
Post Reporter

The high cost of having a little butter on your bread took a slight tumble in many stores yesterday.

Retailers marked down their prices 3 to 4 cents a pounds, following the fall in wholesale butter quotations. Quality butter was selling at 82 a pound in many groceries, principally the chains.

"Thank goodness, we've moved further away from $1 butter," said one retailer, as he changed the price tickets. "That bugaboo didn't do business a bit of good."

Although a few grocers also reported a 3 cent drop in egg prices, eggs were selling generally at about the same level as last week. Most usual price range was 83 to 87 cents a dozen.

Retail prices of meat at least hadn't taken a turn for the worse, despite last week's Chicago market rise. Dealers were disagreed as to what housewives could expect in the way of meat prices the latter part of the week. Some felt that in view of the higher market, prices were bound to go up. Others said that if consumer resistance continued, prices were more likely to drop.

Meanwhile, two of the best buys in the meat field are smoked tongue and dried beef. The tongue's solid meat, sell for around 43 cents a pound. Most of them are dark red, of course, but a few are black, from Black Angus cattle, and considered a delicacy. The black is only skin deep.

Chipped beef is retailing for between 32 and 35 cents for a quarter pound, but a little goes a long way when prepared in a cream sauce, a casserole, or any of the ways in which chipped beef is usually served.

Police Hunt Slayer of Navy Veteran

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 6 (AP).—Police searched a wide area near Petersburg today for a Negro they said shot and killed a 21-year-old Navy veteran, Hains Traylor, in a heavily wooded spot near Beck's Beach in Dinwiddie County last night.

Police said details of Traylor's death were given them by Miss Helen Harrison, of Petersburg.

The quoted the girl as saying that she and Traylor, also from Petersburg, were suddenly confronted by a Negro man armed with a gun while they sat talking in an automobile.

Traylor, she said, was ordered to drive the man to White Oak Road in the Beck's Beach area and was told to stop when they reached a secluded spot on the thoroughfare.

She and her companion were then forced ti walk to a thickly wooded area, she said, and Traylor suddenly grappled with the man and called to her to scape. Police said the girl told them she hid in the brush all night and that several times Traylor's assailant passed within a few feet of her.

At daybreak she made her way to a farmhouse and police were notified. Authorities said about the only description they had was of a man about 5 feet 10 inches tall, wearing a blue suit.

were later released, Lieut. Robert V. Murray of the robbery squad said.

Later a cab driver, Frederick Juggins, 21, of 2322 Ontario rd. nw., reported that a passenger, whom he had driven from the holdup scene to 5th st. and Florida ave. ne., had left a gun on the rear floor of his cab. Lieutenant Murray said the description of the passenger tallied with that of the bag-snatcher.

Two eye-witnesses were also questioned. They were William Boswell of 442 Massachusetts ave. nw., and Edsel Paschall, 23, an auto mechanic, of 816 8th st. ne.

Money Deposited Earlier

Besides missing the secreted $3000, the holdup men also failed to take $8000 deposited earlier by Charles "Buddy" Bressler, nephew of the manager of the firm, Max Bressler, the latter disclosed.

The manager said his firm, located at 1265 4th st. ne., has made it a practice to make two deposits on Monday, splitting weekend receipts between the two messengers, neither of whom is armed. He said his firm was covered by insurance for $5000. Payment would be stopped on the checks, he said.

Patrolman Francis V. Andruzzi, regularly assigned to a beat which included the bank corner, was in Municipal Court appearing in a case. According to Lieut. Thomas E. Edwards of the precinct, other beat men are usually assigned to cover two beats to protect the area.

However, yesterday, Sergt. H. C. Helms, who was in charge of the assignment of the men, declared no beat men were available. He declared "two or three" of the scout car men were at court and "two or three" of the beat men were also required there. This meant he had to fill in vacancies on required assignments such as the two scout cars and overtime parking patrollers and "did not have any other men for foot duty."

The gun-pointing fugitive was described on the police teletype as follows: Medium brown Negro, 25, 5 feet 7 inches to 9 inches tall, 180 to 190 pounds, round full face, heavy build, wearing gray or blue pants, green field jacket with shoulder straps.

The second man, who made off with the haul, was described as a light brown Negro, 25, 5 feet 7 inches to 9 inches tall, 145 pounds, thin, wearing a light tan sport coat, dark pants, blue felt hat.

had their tax bills cut only $30 a year.

The fight against Lewis because of his stand on the non-Communist affidavit issue was reported to be rapidly shaping up.

Seven members of the federation's 15-man executive council, reportedly led by Daniel J. Tobin of the teamsters union, were reliably said to be lined up to "kick" Lewis and William (Big Bill) Hutcheson of the carpenters union out of the federation unless they agree to sign non-Communist affidavits.

Refusal of Lewis to sign such an affidavit has deprived all AFL unions of use of National Labor Relations Board machinery.

Tell of Promise

Lewis won Hutcheson's support, it was said, by promising to back the carpenters in their Hollywood jurisdictional dispute with the theatrical employes union.

The battle, which would be the most tumultuous in federation history if carried to the convention floor, brewed as President William Green denounced the Taft-Hartley Act and blasted Russia at the convention's opening session.

There was no hint in Green's fiery address of the internal strife developing behind the convention scene.

The report was called to Tobin's attention by International News Service and he replied:

"I can't confirm it—it would be unethical. But you are not far off."

"In the confused situation it would be surprising if we all agreed.

"What makes the American system work is difference of opinion. If I were you I'd just sit tight and see what happens."

Lewis has replied "no comment" to all attempts to draw him out on the struggle within the executive council.

President Green, his voice choking with emotion, drew wild cheers as he listed as the federation's two main objectives the repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act and defeat of Congressmen who voted for it.

The 74-year-old AFL leader, now serving his twenty-third term, forecast that the convention "will direct that election day in 1948 be an idle day—a holiday—so that labor can march to the polls."

LeViness Got Liquor Fee, Court Told

Baltimore, Oct. 6 (AP).—A witness testified in Federal Court today that $2500 was paid Charles T. LeViness 3d for obtaining a liquor license for a drinking place while Leviness was serving as head of the Baltimore Board of Liquor License Commissioners in 1943.

The testimony was given by one of the first prosecution witness in LeViness' trial on charges of evading $9496.76 in Federal income taxes for 1943 and 1944.

LeViness, a Baltimore attorney who held key State posts during the administration of Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor, pleaded innocent.

Meyer Davis, real estate and insurance man, who formerly was a partner in the operation of a downtown hotel, told Judge William C. Coleman at the first session of the trial that the $2500 was paid LeViness for "innumerable services," which included obtaining a liquor license for a cocktail lounge planned for the hotel.

Tells of Cash Fee

He said the fee was paid in cash "at Mr. LeViness' suggestion," and that he received the license about three days before LeViness left his post as liquor board head April 30, 1943.

Another witness, Mrs. Katherine Darrell of Kay's nightclub, said she went to the defendant after she had license trouble just after LeViness left the board. The testified she paid LeViness $2500 and got her license back without having a rehearing.

One of the defense attorneys said during the opening stages of the trial that throughout the O'Conor-Markey Senatorial campaign last year there had been rumors that LeViness had improperly collected "hundreds of thousands."

Political Angle Denied

United States Attorney Bernard J. Flynn interrupted to tell the judge and 10 men and two women comprising the jury that he wanted "to make it plain right here and now that there never has been any politics in this prosecution."

Wendell D. Allen, one of the defense attorneys, said in an opening statement that the former political figure had offered to pay whatever was owed, that fees might have been inadvertently overlooked, and that LeViness had received a deficiency assessment for what he owed.

The trial will be resumed tomorrow.

LeViness, 45, left the Baltimore liquor board to become head of the State's penal system. He has been in private practice since November, 1945.

He also is a former head of the Better Business Bureau of Baltimore, and was Assistant Maryland Attorney General from 1935 until 1939, during the period O'Conor was Attorney General.

AAF 'University' Branded a Phony

Former Publicity Chief Says Officials Proposed 'Fight-Russia-Now' Propaganda

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 6 (AP).—G. R. Johnston, former chief of public relations at Maxwell Field's air university, charged in an open letter to Gen. Carl Spaatz today that the school was a "phony educational institution" teaching "dangerous militaristic doctrines."

Gen. Spaatz

Johnston, who was released from Army service as a colonel last week and who now is publisher of the weekly Jackson County Times at Ocean Springs, Miss., said two high-ranking air university officers called him into a conference last October. They asked, he reported, "for advice on whether the public would accept a proposal for an immediate attack upon Russia before the Soviet Union became stronger."

Said Johnston's letter to Spaatz: "When I told them that Americans would never suport such a proposal, they said they would carry on an undercover campaign to swing AAF officers to their way of thinking before broaching the subject publicly."

He said he had since "seen it discussed in official notes of faculty meetings."

Maj. Gen. Muir S. Fairchild, commanding general of the air university, said he had no comment on the charges.

[No official comment was forthcoming from the Department of Air Force on Johnston's charges, but late yesterday a mimeographed "memorandum for the press" was issued quoting extracts from a recent report of the board of visitors to the Air University. The board, made up of civilian university presidents, praised the school as "an outstanding military educational institution."

[Informally, an Air Force spokesman noted that the function of the Air University is to consider "all sorts of hypothetical military operations in the discussion groups studying strategy."

[Undoubtedly, it was said, the Department chiefs will call upon the president of the University for a report in the matter.—Editor's Note.]

Johnston said in his letter "there are many things about the air university which give an unbiased observer the impression that it is decidedly a 'phony' educational institution. This includes duplication of courses taught in other schools, the procurement of 'big names' as guest lecturers, although many contribute little of educational value, and the development of militaristic doctrines."

Johnston signed the letter as president of the Association of Air Force Public Relations Officers, which he said was composed of present and former AAF public relations officers throughout the Nation.

[An Air Force public information officer here said the Association is a newly formed organization sponsored by Johnston.—Editor's Note.]

Johnston's letter complained of what he called the "to-hell-with-the public" attitude of the Army and Air Force, and claimed repeated public relations directives by the Air Force commanding general received "only lip service" from numerous commanders.

He told Spaatz one officer "refused to permit me to teach a directive of yours with which he disagreed," and added: "He ordered me to tell my class 'all newspapermen are . . . and should be treated like rattlesnakes.'" He said the latter occurred last November after Montgomery newspapers published stories of censorship at the air university.

U. S. Seeking Vast Treasure Of Ribbentrop

Nuernberg, Germany, Oct. 6 (AP). American war crimes prosecutors have embarked on a vast treasure hunt in search of millions in gold—perhaps as much as 50 million dollars—they believe was cached by Joachim von Ribbentrop, Hitler's foreign minister.

They said the treasure probably is buried in churches, on peasant farms, perhaps still tucked away in corners of former German Embassies abroad.

Existence of the funds was tipped off by former henchman of Ribbentrop.

"We found that Ribbentrop's books did not balance," an attorney said.

Ribbentrop was hanged as a war criminal before the prosecutors got on the trail of the hidden gold.

Ribbentrop had four funds—a general budget, a "secret" fund of about four million dollars, a war emergency fund of unlimited amounts, and a "super-secret" personal allotment which held at one time at least 45 million dollars.

In 1935 Ribbentrop started to ship gold in small bars to various embassies "in the event that war should come."

So much was lent that German ministers abroad objected to such heavy responsibility, his files show.

Md. Magistrate's Ruling in Strike Cause of Threats

Baltimore, Oct. 6 (AP).—Magistrat eHerbert Franklin of the Baltimore Southern Police District said in court today he "had been threatened and told his job would be taken away" as a result of picket-line cases in his court arising out of the 104-day-old Bethlehem Steel Co. shipyard strike. Franklin declined to elaborate.

The statement came as he announced to a roomful of protesting union officials that a jury trial would be asked in all future picket-line arrests coming under his jurisdiction.

At the same time the magistrate refused a request of officials of the United Marine and Shipbuilding Workers' Union of America (CIO) that he swear out a warrant (for assault) against the driver of the car which allagedly struck a picket at Bethlehem's Key hwy plant today. Franklin said the warrant should be sworn out by the injured man.

Thieves Cart Away Safe Holding $7347

Towson, Md., Oct. 6 (AP).—Thieves carted away a 500-pound safe containing $7347 in cash, savings bonds and jewelry from the home of an elderly Baltimore County couple during the weekend, police reported today.

They said John Truss, 72, and his wife Elizabeth, owners of a Baltimore market stall, found the safe gone when they returned home Saturday night. Two $1000 bonds, $347 in cash, and jewelry valued at $6000 made up the loot, the Truss' reported to police.

New Red Body Seen Front for Comintern

By John Scali
Associated Press Staff Writer

American diplomatic officials viewed the new European Communist international yesterday as a "propaganda front" established to carry out the decisions of a secret and far more powerful comintern.

On second look at the nine-nation organization which Moscow announced over the weekend, these officials tended to regard it as merely one of the arms of the world-wide comintern which they are convinced still exists.

Frequent propaganda blasts at so called American "imperialism" can be expected from it, they said, but these will reflect the "line" agreed upon by the Moscow directed comintern — supposedly dead since May, 1943.

Abolished in War

(The comintern, which was composed of representatives of Communist parties from all over the world, was declared abolished at a time when Russia was engaged in war on the same side as the United States and other western Allies.)

To back up their contention that the new organization will not in itself be as important as ballyhooed, diplomats pointed to the "second grade" Communists who attended the meeting in Poland at which it was formed.

The only top rank Communist from outside Russia was Jacques Duclos, French Communist Party secretary. Palmiro Togliatti of Italy, Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, Georgi Dimitrov of Bulgaria, along with Communist leaders from Romania, Hungary, and Czechoslovakia, all were missing as were their top lieutenants.

Announced by Pravda

What impressed American officials more than the makeup of the organization or its future role in Communist aims was the fact that it was publicly announced by Pravda, the official Communist newspaper in Moscow.

This was regarded as definite evidence that Moscow's dislike of American policies has reached the point where she feels it necessary to drop the pretense of having no control over Communists in other countries in order to rally them to a common battle against American "imperialism."

The exact whereabouts of Georgi Dimitrov, Bulgarian Premier who was once secretary general of the comintern, puzzles many diplomats. He has been absent from Sofia for several weeks.

draw any official protest on the grounds that it carried signatures of Communist Party leaders high in the councils of governments within the Soviet sphere of influence.

There was speculation over what effect the declaration would have on the United States congressional committees studying appropriation of huge funds to bolster the western democracies.

Still another question was whether the Communist attack on "right wing Socialists" signaled the beginning of an all-or-nothing campaign in Europe for a choice between the extreme right and left.

In Warsaw, reliable informants said the top Communists of Poland, Russia, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary, France, Czechoslovakia and Italy drew up their proclamation secretly in lower Silesia, presumably in Wroclaw (formerly Breslau) in territory Poland took over from Germany as a result of the war.

A Polish government spokesman viewed the development as "purely a party matter" and said his country's foreign policies would not be affected. The Communist supported newspaper Glos Ludo said the aim of the new Communist organization was to protect world peace, and charged "big American capital" aiming to dominate Europe, had become a "threatening danger to the independence of France and Italy."

Reds Reject Horse Trade in Greek Row

J. H. Van Roijen, said Vishinsky's speech had persuaded him to vote for condemning Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania. At least Vishinsky had won some votes—for the American resolution.

Some delegates would prefer to set up the commission without condemning anyone, but the United States will try to get a majority in the committee, and later a two-thirds vote in the full Assembly, for its resolution of outright condemnation.

One passage of Vishinsky's speech had more long-range significance to many delegates than anything else he said. For it argued that very little attempt to whittle down national sovereignty and merge it ino a greater sovereignty was nothing but an invention of the capitalist devil.

Amplifies Emphasis

It echoed and amplified the emphasis on national sovereignty in yesterday's manifesto by the Communist parties of nine nations. And it suggested that the Soviet Union and all its Communist supporters would resist any and every attempt to widen the authority of the United Nations or other international bodies.

What provoked it was the insistence of Greece's three northern neighbors that it would "infringe" their sovereignty to let a United Nations commission of inquiry enter their territory. Last week Premier Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium had objected that it was "reactionary" and outmoded for Communist nations to put such stress on sovereignty.

On the contrary, Vishinsky replied today, the national sovereign state is needed "to save its people from being exploited by foreign intruders."

"The capitalist system," he said, "has developed to such an extent that state sovereignty of other nations constitutes an obstacle for the implementation of expansionist plans, when it stands in the way of any expansion.

"Mr. Speak said that the concept of state sovereignty is 'reactionary.' Oh, yes! State sovereignty is a reactionary concept because it obstructs the 'progressive' movement of imperialism, which is striding about the world with its mouth wide open and its rapacious paws stretched out far ahead."

He described the idea of world government as a "suspicious doctrine," and quoted the American lawyer, Thomas K. Finletter, among others as openly advocating a super-state which, he insisted, could only serve the interests of capitalism.

Foreign Minister Herbert V. Evatt of Australia charged Russia herself was the guiding hand behind the actions of Greece's northern neighbors. Evatt based his charge on "the tone and character of statements" made to the Security Council, to its commission of investigation and to this assembly committee. A study fo these statements, he said, "shows very clearly that the three countries concerned have acted, and are acting, in the closest day-by-day collaboration with each other, and with the Soviet Union, the Ukraine and Byelo-Russia."

Mrs. Roosevelt Sympathizes But Opposes Reds on Press

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today that the United States "sympathizes" with efforts to reduce "warmongering and totalitarian influences," in the press of every country.

But she objected vigorously before the United Nations to any attempts at imposing government controls on the press.

In the most direct reply yet made since Andrei Y. Vishinsky attacked American "warmongering," Mrs. Roosevelt declared:

"We feel that the advantages of the free press system in the United States and in most other countries vastly outweigh the overwhelming disadvantage of a controlled press system."

She objected to Russian proposals to define what the press should or should not be, because they made the objectives "a direct assignment or task of the press."

The Soviet proposal was that the International Conference on Freedom of Information and the Press next March in Geneva "accept" Russian definitions of principles.

Faced with a drumfire of objections from other delegates, Valerian A. orin, the Soviet delegate, agreed with alacrity to a compromise offered by Czechoslovakia. Instead of the mandatory acceptnce of the definitions, orin agreed to permit the international conference next year to "take into account" the Soviet proposals.

A vote is to be taken tomorrow at the Social Humanitarian and Cultural Committee meeting which may indicate how the other members feel about Soviet ideas on press freedom.

Legion Donates $1000 to Hospital At Georgetown U.

The District of Columbia Department, American Legion, has donated $1000 for the purchase of cardiology equipment for the new Georgetown Hospital, the Rev. Paul A. McNally, S. J., dean of Georgetown Medical Center, announced yesterday.

The Legion gave an equal sum to the George Washington University fund for its new hospital, to buy similar devices.

The gift to Georgetown will make possible the completion of a "heart station" at the new hospital. The station, first of its type in a non-Government District hospital, will be used for analysis of certain types of heart disease and will aid physicians in diagnosis and treatment, according to Dean McNally.

Cadillac

DISTINCTION

Throw against Cadillac any test you care to make—and it will stand revealed as the monarch of motordom. Is it beauty you wish to compare? A look is all you need. Is it performance? Comfort? Handling ease? A ride tells the story. Is it engineering or long life? The answer is found in Cadillac's forty-five-year history. Truly, there is nothing with which to compare a Cadillac—from any standpoint.

If you are waiting for a new Cadillac—please be assured that every effort is being made to further production. Demand is so great, however, that some delay in delivery is still inevitable. But hold to your purpose! There is no substitute for a Cadillac.

Barkley Sees Food Invested In Democracy

Rome, Tuesday, Oct. 7 (AP).—Senator Alben W. Barkley (D., Ky.), told Americans early today that every dollar's worth of food sent to Europe would be "an investment in democracy and in liberty and in the right of peoples throughout all this continent to have a restoration of their economy and standards of life."

Sen. Barkley

In a broadcast from Rome over the National Broadcasting Company network, the Senator, who has been studying conditions in Europe, said the effort of the people of the United States "to deny themselves some of the luxuries which we enjoy and which w like to have is an essential part in the program of our Government in the development of its foreign policy."

He declared that "an empty stomach is a Communist's workshop," just as "an idle brain is the devil's workshop."

Barkley is a member of the Smith-Mundt joint Senate-House Committee investigating information and propaganda in Europe.

200 Attend Girls' School Open House

Out at the National Training School for Girls, 5201 Loughborough rd. nw., a couple of hundred citizens yesterday had an enjoyable afternoon.

So did the school's staff—and so did the 25 young girls who live there.

Occasion was two-fold: the school's first "Open House," and the third anniversary of the arrival of its superintendent, Mrs. Rose Cooper Smith. It climaxed a month of hard work by everyone connected with the institution.

Mostly, though, it was the girls' show. It prompted Mrs. Smith to remark quietly, "We're gaining, I do believe."

It was only last March that distrust and resentment smoldering mong th egirls broke into a riot. When it was all over almost all of hem had joined in, and police had to quel lit. One girl, a 19-year-old, spent 60 days in the workhouse.

Yesterday a hal fyear of careful training in new fields of interest—beauty culture, dramatics, religion, arts and crafts—paid off.

The girls staged an "Indian Operetta," and afterwards served refreshments. Then came a tour of the institution, with examples of the girls' training in abundance. They exhibited dresses they had made, and hooked rugs, slip covers and jewelry; they set a table and proudly showed food they had canned "right out of our garden"—tomatoes, cabbage, green beans.

"No," Mrs. Smith continued, "we haven't had any trouble since last March. As a matter of fact, two of our girls who had been out on parole came back to us a couple of weeks ago voluntarily. They had no place to go, and they like it here."

Visitors included representatives of the Juvenile Court, the Women's Bureau of the Police Department, Welfare Board, School Attendence Department, District of Columbia Bureau of Rehabilitation, YWCA, and others. Also present were relatives of the girls.

Conicville Youth Dies of Injuries

Harrisonburg, Va., Oct. 6 (AP).—Roscoe Page Moomaw, 20, of Conicville, Shenandoah County, died in Rockingham Memorial Hospital today of injuries received in an accident this morning about 11 miles north of this city on Route 11.

State Trooper M. S. Witt, who investigated, said Moomaw was fatlly injured when his car and a large truck collided. A passenger in Moomaw's automobile, Kirby Hetner, also of Conicville, was slightly injured.

DDT Sprayed on Cairo To Stamp Out Cholera

Cairo, Egypt, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—A specially equipped American airplane today sprayed Cairo with DDT in an attempt to stamp out the cholera epidemic. Deaths now are put at 381. There are 1600 cases in all Egypt.

Paris, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—A French army plane left today with a load of anticholera vaccine for Cairo.

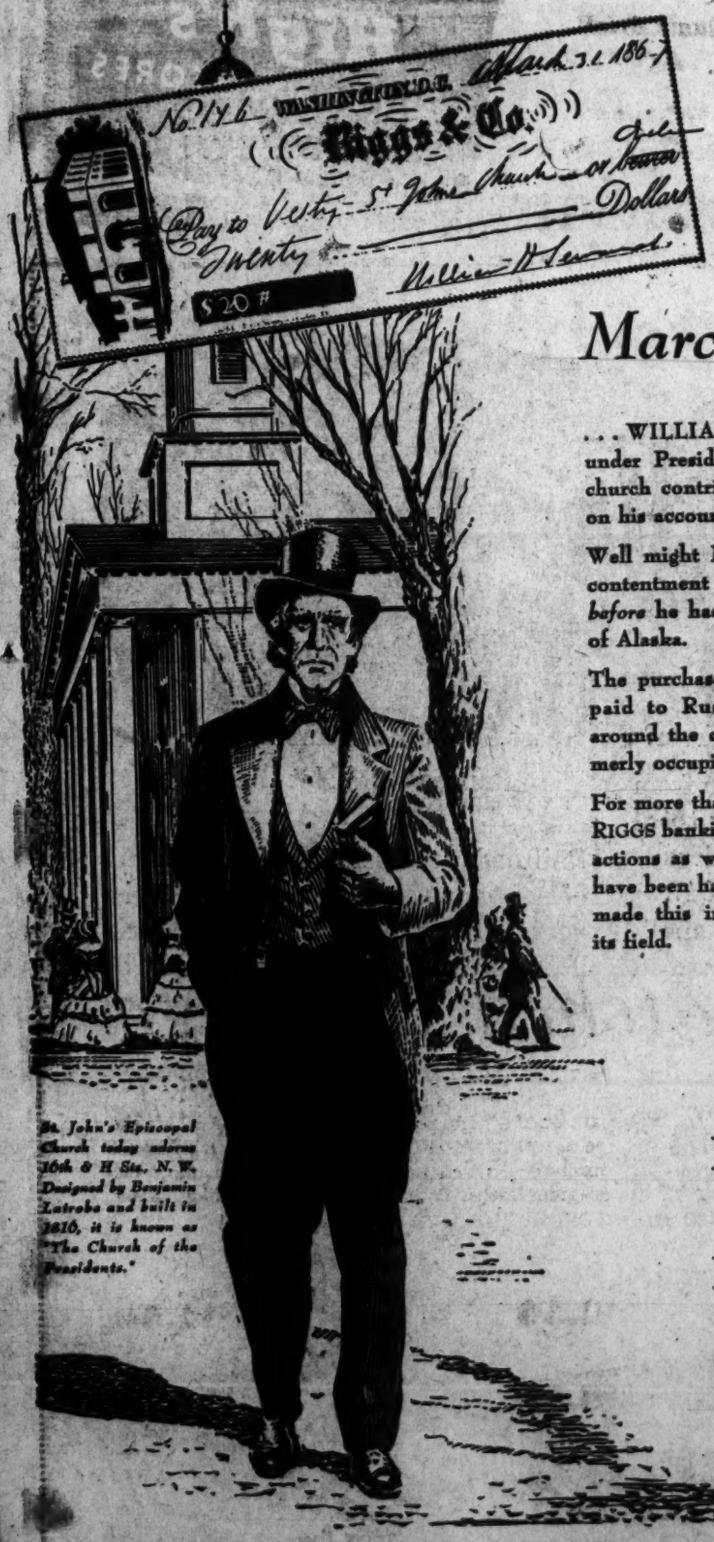
LARGEST FINANCIAL INSTITUTION IN THE NATION'S CAPITAL



St. John's Episcopal Church today adorns 16th & H Sts., N.W. Designed by Benjamin Latrobe and built in 1816, it is known as "The Church of the Presidents."

On Sunday, March 31, 1867 . . .

. . . WILLIAM H. SEWARD, Secretary of State under Presidents Lincoln and Johnson, made his church contribution in the form of a check drawn on his account with Riggs & Company.

Well might Mr. Seward have worshipped in quiet contentment on that Sunday morning, for the day before he had signed the treaty for the acquisition of Alaska.

The purchase money of $7,200,000 was actually paid to Russia in gold by Riggs & Company, around the corner from Seward's home which formerly occupied the site of the Belasco Theatre.

For more than a century the unmistakable mark of RIGGS banking quality has appeared in private transactions as well as in affairs of great moment. All have been handled with the care and pride that have made this institution a leader and a landmark in its field.

Eisler, Wife Surrender; Face Hearing

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Justice Department announced yesterday that Hanns Eisler, Germm-born Hollywood songwriter, and his wife had surrendered to immigration authorities in Los Angeles to face deportation proceedings.

Mrs. Eisler

Eisler was released on $1000 bond, and his wife on a $500 bond, the Justice Department announced, but no date has yet been set for a preliminary hearing.

The warrant for Eisler charged hi mwith violation of Federal laws banning members or affiliates of the Communist Party from permanent residence in the United States.

The warrant for Mrs. Eisler charged that she was not entitled to the status of nonquota immigrant under which she was admitted to the United States in 1940.

Deportation Asked

Eisler's deportation was requested by the House Committee on Un-American Activities after three days of hearings in Washington, when Eisler disclosed he had once applied for membership in the Communist I arty in Germany, but had not paid his dues.

Evidence was introduced to show that he had sworn to United States authorities that he had never been affiliated with the Communist Party.

The committee asked that Eisler first be presecuted for perjury and false passport application, and then be "forcibly deported" from the United States.

The criminal division of the Department of Justice in now studying the records in the case.

Brother Called No. 1 Red

Eisler is the brother of Gerhard Eisler, described by the FBI as a No. 1 Communist in the United States, who was recently convicted of perjury and contempt of Congress.

The squat, bald 49-year-old composer, who sought throughout the hearing to represent himself only as an anti-Nazi refugee, issued a statement after posting his bond:

"I recall when I read in a French paper in 1933 that Hitler had put a price on my head and the heads of other progressive artists, I was not surprised.

"But I never dreamed I'd experience the same thing in the United States, a country I love."

VA Will Begin Limited Research With Isotopes

The Veterans Administration announced yesterday that it will begin a "limited research program" into the use of radioactive isotopes in the diagnosis and treatment of its patients.

Five prominent physicians, some of them former scientists in the atom bomb project, have been constituted as a Central Advisory Committee on policy and planning the use of the "tracer" atoms.

The program, under the direction of Dr. George M. Lyon, will be installed in six of the VA hospitals this year, and perhaps extended next year.

The same system of university participation in treatment and training which applies to the VA's medical program in each hospital will obtain for the radioisotope research, Dr. Lyon said.

Arrest of Dutch Aboard U. S. Plane Develops Row

Batavia, Java, Oct. 6 (AP).—A major incident appeared developing tonight over the Republican arrest of three members of the Dutch military who, were on a United States Navy plane forced down Saturday in Republican territory in west Java.

A statement issued by the Republic said the Dutchmen were considered prisoners of war.

A top Republican official said that if they are released, it will be because of a request from Walter A. Foote, United States consul general.

The Republican press at Jogjakarta sharply criticized the propriety of the presence of Dutch army men in an American plane supposedly o na mission checking up on cease-fire violations.

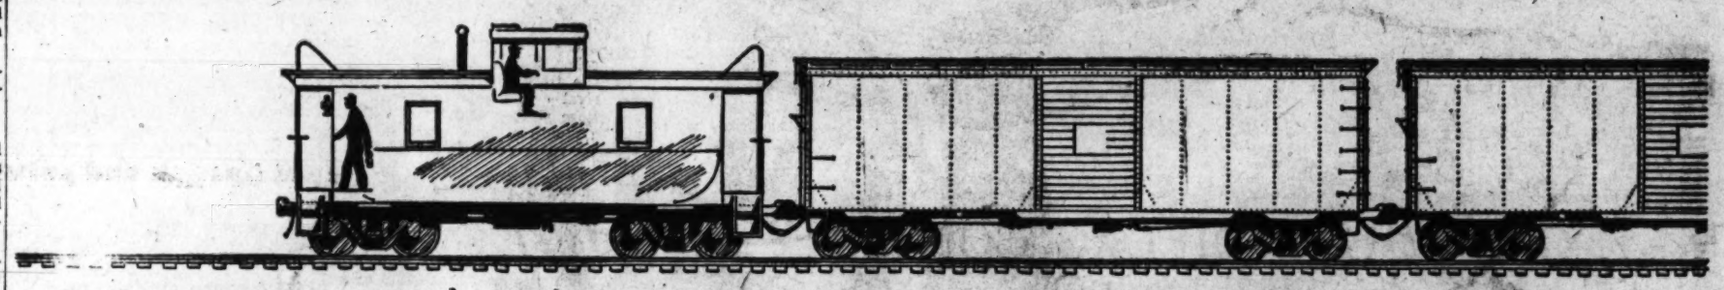
HERE IS A 4-UNIT DIESEL FREIGHT LOCOMOTIVE NOW OPERATED BY 2 MEN (1 ENGINEER AND 1 FIREMAN)


2 BRAKEMEN AND 1 CONDUCTOR COMPLETE THE CREW OF THIS TRAIN [One brakeman usually rides in the locomotive in freight service]

—BUT THE UNION LEADERS WANT 15 EXTRA "SITTERS" ON THIS TRAIN . . . 3 ENGINEERS, 3 FIREMEN, 6 BRAKEMEN AND 3 CONDUCTORS . . . TO GO ALONG FOR THE RIDE AT FULL PAY!

It's to your interest to know about this proposed feather-bedding!

For sheer feather-bedding, this mock work proposal takes the cake. But it is only one of 44 "rules" demands filed by the leaders of the operating unions. If all these demands were granted, they would cost the railroads an added BILLION DOLLARS A YEAR.

Increased Wages, Too

On top of these "rules" changes, the leaders of the operating unions have filed an additional demand for a wage increase of over 30 per cent. If granted, this would be an added cost to the railroads of $400,000,000 a year.

$468,000,000 To Non-Operating Employes

In addition to this, an Arbitration Board has just granted a wage increase of 15½ cents an hour to the million employes represented by the 17 non-operating unions. This will cost the railroads $468,000,000 a year.

Where Will The Money Come From?

Where will all the money come from to pay these increases? They total several times as much as the railroads made in 1946 or will make in 1947.

In July, the railroads filed an application for increased freight rates to close the gap which then existed between wage and material costs, and railroad revenues. Since then it has been necessary, because of further increases in wages and material costs, to supplement that petition and to ask for an additional freight rate increase. No other course is open.

Railroads Do Not Run For Employes Alone

Railroads are operated for the benefit of not one, but several groups—shippers, passengers, employes, stockholders, and the general public. The interest of all must be served—and that cannot be done unless the railroads can operate efficiently and economically, and unless they are allowed to earn sufficient revenue to provide the kind of transportation service this country MUST HAVE.

Epilogue

Well, what seems to have been settled early last week, is settled now, and for another time the New York Yankees are indubitably champions of the world. It is, of course, evident that they have not the qualities of the world champion Yankees of the 1920's, nor those of the 1930's, but they are quite good enough for such a world as this one. The seven-game series in which they finally obtained the mastery of the Brooklyn Dodgers was the strangest and eeriest ever known. Long before it was finished, it was assured of historical preeminence in the matter of wild pitches, passed balls, bases on balls, total playing hours, the number of players employed, and the number of pitchers necessary to retire a side. Yet the last three games were full of melodrama in the best tradition of the Grand Guignol. No doubt it became in the end a wasteful distraction from the serious work of the world, but when we think of what is likely to replace it on the front pages, we are almost sorry there won't be any more of it for another year.

Greenland's Future

Speculation that the United States may seek to purchase Greenland from Denmark has arisen out of the prolonged negotiations between the two countries over the future status of this island-continent of the Arctic. Greenland has long been recognized as an essential link in the continent's chain of defenses. After World War I this country declared that Greenland lay within the protection of the Monroe Doctrine. During World War II it became necessary for the United States to occupy the island to make certain that it would not fall into the hands of the Nazis. Denmark had already been invaded; but an agreement arrived at through the Danish Minister in Washington assigned to the United States the responsibility of protecting the island "until the present danger to the peace and security of the American Continent have passed." In any future war of widespread scope similar American protection of Greenland would be inevitable.

The United States did have some claims to Greenland in former years, and these were stoutly maintained by Admiral Peary, the Arctic explorer. But those claims have long since been relinquished. In April, 1941, when the agreement for protection of Greenland was made, President Roosevelt went so far as to say that "we propose to make sure that when the German invasion of Denmark has ended, Greenland will remain a Danish colony." This should be sufficient indication that whatever settlement is now made will be by agreement between the two countries on the basis of their respective interests and the interests of Greenland itself. But the reasons for selling Greenland to us now are as strong as were the reasons for selling us the Virgin Islands in 1917 to strengthen the defenses of the Panama Canal. And the most important of these reasons is that only the United States can defend the island and prevent it from becoming a menace to peace.

Air Freight

The broad investigation of air freight rates ordered by the Civil Aeronautics Board is no less than the situation warrants. The air freight tariffs now charged by both certificated and noncertificated carriers are scarcely less complicated or less jumbled than the rate structure which plagues rail shippers. However, the CAB's decision to permit lower freight rates applied for by three certificated airlines to go into effect before the investigation takes place seems to us to destroy some of the value of the probe. For the independent freight lines have a considerable point, in our opinion, in their complaint that the new undercutting tariffs of the certificated carriers may force them to the wall before a fair rate schedule can be determined.

The independents, we think, have a claim of considerable merit in that they built much of the present air freight market. It is a euphemism for the CAB to imply that the independents, most of them operated by veterans with war-surplus planes, got a headstart merely because the facilities of existing carriers were overtaxed after the war. Old-line airlines had devoted themselves to passengers, mail and express. The newcomers, with imagination and ingenuity, saw possibilities which had not been tapped and thus developed a lucrative business. A good case could be made that they forced the older airlines into the freight business.

The charge made by the independents that the new rate of the three certificated carriers is possible only because of governmental subsidies in airmail pay may not be strictly true. Airmail rates vary, and some may consist only of cost plus a reasonable profit. But the current situation as to airline earnings is hardly such as to call for a reduction in freight rates. Indeed, several certificated airlines have applied for higher airmail pay, while others are talking about higher passenger fares. We suspect that, regardless of whether mail pay amounts to an actual subsidy, lowered freight rates would not be possible without it. At the same time the story of American business proves that the way to develop business success is to lower costs to the consumer.

We hope that the CAB investigation will encompass the whole relationship between the regular airlines and those devoted to hauling freight. We have no particular brief for the independents. The certificated carriers have a point in their contention that the nonscheduled carriers are not subject to regulations as to safety and maintenance. The cure for this is to grant the independents certificates of convenience and necessity. We hope that this will be done in time for them to remain in business. They are needed as a spur. What we are most interested in seeing is an end to any idea that may be prevalent that existing certificates entitle the holders to an automatic franchise on the air freight business. It will be a sorry day for American enterprise when all new ventures must be strangled because someone else has preempted the field with Government help.

Returns The Revolution

When the Comintern, or Third Internationale, was wound up by order of its executive committee, on May 22, 1943, we headed our comment "Goes The Revolution!" and took the announcement at face value. Looking back, there was every reason for what, in the light of events, appears to be naivete. The Comintern, which was established in 1919, had failed. Nationalism seemed to be in the saddle in Moscow. The glory and patriotism of the ancient regime, always in the marrow of the Russian people, appeared to have possessed the men in the Kremlin. In the life-and-death struggle with Germany, Russia had partners, with whom she was working in closer and closer association. No, we don't think that in this light, or in the light of the well-defined pattern of revolutions, we were entirely batblind.

Some writers persist in the view that the liquidation was really meant as a contribution to the strengthening of the bonds between America and Russia, and not as a sop. Those who still hold to this opinion insist that there have always been two schools of thought in the Kremlin: the cooperationists and the revolutionists; and that after VE-Day the latter took the place of the former in guiding Soviet policy. Unfortunately, as we now see it, the evidence is against them, favoring the view that the revolutionaries were always on top, and that in 1943 the Kremlin was merely pulling the wool over its Allies' eyes.

There was, for instance, the evidence given before the Royal Commission in Canada which in 1946 investigated Soviet spy operations in Canada. Gouzenko's testimony was the most damaging: "The announcement of the dissolution of the Comintern was probably the greatest farce of the Communists in recent years. Only the name was liquidated, with the object of reassuring public opinion in the democratic countries. Actually the Comintern exists and continues its work, because the Soviet leaders have never relinquished the idea of establishing a Communist dictatorship throughout the world." The Royal Commission added laconically: "The documents which Gouzenko brought with him corroborate this testimony." It is difficult in the light of this and other developments to think that the 1943 liquidation was anything but bogus.

But why, then, is another Internationale set up with such a fanfare? Our own view is that the announcement is merely a tactical move in the "cold war" that the Soviet Union is waging against the West—that it was aimed at European waverers who can be frightened into the Soviet fold by ghosts that Moscow conjures up as American warmongerers. These old revolutionaries are masters of propaganda. It was from them that Goebbels got the idea that people, the sophisticated as well as the ignorant and the half-baked, will believe anything if it is dinned into their ears long and stridently enough—at least for enough time to be conquered. We must expect that the new theme song about American imperialism and American warmongering will have some effect if not effectively countered.

In the exuberance of the 1919 opportunity Zinoviev predicted that within a year all Europe would be a Soviet state. But he and his fellows grossly overestimated the "class solidarity" of workers and peasants outside Russia. In China, for instance, Borodin saw a reversion to the old pattern in the southern provinces as soon as the armies of the Soviet-directed Kuomintang had passed through on the drive from Canton to the north. And when the Kuomintang armies got to the Yangtze, a coup by Chiang Kai-shek got rid of the Soviet advisers and officers on whom he had theretofore leaned, and they had to flee, ingloriously, overland to Moscow.

Precisely the same temptation to ruin and rule has again intoxicated the ruling caste in the Kremlin. This time the Soviet Union is more strategically favored as the headquarters and promoters of world revolution. It is the dominating power in Europe, there are half a dozen lesser Sovietized capitals outside Russia, and the tentacles of Soviet power are spread everywhere. The vitality is lacking in Europe to combat the virus alone. The Kremlin knows it. It also knows that the United States with its economic sinews can turn the convalescence of Europe into resuscitation.

The new announcement shows, in our opinion, a dread lest American aid and the Marshall Plan succeed in putting heart into Europe. It should persuade our Government to develop steam back of the aid program. More than that, it should fill the American people as well as the Government with a sense of personal responsibility. In these crucial days we should all live our lives and run our businesses as if we were operating a Marshall Plan of our own—to the end that the same rejection will greet the Fourth (?) Internationale as it did the Third. There will be no "hunger for slavery" when men's minds are released from obsession with the thought of where the next meal is coming from.

Lee's Command

We do not agree with some of the objections now being made that the Army investigation of Gen. John C. H. Lee's command in Italy constitutes a whitewash. It should be apparent to anyone who had read the painstaking report of Maj. Gen. Ira T. Wyche, along with the comments of his superiors, General Eisenhower and Secretary of the Army Royall, that the probe was far from that. The report noted a number of serious deficiencies which supposedly are being corrected. As we see it, the principal defect in the investigation is that it was carried out by too much "brass." In other words, if the Army had used a few sergeants to interview enlisted men, it might have received different answers to the questions asked.

Any such answers, however, hardly could have altered the tenor of the report. For it is obvious, we think, that Columnist Robert C. Ruark, whose stories caused the furor in the first place, based them on the gripes of malcontents rather than on an objective appraisal of the command. The fact that Mr. Ruark spent only a few hours in Leghorn, the locale of much of the alleged abuse he described, is a damning indictment. Even in the most charitable view, this is irresponsible journalism, and it is a pity that there is no professional organization before which he could be called to book. One need not be a partisan of the Army line or unaware of the tendency of brass hats to cover up to see what damage such irresponsibility does—to recruiting, to morale, to the respect in which the Army is held, and to the prestige of American journalism.

In one respect we are not impressed by the report. That is in the effort to portray General Lee as a benign, religious old gentleman, if not exactly spartan in his habits, at least well within the sanction of "regulations." All this is irrelevant. General Lee's reputation—and it is unlovely among GIs and former GIs—had to come from somewhere. Any man who lacks the respect of his men, as General Lee does, must be chalked up as a bad commander.

Wheat And Whisky

"When the distilling industry meets here next Wednesday," Charles Luckman declared in his radio address Sunday night, "we will call upon them . . . to declare a 60-day emergency shutdown at the earliest possible moment . . . We expect the brewers to meet again next week and at that time to make new proposals for substantially increased savings." The registered distillers and the brewers of the United States, according to figures furnished by responsible officials of the Department of Agriculture, used 145,300,000 bushels of grains during the year ending July 1, 1947. This amounts to nearly half again as much as the entire amount of the export deficit in grains—100 million bushels—that the food conservation drive is designed to meet.

There are important seasonal variations in the use of grains by the distilling and brewing industries. It is in the winter and spring that their consumption is at its peak. One cannot accurately take for granted, to be sure, that their consumption of grains this year would be the same as last year. Nevertheless, it is scarcely too much to say that if they ceased operations completely for the next six months, they would come very close indeed to releasing the entire amount of grain needed to meet our export quota.

So far as the distilling industry is concerned, we believe that just such a complete shutdown should be demanded. What the industry produces is an agreeable luxury; but it is a luxury which the American people could readily forego for the sake of feeding fellow human beings overseas. It is probable, moreover, that a shutdown of the distilleries would impose a deprivation upon neither the industry nor the public. "The distillers in this country," President Truman said on Sunday, "have on hand huge stocks of distilled spirits." The President's demand for a 60-day shutdown seems to us inadequate. The shutdown should continue without question for the duration of the emergency.

Conservation in this form would have special utility in respect of the cost of living. For the greater the savings that can be effected in terms of nonessential uses, the more foodstuffs there will be available for essential consumption; and this will mean, of course, reduced pressure upon prices. There is reason to suppose, in addition, that distillers have bought grain futures in considerable volume. A shutdown of their plants would lead them to disgorge what they have accumulated. In view of the nature of their business and the magnitude of the profits they have reaped in recent years, we think that the distilling industry would be well-advised not to resist this program but to embrace it with good will.

KILDEER

Running over the new ploughed field, the empty pasture;
your legs twinkling
as they catch the light, or spreading your long, graceful wings
in sudden flight,
must you forever gossip with the wind,
or tattle to the grass, the sun-warmed clover?
Oh, noisy, chattering plover, do you not ever tire
of your own song,
threading the meadows,
skipping the fields along?

"Rent Boost"

Your editorial of October 2 concerning Rent Administrator Cogswell's recent order, and the position of the Washington Chapter, Americans for Democratic Action, obscures the basic issue.

The essential point of the dispute is whether landlords should get some form of blanket relief, or whether they should be obliged to apply individually to the rent administrator for adjustments in rent ceilings. The latter method has been the one employed in the District, and in the rest of the country, ever since rent controls were imposed.

Why, then, did Mr. Cogswell feel impelled to issue his order? The law did not require him to do so. Nor was there any pressure, on the record, from the owners of these smaller structures. Mr. Cogswell admitted to us that the number of applications from this group of landlords was comparatively light. We thought the conclusion was obvious that these landlords felt no imperative need for relief; those who need it have only to ask for it in order to get it.

You say Mr. Cogswell's job is to be fair to landlords as well as to tenants, and landlords' cost of living has also gone up, and they should not be forced to remain on the same income they had in 1941. Yet, in the same editorial you refer, without challenge, to the figures we cited showing that the net income of landlords of individual dwellings and small apartments is now, on the average, well over 1939 levels. Is that the kind of situation that justifies passing on to tenants the entire tax increase?

Nevertheless, it is Mr. Cogswell's basic assumption—more evident in his decisions in individual adjustment cases than in his recent general order—that the entire increase in operating costs should be passed on to tenants, wholly without regard to any increase in the landlord's net income. The Washington Chapter of Americans for Democratic Action believes indeed that such an approach is discriminatory and unfair to tenants.

Food Saving Plans

The 140 million Americans who have been placed squarely behind the eight-ball insofar as responsibility for voluntary conservation of food is concerned are certainly entitled to a simple formula to guide them. Just a few answers from Mr. Luckman's Food Committee would help enormously. For instance, what maximum qualities of the following foods should be consumed per week per person in order to reach our conservation goal: meat, grade A, grain fed; meat, grades B, C, etc., range fed; lunch and breakfast meats; butter; other fats; eggs; bread; milk; sugar, etc.?

Give us a rough idea; at least. The Government experts should have enough figures on present food production to issue monthly "Suggested Voluntary Food Consumption Charts" to a conscientious but confused Nation.

The American people are not only willing, but they are eager to make this food conservation program a success. All we want to know is—what do they want us to do, and how can we do it? It's that simple!

We won't get to first base with President Truman asking the public to eat less and limit their garbage. This is sophomoric stuff.

Let the President put the White House diet on 2500 or 3000 calories. I will match him. Then let him put the Army and Navy on a fair caloric diet.

I once ate at a luncheon club that published a special menu showing the calories of each item. This is a good suggestion for restaurants and hotels.

If we're going to conserve food, let's go to it on a scientific basis. I propose the organization of "Calories Inc." and that all members wear lapel buttons until western Europe gets enough to eat.

Immigration Employes

For nearly six years several hundred employes of the Immigration and Naturalization Service have been exiled from Washington. They were promised that when the war was over they would return to their homes in Washington. Relying on this promise they have lived in crowded temporary quarters in Philadelphia. Many have kept their homes in Washington and have commuted weekly for the entire time.

This summer they were notified that the agency would return to Washington by December 1. Many gave their landlords notice that they intended to vacate. Those who owned houses in Washington gave their tenants notice that they would reoccupy their homes. Some of the veterans exercised their rights under the GI bill and bought homes for their families in the Washington area. Many of the men moved their families to Washington for the start of the school year.

Now the Office of Public Buildings and Grounds states that the move back to Washington has been indefinitely postponed. As for reasons it is most vague. There is an article in a leading magazine this month upon the harsh treatment our Government accords its hard-working, faithful employes. Nothing to which it refers can approach, however, the injustice visited upon these employes of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

"Full Circle"

Your editorial of October 2 pointing out the essential points concerning the United States' objection to the election of Ukraine to the Security Council of the U. N. is exceedingly well taken.

The strength of the United States position in the world is based on our genuine willingness to be fair—to do the right thing—to stand for principle and equity. When our representatives agreed to the admission of the Ukraine, it was in good faith regardless of the circumstances of the matter. It does us little good to enter objections at this time which should have been presented then or not at all. We agreed to it. We must stand by that agreement.

Whatever the weakness of the U. N. and regardless of the Russian attitudes, it is also essential for all of us to recognize that our position can only be maintained by liberal and equitable leadership and by the voluntary recognition of this leadership on the part of the nations of the world. Our own position must be to lead and to stand for those principles which we and the overwhelming majority of other peoples believe are right, in which case—in peace or war—we can honestly depend upon the moral and material support of our fellow nations on this globe.

Free Speech

Free speech should not be a license to distort truth. On the other hand, free speech is a two-way street. If others are to enjoy this high privilege they should be prepared to grant the same privilege. Otherwise, we may be at a disadvantage.

America is prepared to accept this challenge on the usual basis, but not to give a license to foreigners who fail to grant us an opportunity of rebuttal.

Free speech should mean free speech for both sides, and Uncle Sam has a right to tell those who are not citizens and stockholders in this great country that they can't abuse what belongs to us.

"Restrictive Covenants"

Perhaps no other local organization has watched the development of the Tushin case with more interest than has the Jewish Community Council of Washington. This council, which is authorized by its 60-odd constituent member organizations to act as their representative in matters affecting the local Jewish community, has long recognized the pernicious growth in the use of the restrictive covenant and the so-called "gentleman's agreement" by means of which certain citizens are denied the right to own or enjoy property because of their race or religion.

It is, therefore, a source of deep gratification that your excellent paper on September 18 carried a timely and well-reasoned editorial on the strange brand of Americanism which led nine Bannockburn residents into a legal action which sought to deprive a man of his home, because he happened to be a Jew.

It is to be hoped that certain real estate developers, and such others who are responsible for the creation and inclusion of restrictive covenants, will come to a decision that in the future they will refrain from a practice which certainly divides and weakens our Nation by perpetuating and giving social approval to individual prejudices. Even if, in some rare case, a personal financial benefit were to accrue as a result of this cunning appeal to snobbery, it certainly would be found wanting in the balance when weighed against the tensions and intolerances which these covenants create.

It is our belief that many members of the local real estate industry would be willing and even anxious to discontinue this unwholesome practice once they realized that it was opposed as undemocratic and unfair by almost every fair-minded person who has given a moment's thought to the matter. What has happened in the Tushin case should convince them. Here was an aroused public opinion, encouraged and defined by your news stories and editorial, which resulted in inducing the nine plaintiffs to withdraw from a most unseemly and most un-American attempt to oust Mr. Tushin from his home. Now, it appears to us, the job is one for the real estate industry itself to inaugurate and carry through by means of education and self-discipline.

Certainly, too, the demise of the restrictive covenant should be eagerly sought by all organizations, churches, patriotic societies, veterans' organizations and others who are concerned with building a strong America, undivided and indivisible.

The sentiments of the Jewish Community Council would not be completely recorded if it failed to call attention to the most heartening element of this particular case, namely, that the overwhelming majority of the Bannockburn property owners refused to have anything to do with the action against Mr. Tushin. It is to their credit—and by projection, to the credit of most Americans everywhere—that they did not become unwitting tools for the destruction of the American way of life.

President, Jewish Community Council of Washington.

Calling Washington

Surplus People

ROME, Italy.—No capital in Europe has the same quality of tragedy that Rome has. From the pit of 1944 and '45 the Italians have climbed up so far, and now the imminent threat is that they will be pushed back down again.

As a people they have an extraordinary vitality, and they have demonstrated during the past two years a will to work that has few parallels in Europe. Industrial production has risen from only about 20 per cent immediately after the war to 75 per cent, and agriculture is even closer to the prewar level.

Younger men in the government of Premier Alcide de Gasperi have contributed a great deal to this recovery. Men such as Ferrari Agradi, secretary of the Inter-Ministerial Committee on Reconstruction, have worked tirelessly to help get production going again and to cut the strangling embrace of an ancient bureaucracy.

But if shipments of wheat and coal are cut off or drastically curtailed for very long, then the whole effort will have gone for nothing. The progress made thus far can be undone so quickly. And it will be twice as hard to retrieve the gains that are lost.

The deterioration already begun can be checked only if the United States acts quickly. Even if the rate of deterioration should become much more rapid, the likelihood is not for any dramatic or sweeping development.

WHEN MEMBERS of the De Gasperi government talk privately, they say that anything as spectacular as a revolution is almost out of the question. There will be rioting. Law and order will break down in many places. The fabric of society will begin to fray apart.

In distant America this will appear to be just more of the same kind of trouble that Europe goes in for. But the long-term effect can be far more serious than a revolution which would awaken American opinion to the goal of world communism.

Unfortunately certain conditions inherited from the past—in some instances from the remote past—are an invitation to Communist exploitation. In northern Italy there is the largest population of migrant farm workers in Europe. At planting and harvest seasons they move from one big estate to another.

Among these landless families, newly organized in trade unions, communism has its deepest hold. One of the paradoxes here is that Communist strength is much more nearly in the agricultural than in the industrial population.

Many of the large land holdings go back to feudal times. Significantly, in a recent address, the Pope talked about the need for a redistribution of wealth when riches accumulate in a few hands.

But one condition in Italy overshadows every effort to restore a reasonable prosperity. That is the birth rate. With many farming areas worn out through centuries of over cultivation, particularly in the south, this country cannot support a population of 45 million.

YET ITALY'S population goes right on increasing at a rate greater than in any country of western Europe. The high birth rate owes little or nothing to Mussolini's noisy propaganda for large families during the years of fascism. In the Italian peasant is a primitive drive for children. If a young couple does not have a child after a year of marriage, they feel deeply humiliated and the community treats them with scorn or pity.

When United States immigration policy underwent an abrupt shift after World War I, Italy, like Greece, found itself with a surplus of young men. That growing surplus has pressed down the Italian living standard from year to year.

To solve this long-term problem, there must be a real community of interest in western Europe. Argentina has agreed to take a limited number of Italian immigrants. So has Czechoslovakia. The big difficulty, however, is that both countries want to get skilled mechanics so badly needed in Italy.

The real surplus is in farm labor. Politicians of left and right agree that a minimum of one million Italians must go. France in turn needs at least a million farm laborers to get full productivity.

But Italians are reluctant to emigrate to France. They feel that the conditions of life might be even more difficult there than at home. Consequently the emigration out of Italy this year will be small.

If the Marshall Plan is to work, then the solution of such basic problems as this one must be undertaken. They must be attacked with far more vigor and imagination than anyone in Europe has begun to apply. They cannot be solved within the narrow framework of national boundaries guarded by the jealous nationalism which has been the curse of this continent.

Half A Loaf

Speaking of saving precious grains, why doesn't some enterprising baker put half a loaf of bread on market. Working men and women living alone as well as employed couples, eating no more than two meals a day at home, can seldom gnaw their way through the average pound loaf of bread before it gets stale or molds. And if there is no desire to eat bread pudding every three days with monotonous regularity, the obvious result is shocking waste.

I am sure that the overwhelming majority of solitary homemakers and light-eating twosomes would relish the chance to "eat less" and "waste less" if they could only buy less.

Working With Russia

By Sumner Welles

Chance In Palestine Settlement

I EXPRESSED my belief last week that we were all too often merely seeking a showdown with Russia in the United Nations, and all too seldom trying to find constructive solutions upon which agreements might be possible.

The Palestine settlement offers both the Soviet Union and this country an opportunity to cooperate through the United Nations in laying foundations for world peace.

The Soviet government has stated categorically that partition was a solution it was prepared to support. While the United States has hedged and trimmed it has at least officially announced that it gives "great weight" to the recommendation for partition proposed by the majority of the United Nation's special committee.

The majority report of this committee offers the one form of Palestine solution which is today practicable. There is ground for ligitimate difference of opinion as to many details. But in its main lines the majority report is wise and just.

THE SETTLEMENT proposed need not be considered a means of finally divorcing Jews and Arabs. The division of each of the new Jewish and Arab states into three noncontiguous zones should, on the contrary, encourage the two nationalities ultimately to perfect many methods of political and economic collaboration.

The solution which the Assembly must now recommend can only be successfully achieved if every step is controlled by the United Nations agencies.

The Jewish state would contain 550,000 Jews and at least 500,000 Arabs. During the proposed two-year transition period 8250 Jewish immigrants would be permitted each month to enter the new state. A large police force would be indispensable. The United Nations cannot stultify itself by adopting a solution which it is not prepared effectively to implement, and through which the peoples of Palestine would not be assured of security.

The threats of such Arab leaders as Mr. El-Khoury of Syria and Jamal-El-Husseini, that the Arabs will drench the Holy Land in blood in "the sacred right of self-defense," are arrant bluster and need not be taken too seriously. It would be paradoxical for the Arab states to defy the United Nations upon whose authority and strength their own independence and prosperity so largely depend.

IN THE STATEMENT of British policy, made to the Assembly by Mr. Creech-Jones there is one point which merits indorsement: that is his insistence that "any recommendations made by the General Assembly should be accompanied by a clear definition of the means by which they are to be carried out."

The two chief requirements will be money and military force.

The administration of Palestine has been costing the British some 140 million dollars yearly. Until Palestine is independent, administrative expenditures will certainly be no less. The solution of the Palestine problem is an obligation incumbent upon all members of the United Nations. The financial burdens should be proportionally shared by all.

The nature of the police force to be employed after Britain's withdrawal raises a far more difficult question.

The Security Council has as yet no armed force at its disposal. Under Article 11 of the Charter the General Assembly is empowered to refer to the Security Council any question relating to the maintenance of international peace and security "on which action is necessary." Under Article 43 the Security Council is authorized to call upon all members of the United Nations "in accordance with a special agreement or agreements," for "armed forces . . . for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security."

In the present instance the Assembly is, therefore, entitled to obtain from the Security Council the action needed to enforce its decision with regard to Palestine, and all member nations are obligated to make available through special agreements such forces as the Security Council may require.

IF THE United States sends troops to Palestine the Soviet Union will regard such action as a threat to its security. If the Soviet Union insists upon sending its own military forces the Western powers will be equally suspicious. There could be no more encouraging development than for both governments to agree that none of the major powers should send military contingents to Palestine to undertake the police work needed.

Could this agreement be reached the Security Council should call upon such countries as Sweden, Czechoslovakia, Belgium, Brazil and Argentina, none of whom can be suspected of having any selfish interest in Palestine, to join in establishing under the Council's staff committee a military force capable of maintaining order.

At a moment when the United Nations must assert its authority if it is to retain public confidence, the question of Palestine offers it a chance to show that it can promptly and justly solve a most dangerous controversy.

But the Palestine question will not be settled unless the Soviet Union and the United States join in supporting the solution decided upon by the Assembly.

If the two governments are willing to cooperate in this settlement they will also thereby automatically create an atmosphere far more propitious to the adjustment of the widening differences that now divide them than the poisonous fog of propaganda, insults and vituperation in which they are presently enshrouded. The surest way toward cooperation is to start cooperating.

New Comintern

By Barnet Nover

Russia's War On The West

THERE ARE very powerful humanitarian reasons why the American people should respond wholeheartedly and unreservedly to President Truman's plea that they conserve food to make possible increased shipments to the hunger areas of western Europe.

NOVER

But let us make no mistake about it. The political reasons for doing so are fully as compelling as the humanitarian.

During the recent shooting war Americans did not hesitate to make all necessary sacrifices to achieve victory. They realized that what was at stake was nothing less than our national existence, our way of life, the fate of civilization itself.

THE SHOOTING ended more than two years ago. The war did not end. We are today in the midst of a struggle as far-reaching and as fateful as the war of 1939-45.

It is a war being waged with other means than bullets, bayonets and bombs. It is no less, on that account, a struggle for survival.

If there were any lingering doubts on that score they should be resolved by the action of Russia in setting up a new streamlined Communist Internationale to serve as the spearpoint of Moscow's assault on the west.

The new Comintern differs in a number of outward particulars from the international Communist organization that was dissolved with so much fanfare in 1943, in what was then widely interpreted as a gesture of appeasement to Russia's allies.

The old Comintern consisted of some 30-odd Communist parties, each of them merely a "section" of the Internationale and possessing no autonomy of their own.

The new body is limited in its membership to the Communist parties of Russia, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary, Poland, Czechoslovakia, France and Italy.

Ostensibly these constituent parties remain separate and independent bodies, although pledged to cooperation within the framework of the new organization.

The headquarters of the new Comintern will not be Moscow (which proved a great embarrassment to the Soviet government) but Belgrade. It will bear the innocent-sounding name of "Information Bureau."

ACTUALLY, the general purpose of the new Comintern will be precisely the same as was the purpose of the old; namely, to defend Russia's changing interests outside the borders of the Soviet Union, to play Russia's game, to serve as Russia's Trojan Horse.

The specific and immediate purpose of the new Comintern will be, as the resolution of the nine parties drawn up at their recent meeting in Poland makes clear, to wage ideological and political warfare against the United States, Great Britain, France, the Socialist parties of Western Europe. The Marshall Plan in particular is to be the object of Communist attack.

This is no new aim. Since the meeting in Paris early in July, when Vyacheslav Molotov announced the Soviet government's unwillingness to participate in the reconstruction of Europe on a cooperative basis, it has been Russia's aim to prevent the Marshall Plan from becoming a reality.

With the setting up of the Belgrade Internationale the struggle enters a decisive phase.

IT IS INTERESTING to note that of the 18 who signed the manifesto creating the new Comintern, three—A. A. Zhdanov of Russia, Ana Pauker of Romania and Jacques Duclos of France—were signers of the act dissolving the old Comintern.

Other prominent Communists who participated in the latter development are missing from the new list. Among these are Georgi Dimitrov, now Premier, and Vasil Kolarov, now chief of state of Bulgaria; Klement Gottwald, now Premier of Czechoslovakia; Maurice Thorez, leader of the French Communist Party; Palmiro Togliatti, leader of the Italian Communist Party.

Nearly all of the signers of the manifesto setting up the new Comintern belong to the more hard-bitten, direct-action wing of the Communist movement. This is true of such men as Luigi Longo of Italy, Etienne Fajon of France and Edward Kardelj of Yugoslavia, to name but three.

Collectively they represent the new shock troops which Russia is throwing into the field in a struggle whose significance Moscow is making no effort to minimize.

The gage of battle has now been hurled down. We can delay taking it up only to our own terrible injury.

With reckless bravado, which may be the product of the conviction that we shall not move fast enough or far enough and may not move at all, Moscow has laid its cards face up on the table. Heaven help us if we assume that it is all a bluff or if, ignoring the evidence of our senses, we do not recognize that they are very high cards, indeed.

Reduction of Migratory Labor Urged as Overall National Aim

(Second of a Series)

By Agnes E. Meyer

Not until the need arose to increase agricultural production during the war years were our Federal and State governments fully aroused to the importance and the shameful neglect of the agricultural migrant.

The Department of Agriculture, after five years of intelligent effort, has done a magnificent job of increasing production, through conservation of the workers' time and energy. The Farm Security Administration built 48 model camps in different parts of the country, equipped with clinics, recreation halls and child care services; the Federal Farm Extension Service cooperated with State and county agricultural officials to insure better utilization of labor by coordinating the movements of the migrants with harvest dates.

From year to year the growing efficiency of the program was reflected in the State reports. In North Carolina, for example, the migrants last year worked 57 per cent, this year 84 per cent of the total days spent in that State. The methods used by the Extension Service will be clarified when I explain their repercussions in New York State.

Labor Imported

In 1943 the Federal Government yielded to the demand of big growers for the importation of foreign labor from Mexico, Jamaica and the Bahamas to handle the increased war production. As the Federal Government had to make contracts with foreign governments for the transportation, health and working conditions of this labor, it was discovered that decent standards for the protection of seasonal agricultural workers were not impossible of attainment. It cost our Government about $250 to bring a foreign worker to this country and return him in good condition. The total cost of the foreign labor program from May, 1943, to December 31, 1947, was 84 million dollars. During the same period the Federal Government's extension program for the protection and utilization of our own migrant workers was only two million dollars.

Many of the officials involved in working out both programs agree that a more liberal expenditure of money in recruiting, routing and protecting domestic agricultural labor would have made these foreign importations unnecessary. It would have brought more permanent benefits to our own workers and agricultural production while saving the Government millions of dollars. But the experiment paid some dividends to our own migrants. The foreign labor program forced the cooperative endeavor of Federal, State and local officials as many different services for health, welfare and housing were called into the picture. It also educated the producers to the importance of cooperative endeavor as they were not allowed to make private contracts with the foreign governments. There still remain 1832 foreign laborers in New York scattered over 16 different counties. Throughout the Nation there are 33,562 such workers left in 36 different States. Of these 24,562 are Mexicans, half of whom are in California. This foreign labor has spoiled many growers as it was deposited at their doorsteps free of charge and without expenditure of effort on their part. Also it was out and out slave labor, which had to produce or suffer repatriation. As a result, there is a good deal of pressure from certain big interests to continue the foreign program. This is thoroughly unpatriotic, as utilization has become the real problem now that unemployment is begining to appear among the migrants.

Veterans Change Picture

What aggravated the whole problem is that our unbalanced economy is constantly increasing the migratory streams. More and more of our people are being starved off their small land holdings and forced through sheer poverty to leave home and take to the road to gain a mere subsistence. I saw these economic and psychological forces at work last year in east Kentucky. Before the war this population clung to the overworked mountain farms or went into the local mines. Now the returned veterans are unwilling to do either the one or the other.

"There is nothing to do in east Kentucky and too many people to do it," some of the men said to me. Two years ago for the first time 30,000 farmers left east Kentucky to work in the blue grass section of their own State or in the potato fields of New Jersey and Maine. This enforced exodus is taking place in most of our submarginal agricultural areas.

Our over-all aim must be the reduction of seasonal labor to a minimum if we are to stabilize our too-fluid civilization. For the evil effects of a migratory, rootless, homeless existence can readily be felt in the psychology that is typical of all migratory labor, whether agricultural or industrial, whether white or black, whether of Mexican or native American origin. When I first began traveling from camp to camp in New York State, I was surprised by the suspicious, inarticulate, aggressive yet defensive attitude of these Negroes, so unlike the usual outgoing gentle quality of that race. Then suddenly I realized that here was the same mentality I had encountered so often during my war travels among the white industrial migrants in the trailer camps of new production centers. These American displaced persons are just as aloof and defensive with each other as with a stranger. In Pascagoula, Miss., I remember sitting quietly with one couple in front of their expensive trailer for three silent hours in an attempt to solve the reasons for this unwholesome mental isolationism. On either side of us not 4 feet away were other families. None of them ever spoke to each other because they trust nobody. "The people who live in houses think we are vermin" was the explanation with which my patience was rewarded.

Treated as Outcasts

The migrant is treated like an outcast consciously and unconsciously by every community from one end of our country to the other. Make no mistake about it, they resent this bitterly. We cannot afford to continue our indifference toward these homeless wanderers who know that they are deprived of every basic American right of citizenship, educational opportunity, the possibility of self-help, and of the most elementary standards for healthful, constructive living.

Yet some migratory labor may always be necessary in our agricultural production. In New York State migratory workers are only 14 per cent of the total seasonal workers. Yet that percentage is vital to the large bean, potato and tomato crops that are easily planted and laboriously harvested. If migrants must continue to perform an essential service to the Nation's economy, they should not be obliged to sacrifice their economic security, and a decent standard of living. Yet that is the prospect they face once more now that they are to be deprived of the protection given them during the war by the Federal Extension Service.

USES Lacks Machinery

To be sure, the United States Employment Service has been given the future responsibility for recruitment and placement of farm labor. But this agency has no interstate machinery. It has no trained personnel and no field workers that know the ever-changing farm problems or the eccentricities of migrant psychology. Nor has the United States Employment Service any legal authority to carry on the welfare measures of the Extension Service, its educational program on housing and rest centers, its medical services, child care and nursery schools. In most of the agricultural areas the United States Employment Service has but one office to four or five counties to replace the network of Federal-State-county officials of the Extension Service, its information scouts, county agents, and liaison farm labor assistants whom the migrants have learned to know and trust. It took the Extension Service three years of hard work, scientific research and practical experimentation before its program clicked. The United States Employment Service with its industrially minded office workers, its jealousy of State autonomy, its inability to keep in touch with the kaleidoscope changes of weather, harvest dates and fluid labor supply, cannot do otherwise than fail in a problem it is not equipped to meet.

That is why the achievements as well as the limitations and failures of the New York State program for the routing and protection of migrant workers are of Nation-wide interest and significance.

(Tomorrow Mrs. Meyer tells what New York State is doing to meet the problem of migrant workers.)

Chile Arrests 30 as Reds in Mine Strike

Santiago, Chile, Oct. 6 (AP).—The government, cracking down in the two-day strike of 18,000 coal miners, which it termed a Communist attempt to choke the nation's economy, today arrested 30 alleged Communists on charges of preventing miners from returning to work.

The arrests came after the government sent military planes to reinforce troops and warships in the conception coal zone, on Chile's southern coast.

The government said those arrested would be transported to the extreme southern part of Chile.

Although the government had ordered the miners to return to work this morning, a spokesman said that up to noon they had maintained their strike under "Communist agitation."

Unless the workers return, may be conscripted into the army and ordered back to the pits.

Cox Gave Essen Children Most Of His Clothes

Representative Cox (D., Ga.) was so touched by the plight of children in Essen, Germany, while he was there last month that he gave them his overcoat, scarf and practically everything he had in his suitcases, a fellow Congressman said today.

The story was related by Representative Gathings (D., Ark.), also in a House Agriculture subcommittee group which spent five weeks studying European food needs.

"Ine Essen," Gathings said, "children came up to us and begged for food. We even gave them fhat we could—chicolates, gum, soap and even cigarettes, not to smoke, but because they can trade cigarettes for food.

"Gene was so touched he gave them evreything he could. He practically had nothing left—I think that's why he came home early."

Gathings and several other committee members flew back over the weekend.

4 Night Raiding Bandits Get $7000 At Country Club

Ambler, Pa., Oct. 6 (AP).—Four soft-voiced gunman made off with $7700 today in a bold raid on the fashionable Oak Terrace Country Club.

The robbers walked in about 1 a. m., awakened the manager, and forced him to open the safe. They rounded up 10 residents, seven men and three women, and took $700 from their pockets. The robbers trussed them with telephone wires, neckties and bathrobe cords.

Then they drove away in the club station wagon.

Draper Urges Freedom for Japs in Business

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Undersecretary of the Army William H. Draper, jr., urged yesterday that Japanese businessmen be allowed to travel in America and other countries to drum up trade and speed Japan's economic recovery.

Draper

Success of the Marshall Plan and a general world economic revival, he declared, is going to depend to a large extent upon restoration of German and Japanese foreign trade.

Until the Reich and the Japs can pay for food imports grown by their neighbors by exporting manufactured goods, Western Europe and the Far East will suffer and American taxpayers will be burdened by overseas aid, said the Army official.

Recently Back From Japan

Draper was economic adviser to Gen. Lucius Clay, American commander in Germany, until appointed recently to his present post. He has just returned from a visit to Japan and Korea.

A proposal to permit Jap merchants and trade missions to visit America and other countries is now under discussion before the Far Eastern Commission, he disclosed. Principal Far Eastern powers, including Russia, sit on this policy-forming group for Japan.

Businessmen from America and other nations have just been admitted to Japan and have encountered the expected difficulties in getting started.

Under the best of conditions, Draper declared, it will take from two to three years for Japan to become self-supporting. At present she is growing 80 to 85 per cent of the food consumed, but this is based on a very low—1226 calorie—diet and the population is increasing nearly 2 per cent a year.

Draper said the dependence on American food production puts the world in a "dangerous position." Noting the low corn crop this year, he added:

"If we had a real drought and crops fail, we'll certainly feed ourselves first. That would bring world disaster."

The Army official urged that other countries employ or develop additional sources of fertilizers and otherwise expand their ability to produce food.

Korea's rice crop is good this year, and it is hoped that the country will soon be self-supporting. At present, 40,000 tons of food are shipped in each month.

Draper said he was very much impressed with the overall job being done in Japan. He attributed this as largely due to the fact there is a single military government administering a uniform policy, in contrast to the division of ideology and authority in Germany, Austria and Korea.

Lane Hints At Efficiency Drive in Md.

Baltimore, Oct. 6 (AP).—Governor Lane hinted tonight that he was not satisfied that all departments of the State were operating as efficiently and economically as he would like.

In a speech before the Maryland Classified Employes' Association here he declared:

"Every department and every agency of this State should and must function with the same degree of efficiency and economy that is to be found in any well-conducted business."

Then he added:

"I propose to see that it does. That cannot be done overnight, but I'll get to it."

Lane said the Maryland procedure of allowing the governor to appoint administrative heads of departments is a "sound State policy."

"A governor," he said, "on whom the ultimate responsibility rests for the efficiency of the overall administration of State government ought to be able to select persons of his own choice . . . to fill key positions in his administration."

He declared his administrative heads "have the right to expect and, if need be, demand the loyalty and cooperation" of their staffs—most of whom are classified under the merit system.

Lane said the State "offers its employes every protection in job and economic security."

"You, in return, owe to the State your best," he told the State workers.

Rickenbacker To Speak at First Aviation Session

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, president and general manager of Eastern Airlines, will be the speaker at a general membership meeting of the Board of Trade at 8 p. m. October 15 at the Hotel Statler.

The theme of this first of six membership meetings planned for 1947-48 will be "Washington—a Growing Aviation Center," President John A. Reilly announced. Leaders in military, commercial and private aviation of Greater Washington have been invited to attend.

A report on Skyway No. 1 between Washington and Los Angeles, a sound color film on new United States Navy jet fighters, and a talk on the Community Chest campaign by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Edward H. Foley, jr. are also on the program.

Vishinsky's Refusal To Debate Revealed

New York, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt disclosed today that Soviet Vice Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky turned down her invitation to a radio debate on Russia's "warmongering" charges against the United States.

In a Nation-wide broadcast opening the United Nations workshop programs, Mrs. Roosevelt revealed that Vishinsky and Yugoslavia Foreign Minister Stanoje Simic, who also was invited to appear as a guest, had refused because of the "extreme pressure of work."

Trend Uneven With Selected Stocks Rising

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—Selected stocks continued the advance shift in today's market while many leaders were more or less depressed by profit cashing on the lengthy rise.

Operations still were mostly in the hands of professionals who covered short commitments here and there and bid for favorites on the idea that the fall rally was far from concluded. Grain futures stumbled on the move for boosted margins and the Administration's for the "eat less" campaign.

Dealings slowed after a fairly active start. The ticker tape virtualy halted as the deciding game of the World's Series got under way. The pace again quickened in the final hour when prices stiffened in various departments. The close was notably irregular. Transfers of 930,000 shares compared with 1,270,000 last Friday.

Further Increase In Car Loadings Predicted by AAR

The Association of American Railroads said yesterday that freight car loadings are expected to show a further substantial advance in the last three months of 1947.

They have recently been running close to the 17-year highs established in October 1946.

Based on estimates sent to the AAR by the 13 shippers advisory boards scattered across the country, the expectation is that the current fourth quarter will see a 6.2 per cent rise over loadings in the same period a year ago.

These estimates indicate that the 32 principal commodities will require the loading of 8,077,063 cars this quarter against 7,606,832 cars loaded in the last quarter of 1946.

All of the advisory boards forecast increases except those for the Midwest and Trans-Missouri-Kansas regions which foresaw inconsequential decreases of 0.7 and 0.1 per cent respectively.

These percentage increases are indicated elsewhere:

Great Lakes 5 per cent; Ohio Valley 8.5; Northwest 4.9; Southeast 7.6; Southwest 8.9; New England 5.5; Atlantic States 3; Allegheny 10.9; Central Western 7.9; Pacific Coast 15.3; and Pacific Northwest 4.8.

Another Winter Of Gas Shortages, AGA Head Warns

Cleveland, Oct. 6 (AP).—The retiring president of the American Gas Association conceded today the public had another winter of gas shortages in store and asked the industry to arrange proper conservation measures.

In a talk before the opening session of AGA's twenty-ninth annual convention, R. H. Hargrove, president of the Texas Eastern Transmission Corp., said a survey a year ago showed his industry had built up a good record with the public.

"Since that survey was made," he said, "a winter of gas shortages has intervened and the industry has been buffeted about in the public press and has offered some loss of prestige because it has not told its side of the story as promptly, completely and effectively as it should have done.

"We are faced with a similar situation this winter and for the same reasons."

Hargrove said there was no shortage of gas but a shortage of distribution and production facilities.

"Positive action should not await actual suffering," he declared, "but conservation measures should be taken beforehand and through proper publicity our customers prepared for such contingency."

MINDING YOUR BUSINESS

The Railroads Need a Lift

UNLIKE MOST of us, the members of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the owners of railroad stocks and bonds can't take the railroads for granted as a public convenience which goes from here to there and back again. The railroads must deliver earning power as well as people and chattels.

Otherwise, holders of New York Central common or Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific 4½s will decide rail investments are an unworthy risk. The roads will not be able to raise money to buy much-needed gondola and hopper cars to carry coal or freight cars for wheat and other commodities. Nor will they be able to carry through on the long-overdue modernization of passenger trains.

Livingston

That's why the pending request for an interim 10 per cent freight rate boost and a 27 per cent permanent freight rate boost, now before the ICC, is more than a matter of profit-and-loss bookkeeping. As the railroads see it, they're going to be 240 million dollars in the red in 1948 unless they get some relief. And that does not take account of the soon-to-be-granted wage boost to railroad trainmen and locomotive engineers and firemen.

The rails are not traffic poor. Freight revenues are higher than they've ever been, and the railroads are not forecasting any great decline in 1948. But expenses have shot up from three billion dollars in 1939 to nearly seven billions. It costs more for coal, fuel, oil, rails, ties, and, of course, man-hours of work.

THE PROBLEM before the ICC is basic. In setting rates, the commission also establishes, in effect, the postwar earning power of railroads. Yet the ICC must also recognize that an increase in freight rates will add to the price of goods, which will add to the cost of living, which, in turn, will put that much more pressure on labor leaders and workers to demand another round of wage increases.

The same problem came up during and after the last war. Just before the Armistice, the ICC granted a 25 per cent increase in freight rates as well as adjustments in passenger fares. In August, 1920, railroad rates went up again—33 per cent on freight, 20 per cent on passenger fares. Then expenses began to decline. And a year later the commission reduced freight rates on livestock and grain. And a year after that, the commission ordered a 10 per cent freight cut. These rates remained in effect for almost 10 years—until January 4, 1932.

The rails, along with eight million persons unemployed, were still in a depression in 1939. Their net income amounted to only 200 million dollars—that as against 330 million in 1921 (coming out of the First World War) and 900 million in 1929. Thirty per cent of the railroad mileage was operated by receivers. But as wartime traffic shot up, as earnings rose again to 1929 levels, one by one roads got out of receivers' hands. At the end of last year, receivership mileage had been halved—to 15 per cent.

YET RAILROAD earnings, at 288 million dollars, were below the 1921 level. And 29 major roads, operating 16 per cent of the mileage, reported deficits. These included the New York Central, Pennsylvania, New Haven. Eastern roads are having harder going than those in the West or South. Consequence: Railroad stocks are down 77 per cent from their 1929 highs, as against only 34 per cent for industrial stocks. Many investors feel that costs rise faster than the ICC acts.

Crucial point in the ICC analysis is whether the railroads have overestimated the rise in costs and underestimated the volume of traffic for next year. As the rails see it, costs will be up about 750 million over 1946—without any allowance for the 300-million-dollar probable rise in pay to the trainmen and engineers. As an offset, revenues will be up about 400 million.

A rail system which can deliver quality service would probably require a postwar earning power of at least 600 million dollars a year. That would be twice as much as last year but one third less than in either 1929 or 1942. And it would be the average for the ten years 1921 through 1930. Since the earnings of most corporations are well ahead of 1929, that's not setting too high a sight. Fact is that the rails today get less than 2 per cent of corporate profits as against 11 per cent in 1929. In order to achieve such an income, however, the rails need a 20 per cent boost in freight rates—at least. Meanwhile, an interim boost is in order.

Macy's Head Urges Price Reductions

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—Jack I. Straus, president of R. H. Macy & Co., department store operators, said today there must be a general downward readjustment of prices "before a sustained period of prosperity is possible."

In the annual report to stockholders, disclosing an 11 per cent gain in sales in the last year but a drop of more than two million dollars in net income, Straus said:

"The quality of merchandise has greatly improved during the year. Procurement is more satisfactory than a year ago, although quantities are still inadequate, particularly in medium and lower price lines . . ."

Net retail sales in the year ended August 2 totaled $285,082,754, compared with $255,662,451 in the preceding year. Net income of $7,071,059 was equal to $3.70 a common share and compared with net of $9,334,826, or $5.02 a share, in the previous period.

Oil Output Up 8.1%

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—The Oil Forum said today that world output of petroleum for the first seven months of the year was 8.1 per cent higher than the corresponding period in 1946.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Oct. 6 (AP).—Grains tumbled during the early dealings on the Board of Trade today but recovered a good part of their declines before the final bell.

Heavy selling swept into the pits at the start. Government efforts to conserve grains by cutting down on domestic uses, plus a presidential request to hike margins, caused nervous selling. Wheat dropped as much as 10 cents, corn 7 cents and oats 6 cents.

The liquidation did not last long. Heavy purchases of December wheat were made by Southwestern cash grain houses. That steadied wheat and other grains followed the bread cereal's leadership. Toward the close a rally developed and final prices were near the day's best.

Wheat ended 1 to 5½ lower than last Saturday, December 2.80⅛@2.79¾, corn was 1½ lower to ⅛ higher, December 2.21¾@2.21, and oats were 1 to 2¾ lower, December 2.04⅛.

President Truman last night asked distillers to shut down production for 60 days. Trade authorities estimated this would accomplish a saving of about 10 million bushels of grain, mostly corn—about five million bushels a month. Exports run between 30 million and 40 million bushels a month.

Ghost Writer of Driver's Test Pays $25 in Earthly Coin

A "ghost-written" driver's license examination cost the applicant and the ghost $25 each yesterday.

James Settles, 28, of 415 H st. nw., who holds a license, and Carl Lenyear, 30, of 505 New Jersey ave. nw., who wants to, appeared at the motor vehicle bureau yesterday morning.

Settles, a police handwriting expert concluded, made out the application for Lenyear and took the written test. In the space for physical description on the application, Settles didn't do a very good job. At least it wasn't Lenyear he described.

When Lenyear appeared before Inspector Thomas E. West for his driving test, West noted the physical discrepancy.

Handwriting Expert Ira Gullickson settled the issue to Judge Nadine Gallagher's satisfaction despite denials by the defendants. They paid $25 fines for misrepresentation. Police said the Board of Revocation and Review will determine whether Settles joins Lenyear in needing a license.

Woodward's Finance Plan Faces Fight

By J. A. Livingston

Opposition has developed to the recently announced plan of Woodward & Lothrop to retire its 7 per cent preferred stock.

At least two holders of common shares, Melvin Behrend of the Shoreham Hotel and former owner of Behrend's Department Store and Robert Eichholz, an attorney, who resides at 1327 33d st. nw., expect to attack the plan at a general meeting scheduled for October 20.

Behrend owns 225 shares and his family owns an additional 225 shares. For several years he has asked the company to redeem the preferred shares and substitute a security with a "yield in keeping with the times." Eichholz owns 150 shares.

Committee Formed

Representatives of three Washington investment firms have constituted themselves an informal committee, representing common stockholders, to confer with the Woodward & Lothrop management about the proposed plan. As one member of the committee put it, "We are not prepared to announce our opposition yet. We want to explore the plan to see if there are any special reasons for setting it up the way it is—reasons that we do not understand."

Members of the committee are Y. E. Booker of Alex. Brown & Sons; James M. Johnston of Johnston, Lemon & Co., and William W. Mackall of Mackall & Coe. All three firms participated in the underwriting and sale of 27,500 common shares from the estate of Donald Woodward in 1943.

When criticism of the proposed plan developed, they felt called upon—as underwriters—to present to the management the point of view of minority common shareholders. The committee and the management may meet this week.

Plan Lower Dividend

The plan calls for the retirement of two million dollars (20,000 shares) of 7 per cent preferred stock now outstanding by issuing $2,500,000 (25,000) shares of new 4 per cent preferred stock. Each old share of stock would receive one and one quarter shares of new stock.

Behrend and Eichholz feel that is unnecessary, inasmuch as the preferred is callable at $105 a share on 30 days notice.

At least one investment firm—feels that Woodward & Lothrop would have no difficulty selling a new 4 per cent preferred at or near par. In that case, the present preferred stock could be retired with a new $2,100,000 issue of preferred, on which annual dividend costs would amount to only $84,000, as against $100,000 under the proposed plan.

Investment firms have approached the company from time to time with plans to retire the preferred stock.

In drawing up the present plan, the officers and trustees consulted their accountants, lawyers, and commercial bankers, but, according to Andrew Parker, president, did not discuss the proposal with investment firms.

Bid Price Drops to 105

The investment caliber of the company's prefered is indicated by the price for the stock in the open market. This year, notwithstanding the prospect of a call at 105, the preferred stock has sold as high as 132. Yesterday the bid price dropped to 105, with none offered. Brokers point out that it is not actively traded in. It is a comparatively small issue, closely held.

A. Lothrop Luttrell, executive vice president of Woodward & Lothrop, said that the plan was deliberately designed to "tempt preferred shareholders to accept." The provisions covering the preferred forbid the issuance of additional preferred without the consent of a majority of the holders. Thus, present preferred stockholders could vote down any unacceptable proposal, unless called first.

Officers and trustees felt a responsibility to see that preferred shareholders were reasonably treated, since the market value has been $130; the call price is $105. Therefore, there would be a market loss of more than 20 per cent. The opposed common shareholders aver that that has nothing to do with the case; that the officers are required to "go by the market and act accordingly in the interest of the company and all the stockholders."

Tax Liability in Call

An outright call of the stock might result in large tax liabilities for some of the orignal holders of the preferred stock. The stock was issued as a stock divdend, and if the company redeemed it at $105, the result would be a major capital gain, on which taxes would have to be paid. Therefore, an exchange offer of a new preferred was decided on instead. Lawyers felt that the substitution of one security for another would eliminate any capital gain liability.

In keeping with its custom, Woodward & Lothrop is not soliciting proxies. At past meetings, the management has been able to muster a majority of 250,000 shares of common in support of its policies. Asked whether they thought they would have enough votes to carry through the plan at the meeting, both Parker and Luttrell agreed that you can never "tell in advance what will happen at a stockholders' meeting." Both classes of stock must approve the proposal.

Visible Grain Supply

Chicago, Oct. 6 (AP).—Visible supply of wheat increased 33,000 bushels to 139,109,000 bushels this week, the Chicago Board of Trade reported today. Corn increased 706,000 to 7,431,000 bushels, oats increased 1,471,000 to 24,554,000, rye increased 258,000 to 3,372,000, barley increased 1,721,000 to 22,371,000 and soybeans decreased 66,000 to 98,000.

One on the Aisle—

Ken Maynard Forgets

Western Star Is Also a Composer

By Richard L. Coe

"I TRIED RETIRING once," says Ken Maynard, star of more horse operas than he can remember, "but I couldn't stand it. After two months I'd had all of doing nothing that I ever want to have.

"Yes," continues the burly Texan, whose official age is 52, "everyone asks about Tarzan, though asks isn't quite the word. Everywhere I go I find people who know more about me than I do. They bring up sequences in movies that I don't even remember, but I guess I was in 'em.

"The original Tarzan died two years ago at the age of 25. For the last four years I've had the Tarzan that's with me at Uline's now.

"More movies? Yes, I'm going to make some this winter after the rodeo closes. I used to produce my own, but that's getting to be too much of a headache nowadays. Costs have sky-rocketed and they're going up from one month to the next. Nope, I'd rather not have to produce.

"I used to do all my own pictures, though, produce, write, direct and compose the music. Didn't know I was a composer, eh? Well, things got to the point where if you used one song in different locales for the same picture you'd have to pay the $100 fee each time.

"So I got to writing my own; you know, snipping a bit of melody from a cowboy song or a hymn and elaborating on it. I can play any stringed instrument. Matter of fact, I was the first Western star to make a sound picture and to sing in one. I still have my guitar, but I don't sing.

"They were hard to get used to, those sound pictures, because you had to speak directly into the mike in those early sound days. It made for all sorts of funny situations when you had to look at a guy and speak into a mike above you." Here the veteran cowboy actor imitated a veteran cowboy actor.

—And Mrs. Maynard

Maynard's a tall barrel of a guy whose gabardine city clothes don't suggest Texas boots and a broad-brimmed hat. He's in town with his wife for Uline's "Rodeo and Thrill Circus" until Sunday night. They think they'll probably live in their resplendant trailer. "It's more comfortable than most hotels I know of," says Ken.

How does Mrs. Maynard live up to the rodeo grind? Fine. She once was a circus aerialist, enjoys the horseback riding they do at their California ranch and has the same sort of firm handshake as her husband. They've been out on the road for eight months now, with time out to visit Ken's mother in Indiana.

"Come on over and see the show," says Ken. "Tarzan and I aren't the only ones in it, you know. They've got an 1800-pound bull out there called Big Syd. If you can ride him for 10 seconds, you'll get a thousand bucks in cash."

We told Ken we'd be over and would do anything for moey. Anything, we thought, except clamber aboard Big Syd. Still, for a thousand bucks, and only 10 seconds.

TICKETS for the Children's Theater subscribers will be along shortly. The Children's Musuem of Washington reports they have not yet received them from the printing company, but that there's no cause for the subscribers to be alarmed. The season's first play by the Clare Tree Major company will be "Robin Hood" for two performances in Lisner Auditorium Saturday morning and afternoon, October 18. Temporary headquarters for the museum, by the way, are now in the "Trailercoach Museum," Western ave., at Military rd. nw. Phone Decatur 4339. So, if your tickets haven't arrived, subscribers, don't worry. They'll be along soon.

"GOING NATIVE" graduates are again on the Capitol stage, among the group in "Slaughter on Tenth Avenue" by the Lee Henderson Dancers. The G. N. grads are: Pete Christakos, Theadaugh Thaxton, Richard Greenfield and Norma Sykes.

"METTERNICH" will be Catholic University's third in its Playwriting Festival. This play by Victoria Kuhn, who wrote "The King Is Dead," concentrates on the Austrian chancellor's struggle to adjust his personal beliefs to his political actions. The subscription books are now open for the final five plays on the festival schedule. Write the University Theater or call Michigan 6000, extention 186.

TODAY'S ARRIVAL is the Tagliavini film version of Rossini's comic opera, "The Barber of Seville." Deems Taylor is the English commentator. Performances at Constitution Hall at 8:40 nightly through Friday.

TOMORROW: Richard L. Coe reviews the first American performance of "The Winslow Boy," one of London's top successes of last season.

Havana Slum Is 'Not the Type'

Hollywood.—There is one shot in "To the Ends of the Earth," Columbia's Dick Powell - Signe Hasso picture, for which authenticity had to be set aside.

The scene shows Dick Powell in a tenement room in Havana. But actual slum dwellings in the Cuban capital couldn't be used, because they are all in an old, aristocratic part of the city, in which marble tables, marble fireplaces and velour drapes are still in evidence. Otherwise, they're squalid enough.

So the scene was shot on a Hollywood sound stage, where tenements can be tenements.

Wearing of the Green

Rita Hayworth again wears a dress of "Hayworth green" in the forthcoming Technicolor musical fantasy, "Down to Earth," as she has done in all her films since "Cover Girl." 'Hayworth green," a shade between emerald and jungle green, brings Rita luck.

Day's Work

Susan Peters, who is returning to the screen for the first time since her hunting accident in "The Sign of the Ram," had the picture's shooting schedule arranged so that she was before the camera only between ten a. m. and four-thirty p. m.

Finally Gets Break

After appearing in 263 pictures without winning a girl, Richard Lane finally is allowed to march toward the altar in "Devil Ship," his 264th film.

VALERIE WHITE, leading lady of the London production "The Winslow Boy," which opened a two-week run last night at the National. Terence Rattigan's play won last season's Ellen Terry award for London's finest drama of the year

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Byrnes Didn't Like Way French Worked

By Drew Pearson

When popular French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault came to Washington last week he saw his old friend Jimmy Byrnes for the first time since the much-loved Jimmy retired as Secretary of State. Their meeting recalled to Bidault a conversation he had with Byrnes about a year before in Paris.

Bidault

Apropos of loans to France, Byrnes had complained:

"Mr. Minister, the trouble with France is that Frenchmen won't work."

Bidault challenged this statement and Byrnes went on to explain:

"Look at your barber shops. They're not open all day Monday."

"Mr. Secretary," replied the French Foreign Minister, "we Frenchmen like to be clean-shaven at least one day a week and for that reason our barber shops stay open all day Sunday. That is why you couldn't get a shave on Monday."

Note—In 1937 Byrnes went to Europe as a delegate to the Inter-Parliamentary Union. Stopping in France en route he was impressed with the fact that the French closed their stores and offices at 11:30 a. m. Saturday and didn't open them again until Tuesday. In Germany, on the other hand, everyone was working hard, with large placards proclaiming "Joy in Work." Byrnes went back and reported to FDR that in the eventual European war, France would be defeated.

"When I come back to this earth in a reincarnation," says Jimmy Byrnes, "I would like to be a Parisian. They are such delightful people." But he also thinks no people can recover from war without working a full week.

Vanishing Servants

Credit conscientious Kenneth Royall, Secretary of the Army, for hammering at one of the worst weaknesses of Government today—the need of all-round, able manpower.

Ever since the war ended, it has been increasingly difficult for the Government to draft good men for important positions. During the war, men from every walk of life volunteered to come to Washington, but now—though in some respects the emergency is almost as serious—Government agencies literally have to get down on their knees and beg qualified executives to come to Washington.

Speaking in his home State of North Carolina last week, Secretary Royall pointed to this difficulty, and urged not only businessmen, but labor and farm leaders to give part of their time to the Government.

In the opinion of Washington observers, Royall put his finger on one of the most important factors in Government. No organization is any better than the men in it.

Trumanesque Simplicity

Historians will never describe Harry Truman as having the great radio appeal of his predecessor in the White House. But sometimes when the President speaks impromptu of is with only a few people, he becomes almost Lincolnesque in the simplicity of his eloquence.

The other day a group of Gold Star Mothers went in to see the President. They had only a few minutes with him, and grandmotherly Mrs. Mathilda Burling of Richmond Hill, N. Y., the national president, scurried among her charges, trying to shush them along.

The President shook hands with each, then spoke briefly. No stenographer was present, and his words will never be recorded for history. However, there was something about the way he concluded the last impromptu line which caught in the throats of his visitors.

"What we are all trying to do," he said, "is to make it unnecessary for us ever again to have any Gold Star Mothers."

Some of the ladies wept. Afterward, the President cheered them up by inviting them outside to pose with him for a picture.

Navy Censorship

The Navy's attempt to censor part of the news of the Neptunis Rex initiation ceremony when the battleship Missouri crossed the Equator has brought to light another Equator-crossing ceremony which was completely censored aboard the airplane carrier Wasp.

Strangely enough, this jamboree occurred in September, 1944, during the height of the Japanese war. The Wasp had just finished bombing Manila Bay, but for some reason best known to himself, its commander, Capt. W. J. Slattery, decided that it was the appropriate time to initiate those who had never before crossed the Equator.

Captain Slattery is the same officer, who, as commander of the Banana River (Fla.) Air Base, used Navy planes so lavishly to stage a clambake on the Bahamas to which he invited high-ranking admirals up and down the coast.

In 1944, despite the fact that the Wasp was in the red-hot Philippine battle area, the sister carrier Hornet was ordered to take over the guard, and irresponsibility reigned supreme on the Wasp. According to a report by one officer aboard the ship:

"The initiation ceremonies were none other than brutal. Several planes were damaged beyond use and shoved over the side. The morning after the ceremony, I was informed by the assistant medical officer and flight surgeon R. B. Collins that 40 bomber pilots were unfit for duty."

One officer, Comdr. Elliott Earl, engineer officer of the Wasp, was so badly beaten up that he was hospitalized for several weeks thereafter.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—A week ago they were saying with sarcasm that this was a nickel World Series and worth every penny of it, and of course it was a jibe at both the Yankees and Dodgers. And at the end of three games the wonder was how either club ever got into the series. The harsher critics were saying neither club was capable of winning it.

POVICH

Sure, the Yankees and Dodgers are probably the two worst clubs that ever got into a World Series, even including the war year. But they staged the gol-darndest, wildest, most exciting World Series since the whole madness started 44 years ago, and if the experts didn't like it from a critical point of view, the fans loved it—and the fans outnumber the experts one million to one.

The pitching, by and large, was horrible. Of the 14 pitchers who started in the seven games, only three went the route. The Dodgers averaged more than four pitchers a game. In the sixth contest, the Yankees used six. It was bad pitching, but bad pitching makes for excitement. Everything starts with the ball that is hit. Then, it is you get action, a fielder in motion, guys on the bases, a slide, perhaps, and always a throw, good or bad. It was a customers' series.

BURT SHOTTON'S Dodgers were probably the strangest pennant winner ever to get into a World Series. How they ever won the National League pennant by nine games, with what Shotton that to work with, is baffling. He had one dependable pitcher, Ralph Branca, and Relief Man Hugh Casey, and there wasn't another outstanding ball player on his club, yet the Dodgers won ball games, including three in the series.

But what the Dodgers do have was easily discernible in the series. They have that zest for the battle that makes for the big hit by the .250 hitter, and the base running of Jackie Robinson, Pete Reiser, Pee Wee Reese and Eddie Stanky—when they get on base. Shotton should be the manager of the year on the basis of making the World Series go seven games with his collection of average guys with enthusiasm.

Eddie Stanky—he was my favorite ball player in the series. He can't hit, he's no great fielder, not much of an arm, and he's slow. But he's a winning ball player. He draws those walks, gets the good hit sometimes, steals a base for you, and never surrenders. He put Johnny Lindell out of the series when Big Lindell tried to give him the works on a slide into second base. Little Stanky knows how to use his knees.

JACKIE ROBINSON had a good series. He hit .260, and was robbed a couple of times in the seventh game. He stole a couple of bases and he had the Yankees jittery when he got on. The wonder is that, as a converted second baseman, he's as clever a first baseman as he is. The Yankees had respect for Robinson.

Today's seventh game was a nice one for Bucky Harris, aside from the fact that the Yankees won it and collected the extra $2000 per man that goes to the champions. Harris, who was being hailed as some kind of a genius after his managerial strategems had helped the Yankees win the first two games, was actually looking bad as the seventh game opened.

Harris' handling of his pitchers in the sixth game was being roundly berated, and they were saying that following his early success in the series, he was gamble-crazy. But today he yanked Frank Shea at the proper spot, and his fourth-inning strategy when the Yanks wiped out the Dodgers' 2-1 lead with two runs of their own, was eminently successful if not according to the book.

ORDINARILY YOU don't yank a pitcher for a pinch hitter in the fourth inning when you're trailing, 2-1, and particularly when there are two out, but that's what Harris did with Bevens. With the Yankees having two on base, Harris called on Bobby Brown to hit, and that was a justifiable choice. In three previous pinch-hitting appearances, Brown had hit safely twice and walked once, and today he rewarded Harris with a pinch two-bagger that just about blew the ball game open.

After Harris got that 3-2 lead in the fourth, he went back to the book. Sure enough, his new pitcher was Joe Page, who merely is the best relief pitcher in the business despite his defeat of the day before. Page made Harris look like a bright boy indeed by shutting out the Dodgers on one hit after the fourth inning.

This was the series that broke money records, attendance records, pitching records, pinch-hitting records, gase on balls records, and the mass record for fluttering hearts. It was the series in which the team that was held to one hit, won a ball game. That ought to tab it.

Pick the Grid Winners

Win a free trip to the Army-Navy game.

The Washington Post today begins a Pick-the-Winner football contest. It will be conducted weekly and continue through the week of November 16-22.

There will be six winners in all. At the end of the contest, each winner will receive two (2) tickets to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia, November 29. The entire party of twelve (12) persons will be guests of The Washington Post on an all-expenses-paid trip to Philadelphia for the big game.

There also will be weekly prizes.

Send in your entries as early as possible each week.

Yanks Beat Brooks, 5-2, to Win Series as Page and Brown Star

play of the game. With Miksis on first, Bruce Edwards lashed a fierce drive at Rizzuto who grabbed the ball on a difficult hop to his right and routed it to Stirnweiss at second to start a death-dealing double play.

Harris Leads Cheers

As Stirnweiss' relay plunked into the mitt of First Baseman George McQuinn to write finis to this series, the occupants of the Yankees' bench rushed for Page and caught him up in a back-slapping mob scene, led by Manager Bucky Harris.

But it was the Dodgers who first threatened to win the World Series championship. With typical contempt for the betting odds against them they knocked Frank Shea out of the box and took a 2-0 lead today. But as in every game of the series, the Brooklyn pitching went sour.

Even big Hugh Casey, who found his way into the game in the seventh inning for his fifth consecutive appearance in the series, was nicked for a Yankee run. He was the fifth Brooklyn pitcher.

Shea Surprise Starter

Manager Harris, in a last-minute switch after announcing that Bill Bevens would be his starting pitcher, turned to Shea, conqueror of the Dodgers in the first and fifth games. Shea, with one day's rest, was white meat for the battling Brooklyns.

Eddie Stanky saluted him with a single to right to open the game, but Shea scraped past a scoreless first inning when his battery mate, Aaron Robinson, threw out Stanky in a stealing attempt and later threw out Peewee Reese when he tried to steal after drawing a walk.

But the Dodgers got to Shea in the second. Gene Hermanski rapped a triple into the right field corner with two out and Bruce Edwards lashed a fierce single between the legs of Third baseman Bill Johnson for the first run. When Carl Furillo followed with a single through the box that moved Edwards to second, Harris trifled with Shea no longer.

Bevens Greeted Warmly

In walked Bill Bevens, the pitcher who had lost a one-hit game to the Dodgers on Friday, and he was no immediate success. Little Johnny Jorgensen tagged him for a two-bagger that bounced into the rightfield stands and the Dodgers had a 2-0 lead, one out and men on second and third.

They missed a bigger inning. Pitcher Hal Gregg bounced to Rizzuto who cut Furillo down at homeplate, and Stanky popped up, and it was the last time the Dodgers had a man as far as second base in the ball game. They were held to two hits from that point.

Gregg's wildness got him in trouble in the Yankees' half of the third, and they came up with a run. He walked McQuinn with one out, and after Johnson popped up, he walked Robinson. Little Rizzuto then struck the big blow of the inning. It was a drive over third base for a single that Jorgensen failed to smother and McQuinn romped home.

Gregg opened the fourth inning smartly by slipping a third strike past George McQuinn, but again with two out he faltered. He walked Johnson and got the second out by fanning Robinson on a called strike. Rizzuto fanned Yankee hopes anew with a single to left, and then Harris made a decision.

The Yankee manager, even with two out, and the game in the early innings, lifted Pitcher Bevens for a pinch hitter, the left-handed Bobby Brown, and it was a wise choice. Brown lashed a double into left field, scored Johnson from second with the tying run, and moved Rizzuto to third.

That finished Gregg and Hank Behrman moved in to pitch for Brooklyn. He got it quickly. He walked Stirnweiss to fill the bases, and the dangerous Tommy Henrich got the second Yankee run of the inning home on a single to right. Expert handling of the hit by Dixie Walker caused Brown, on second, to be content with one base.

Yogi Berra made a bid to drive in two more Yankee runs in the inning, but Jackie Robinson robbed him of a hit. Scrambling far to his right for Berra's searing swat, Robinson came up with it and tossed to Behrman at first base for the third out.

Pinch-hitter Comes Through

Behrman was still pitching in the sixth when the Yankees exploited him for a run that upped their slender lead to 4-2. Rizzuto laid down a bunt and Behrman mangled it, though Rizzuto was given credit for a hit. The next thing Rizzuto did was steal second on a wide throw by Edwards. Page fanned, but when Behrman walked Stirweiss, Manager Burt Shotton moved the left-handed Joe Hatten in as his pitcher to face Tommy Henrich.

Hatten got away with his first task, fanning Henrich, but now Bucky Harris played percentages and yanked the left-handed hitting Berra for pinch-hitter Al Clark. On the first pitch Clark singled to center to score Rizzuto. That was all for Hatten. Rex Barney finally got the side out on DiMaggio's towering fly to Furillo.

Even Yankee rooters had a cheer for Casey when he moved in as Broklyn's pitcher in the seventh for his sixth appearance in this series. The fellow was figuring in his fifth game in a row.

Casey Yields a Run

But the cheers were even louder when with one out Bill Johnson bashed a tremendous triple over Eddie Mikis' head in left center. Robinson scored him with a deep fly to Mikis and the Yanks had a 5-2 lead.

And with Page it was safe. All he did was pitch hitles ball for four innings and then give the Dodgers a lone, futile hit in the ninth. Page was the rarity in this series—a pitcher who could hold a lead, and victory must have been sweet to the big left hander who had been charged with the Yankees' defeat the day before.

Haight Tackles the Diet

Walter "The Man" Haight always accepts a challenge. Even to tackling Lucia Brown's 101day diet for men, which starts Wednesday in the women's section of The Washington Post.

No, Walter will NOT desert his male readers. He'll let you know on the sports page in a day-by-day account who is winning, Haight or the diet.

Southworth Gets $250,000

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—Lou Perini, president of the Boston Braves, announced tonight that Billy Southworth had been given a new five-year contract to manage the National Leaguers at a salary "something in excess of $250,000."

Southworth was working on a three-year contract but that was torn up and the new one is effective beginning 1948 and for the following five years, Perini said, adding:

"This is one of the most important announcements in the history of the Boston Braves.

"A month ago I suoke to Southworth in Cincinnati and told him I wanted to sit down and talk to him about a contract for the next five years."

Perini said Southworth had just inked the new contract tonight, but admitted that the announcement was timed to coincide with the ed of the World Series "because we hope to have the same thing—a pennant winner—in Boston very soon."

Yankee Stadium, Oct. 6 (AP).—Yankee First Baseman George McQuinn hugged the ball that spelled curtains for the Dodgers and then made a rush for Relief Hurler Joe Page.

But he was too late. The other engineers of the game ending double play, Phil Rizzuto and George Stirnweiss, and Catcher Aaron Robinson, and Yankees from the bench had the fireman surrounded. They pounded, hugged and kissed the lefthander from Cherry Valley, Pa., as they escorted him in a disordrely procession to th edugout.

Fans poured out of the stands to join in the tumultous tribute to the pitcher wh ohad brought them the world championship.

Nothing But Fast Stuff

"I threw only one curve, to Hodges (Gil), and a slider to Walker (Dixie), and then nothing but fast stuff. It worked okay. Maybe they were looking for that curve all the time."

Manager Bucky Harris, who had nominated Page for the American League's most valuable player trophy before the series began, raised his glass time and again with a toast, "to Page, to Page," as the lefthander murmured to players and well wishers "gosh, it was swell. Swell."

Then a ribbing reported yelled out to Harris, "hey, Bucky, who's going to pitch tomorrow."

Grinning from ear to ear, the Yankee skipper said exultantly, "Joe Page, of course."

Although no official announcement was made, it was learned that the winning Yankees will receive about $6300 each and the Dodgers around $4200 each. These figures would fall below the 1935 Detroit Tigers winning shares of $6,544.76 and the 1941 Dodgers' losing cuts of $4,829.40.

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—The question of Leo Durocher's status in baseball appeared to be reaching the answer stage tonight.

Throughout the day baseball circles buzzed with the rumor that after the final game of the World Series President Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers would announce Durocher had been chosen to manage the club in 1948.

But after the Brooks lost the game and the championship to the Yankees, nothing came from official Dodger quarters.

Some sources said that Rickey still was waiting to hear from Commissioner A. B. Chandler on the status of Durocher, suspended at the beginning of the season for "conduct detrimental to baseball."

'No Regrets,' Says Shotton

Yankee Stadium, New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers dressed and wen home after today's final game of the World Series.

That's all there was left for them to do. And it was as simple and matter of fact as that.

"I have no regrets," said Burt Shotton, the siver-thatched pilot of the Dodgers.

"The Dodgers are a great team, and they'll be greater next year. We did all we could. We tried, but we couldn't quite make it.

"The better club won this time. But we'll beat the Yanks more times in the next 10 years than they'll beat us."

Asked about his own plans for next season, Shotton declared: That will come in due time."

Somebody asked him to analyze the Yankee victory.

"They got more runs than we did," he answered simply, the twinkle returning to his eyes for the first time.

Shotton said Rickey told the Dodgers:

"When you're playing Bucky Harris, you're battling a great guy."

Tears Stream Down Cheeks as He Quits

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—Larry MacPhail, tears streaming down his face, announced today he was retiring immediately as president of the World Champion New York Yankees.

"It's been tough and I've been in there trading punches all the time. Now I'm through," he declared immediately after the last out was made in the concluding game of the World Series between the Yankees and the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Too nervous to remain his box, he had gone to the Yankee dressing room before the game ended.

"This means the most to me in all the 20 years I've been in baseball," he declared as he accepted tumultuous congratulations. "Thank the Lord I can go out with a winner.

"It's Been Rough"

"It's been rough, these 20 years, and I've been in there trading punches all the time," declared the man who has been one of the most conspicuous figures in the game and served as president of three major league clubs—the Yankees, the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Cincinnati Reds.

Shortly before the season ended MacPhail said he planned to retire in 1950—"If not earlier"—but Dan Topping, one of his associates, expressed the hope today that he would reconsider and stay with the Yankees.

MacPhail said Topping would probably be his successor.

When the dresing room radio told the final out, MacPhail shouted:

Decision Causes Bewilderment

"That's it. That's my retirement."

Bewilderment over the decision of the Yankee president was threaded through the hilarity in the elegant, carpted locker rooms of the Yankee team.

MacPhail went from player to player, hugging them and laughing.

Center of congratulations was the quiet reserved Yankee manager, Bucky Harris, who led the Washington Nationals to victory in the World Series of 1924, and was MacPhail's unexpected choice last winter as Yankee manager.

"If anybody is entitled to the credit, it's this fellow," said MacPhail, putting his hand on Harris' shoulder.

"He's one of the finest gentlemen made.

"George Weiss (Yankee vice president) built the club that won. I built up the ball club that lost"—a reference to MacJhail's former position with the Dodgers.

10,000 See S. C. Jock Steal Show

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Laurel, Md., Oct. 6.—Jockey Don Padgett, Waltersboro, S. C., boy, who rode his first winner at Charles Town, stole the saddle show here tdoay, riding three straight winners. His string of victories carried into the Ambassador, the day's feature, in which he triumphed with Tacaro Briar, owned by Robert L. Hall, jr., of Marlboro.

Padgett drove the 4-year-old son of Neddie into the wire a going-away winner over the King Ranch's Flash Burn, with the Calumet Farm's Twosy third in the field of seven going 6 furlongs.

With the crowd of 10,000 playing Twosy as if the race had already run, Tacaro Briar paid $19.20 and was clocked in the excellent (for this track) time of 1:11 4-5.

Padgett started his string in the fourth race aboard George Thorn's Superb Donna and brought this 2-year-old filly along in time to hang defeat on E. K. Bryson's Lady Airy and the King Ranch's Willing Hand in a field of a dozen juveniles going 6 furlongs.

Superb Donna returned $11.40 and stepped the three quarters in 1:13 2-5.

In his next appearance, Padgett, who had knocked off the favorite players in the previous outing, made good for them in the fifth event, the Bethesda. He was piloting the Bobanet Stable's Glen Heather and brought the colt along nicely to lead L. J. Lepper's Off-Islander and H. R. Cohen's Denagee into the wire. Glen Heather was strongly played at $3.60 mutuel and was clocked for six panels in 1:12 1-5.

So heavy was the show play on Twosy in the feature that a slight "minus pool" developed, the track being forced to pay the minimum $2.20 allowed by State on each of the in-the-money horses.

A couple of tight finishes that had nerves tingling marked the Daily Double. After the pair of photographs, the 4 and 7 combination was declared the winner and those with them collected $9.80.

Central Plays Eastern in High Feature

Central's Vikings and Eastern's Ramblers, two of interhigh's three remaining undefeated teams, meet head on Friday at Central Stadium in the top game of this weekend's 18-game schoolboy football slate.

The unbeaten Trainers of McKinley Tech play at Western and Roosevelt plays at Anacostia in the other two Interhigh contests Friday.

The Eastern-Central clash looms as an early-season natural. Eastern, not figured on as an outstanding title contender by preseason dopesters, has upset defending champion Coolidge, 13-12, and spunky little Western, 25-17. The Vikings, counted as possible championship material alongside Tech and Coolidge, are unscored on in two games. They have bumped Anacostia, 12-0, and Coolidge, 13-0.

With 16 lettermen back from last year's third-place outfit, the Vikings have been able breeze to their victories with such ease that Coach Jan Jankowski is on the alert for loafing. His backfield, which includes such stalwarts as Dale Leathery, Jimmy Johnson, Ross Keith, and Jimmy Panor, may be without the service this week of scatback Jimmy Pantos, whose ankle was injured in the Coolidge game.

The batle of the two lines should be terrific, Eastern's having given up only one touchdown, that being set up by Coolidge aerials. Some of the Rambler line mainstays are Center Bob Harkey, Tackle Otis Brown, and Guard George Roberson. Spearheading the Eastern backfield are Sal DiGiorgi, Charlie Carhart, Leo Kerschbaum and Ed Smith.

Saturday's feature game will find Bullis Prep entertaining Georgetown University's freshmen eleven. Bullis is already being tabbed as one of the top prep teams in the Middle Atlantic region with victories over strong Perkiomen, Pa., Prep, and Allentown, Pa., High. Allentown had been beaten only once in eight years before last week's loss to Bullis. Bullis will have more than its hands full with the Hoya frosh, who hold victories over the Navy Plebes and Augusta, Va., Military Academy.

Taft Backs Eat-Less Program, Blames Democrats for HCL

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) said tonight he "thoroughly" approved of President Truman's program for domestic reduction in consumption of food.

The Republican leader made his statement in a radio debate with Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) on the high cost of living, but also declared that present high prices "have been caused by the policies of the Roosevelt and Truman administrations."

O'Mahoney countered that "President Truman in both 1946 and 1947 has made every effort to prevent inflation" and that "the Republican Congress has done nothing to combat inflation."

Taft said that "the solution now is to cut down on exports, and reduce taxes and Government expenses. If this is done, the President's campaign for reducing the domestic use of food, which I thoroughly approve, may be effective, both in providing more food for shipment to Europe and in reducing prices.

"Certainly there are millions of people who can well afford to buy less food so that others less well off may buy their food at lower prices."

Taft spoke from Cincinnati and O'Mahoney from Denver.

Ohio GOP Set to Raise $750.00 Fund for Taft

By The Associated Press

Ohio Republicans were reported ready yesterday to raise $750,000 for a "home grown" campaign to get Senator Robert A. Taft the Republican presidential nomination.

His announcement that he will be a candidate is expected at a meeting of the State GOP Central Committee October 24 in Columbus.

As soon as Taft agrees to become the State's favorite son at the national convention next June in Philadelphia, his campaign backers will signal for action all along the political front. They say their efforts will be financed almost exclusively with Ohio money.

The Ohio Senator himself is said to be reluctant to accept contributions from outsiders. He also has stipulated that nobody will be permitted to put up more than $500.

Taft's decision to run, on the basis of a six-State western tour he ended Sunday with his return to Cincinnati, was regarded as such a foregone conclusion that plans are said to be well advanced fro an active drive on his behalf.

Illness Forces Cotton To Quit British Masters

London, Oct. 6 (AP).—Henry Cotton, captain of the British Ryder Cup team that plays the United States November 1 and 2 in Portland, Oreg., scratched today from the Dunlop Masters Golf Tournament Wednesday and Thursday because of illness.

He is recovering from tonsilitis and his physician advised him to rest for a week. Admitting that he was weak in the legs after three days in bed, Cotton said, "With the Ryder Cup team sailing for America on October 18, I naturally intend to take no chances about being fit."

Babe Medalist With 72 Card

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 6 (AP).—Mildred (Babe) Zaharias took medalist laurels in the Texas women's open golf meet today as expected with a 72, three under women's par. Just a stroke back was Patty Berg, former national amateur champion.

The Babe will face Mrs. George Noble, Dallas, in her first-round match Tuesday and Patty is scheduled against Beverly Hansen, Fargo, N. D. Both qualified at 83. Fort Worth's Polly Riley topped the amateur contingent at 35-40—75.

Cao, Jr., Winner at Garden State Park

Garden State Race Track, Camden, N. J., Oct. 6 (AP).—Leading over every step of the way, Cao, Jr., registered a popular 2½ length trimuph at Garden State Park today before a crowd of 11,450 in the featured Lincroft Purse, a test at six furlongs for the two-year olds.

The winner traversed the six furlongs in the good time of 1:11 4-5 and, as the second choice in the mutuels, came up with a popular $7.50 straight.

'Skins Happy Over Triumph; Recall Avery, Buy Ram Back

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Between self-inflicted backslaps over winning their first victory in the 1947 National Football League, the Redskins yesterday brought their player total to 33 men with the addition of two players.

Called back frfom heir Wilmington, Del., farm was Don Avery, 225-pound tackle who was sent "down the river" two weeks ago, and bought from the Los Angeles Rams was Harvey Jones, a 185-pound halfback who played college football at Baylor.

From the Redskin office came indications other changes are planned in a squad which barely nosed out the Pittsburgh Steelers here Sunday, 27-26. One player was expected to leave today, either on waivers, sale or outright release, and another player may be signed as a replacement for any one of four ousted in the last two weeks. Latest until yesterday was Jim Hefti, St. Lawrence halfback, who was released last Thursday.

Avery, banished during a squad cleaning for lack of "hustle," apparently proved he was one of Wilmington's best players in two games here. It was announced the outstanding performer with the Clippers would be brought to the parent club and Avery turned out to be it.

Jones' purchase by the Redskins was on a conditional basis, depending on the shape of an injured knee. After a thorough checkup he was found perfectly sound. He played nine games for the Rams in 1945, including the championship 15-14 triumph over the Redskins, and may be classed as a replacement for Bob DeFruiter, sold on waivers to the Detroit Lions.

There was joy in the Redskin camp over things besides their Sunday victory, earning undisputed second place in the Eastern Division standings with a .500 mark. The condition of the squad afterward pleased Coach Turk Edwards and the record crowd of 36,565 tickled everybody, including the income-tax people, and the action was still causing comment in football circles.

Braves Get Gillenwater

Milwaukee, Ovt. 6 (AP).—The Milwaukee Brewers announced today that Outfielder Carden Gillenwater, American Association home run champion, had been sold to the parent Boston Braves of the National League for an undisclosed sum in a straight cash deal.

SOLUNAR TABLES

The schedule of Solunar Periods, as printed below, has been taken from John Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during those times, if you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration. Use Eastern Standard Time.

Ex-Queen's Forced To Land by Russians

Munich, Germany, Oct. 6 (U.P.)—Former Queen Helen of Romania, former wife of King Carol, told U. S. Air Force officials two Russian fighters forced her private German Junker plane to land today near the Hungarian-Czech border.

The Russians fired a warning shot across the nose of her plane, she said. She was detained for a short period and permitted to depart after higher Soviet authorities gave clearance.

'Farce,' Says Ruark of Army Probe in Italy

Columnist Robert C. Ruark asserted yesterday that the Army's investigation into alleged lavish living among officers and abuses to enlisted men in Gen. John C. H. Lee's Italian theater resulted in "a farce" and "an attempted whitewash."

Gen. Lee

The Scripps-Howard writer, whose articles on Lee's command prompted Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to order an inquiry, said he was "possibly naive to expeca anything else," and declared: "No mouse to my knowledge, ever successfully investigated a cat."

Ruark said that in an "alleged effort to find truth," Maj. Gen. Ira T. Wyche, who conducted the investigation, found "so much stuff kicking around that even he tripped and fell flat over enough unburied evidence to force General Eisenhower to take action on several marked abuses."

"Other abuses, in the frantic efforts of Lee and his road show of pet colonels to bury the bone before the press and the inspector general's snoopers showed up, were corrected in self-defense," Ruark continued in his column today.

"In General Wyche's pitiful effort to sidestep the truth, all the charges have stood up."

In his report to General Eisenhower, Wyche said he had found only "minor discrepancies and irregularities" in Lee's command and that Ruark's stories gave a "wholly erroneous picture" of conditions in general.

Eisenhower, making the Wyche report public last Friday, acknowledged in a separate memorandum that "errors" were discovered in Lee's zone but said they were "the exception rather than the rule and in no case could be traced to wrong intent on the part of the theater commander."

Ruark said Eisenhower's memo "knocks the Wyche report cranksided," and declared Eisenhower agreed with him on five points.

These included, he said, his charges that "things were pretty awful" in the Army's disciplinary camp at Pisa, that enlisted men had been "blackjacked" into joining a political organization, that the Army had broken "many of its postwar promises" to enlisted men, and that enlisted chauffeurs were ill-used by officers.

Lee Calls Ruark Retort 'Unreliable'

Iowa City, Iowa, Oct. 6 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. John C. H. Lee said today that Columnist Robert C. Ruark's article calling the Army Inspector General's report on the Mediterranean theater an "attempted whitewash" was "as unreliable as his (Ruark's) original articles."

Berlin Tuberculosis Up

Berlin, Oct. 6 (U.P.).—The American-licensed newspaper Neue Zeitung reported today there were 80,000 cases of tuberculosis in Berlin, and said the T. B. death toll has increased 200 per cent compared with 1936-38.

Civil Service Commission Apologizes To Congress

Agrees to Destroy Data on Members In Loyalty Files; 'Didn't Know of It'

By Jerry Kluttz

The Civil Service Commission yesterday agreed to promptly destroy all references to members of Congress in its loyalty files.

Chairman Harry B. Mitchell made the promise at a hearing of the House Committee on Executive Expenditures. He said the information had been placed in the "lead" file maintained by his investigators without the knowledge of the three-man Civil Service Commission. He apologized to the committee for its being there.

However, Mitchell's promise didn't satisfy Chairman Hoffman (R., Mich.) and his committee. Hoffman, who said his name appeared in the file because he was anti-New Deal, demanded the commission throw open its files for inspection by his committee. Mitchell refused. He said the files were "confidential," and were open in a limited way only to other Government investigators.

Hoffman accused the commission of maintaining a "smear file." He said this was the first time a Federal agency had admitted that "we have a Gestapo in this country." The Michigan legislator threatened to cite the three commissioners for contempt because they would not produce the files, which contain 750,000 names. He threatened to oppose further funds for the commission to "run a smear campaign."

Suggests Abolishing CSC

Representative Fred Busbey (R., Ill.) charged the commission was using Gestapo methods and "we'd be better off if we abolished it." Busbey said his name also was in the files.

In refusing to turn the confidential files over to the committee, Mitchell cited opinions of attorneys general back to the days of George Washington, holding that executive agencies need not turn confidential information over to Congress.

After the hearing, Hoffman said it would be up to his full committee to decide what step to take to obtain the files, if any.

Hoffman said he didn't know how many dossiers the commission had on members of Congress, but he presumed the number was sizable. He said he knew of one member who was called a "Nazi," and another involving the wife of a Senator. The congressman hinted that information in the files had been "leaked" to smear columnists and radio comentators.

Hoffman also hinted that The New Republic's list of 96 members of Congress it believed should have been defeated for reelection in 1942 had been incorporated in the commission files.

The chairman read from cards which he said had been taken from the "confidential" file. How he got the cards was Hoffman's own secret despite a warning by Mitchell that he would fire any employe who gave him the information. The cards cited as sources of information the Friends of Democracy, Anti-Defamation League, and the New York law firm of Mitzer and Levy at 39 Broadway.

Both Mitchell and Flemming in detail on what relationship the commission had with these groups, which Hoffman described as "smear artists." Both pleaded ignorance and promised to look into it. The chairman made another charge that the law firm had been given access to a duplicate "lead" file in the commission's New York regional office.

tried to explain how the name of any member of Congress might happen to get in their files. They said their investigators placed everything in the file which might be a "lead" in checking on the loyalty of an applicant for a Federal job. They said names were picked up from the Communist Daily Worker, Communist nominating petitions, and various magazines and periodicals.

"Don't Mean a Thing"

The Civil Service officials emphasized that the names and references to them didn't mean a thing as such; that all the evidence was weighed by the commission before a decision was made to deny employment to any individual on grounds of questionable loyalty to the Government.

"To be condemned by certain groups in this country," Fleming said, "is a badge of honor."

But Hoffman and other committee members said members of Congress and other prominent citizens whose names appear in the commission files should have been called in and given a hearing before the references were written into the commission report.

The chairman also jumped the commissioners for not requiring Federal workers to list membership in the Communist Party on the form that each employe must fill out in connection with the President's loyalty program.

Should Not Reveal Affiliations

Flemming answered that no Federal employe should be required to reveal his political or religious affiliation and that the Government would be subjected to severe criticism if it did. He added that no employe who was a Communist would admit it anyway, and further, the form was to be used solely for identification purposes by the FBI and the FBI would find out which employes belonged to the Communist Party.

The third commissioner, Frances Perkins, appeared and was excused after she, too, told Hoffman that she didn't know the commission had files on members of Congress and that they should be destroyed.

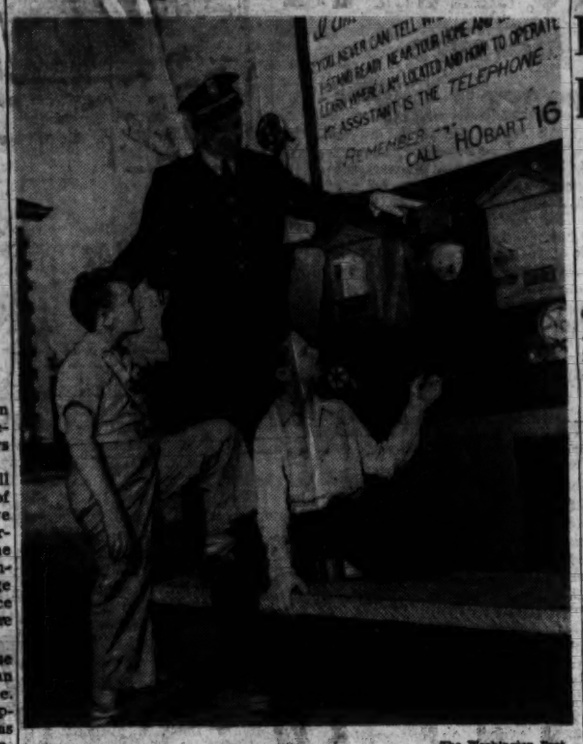
Learning About Fireboxes



The Washington Post

DEMONSTRATION IS BIG HIT—Youngsters at the Noyes School were given a practical demonstration of what happens when a fire alarm is sounded as part of Fire Prevention Week program yesterday. Above, Fire Inspector S. C. Settle, who brought a specially rigged pumper to the school, shows various types of fireboxes to James Crockett, 12, of 2520 Tenth st. ne., and Sidney Katz, 13, of 1289 Brentwood rd. ne. Both boys are Noyes School pupils

A 750-gallon pumper was sent over to the Noyes School, 10th and Franklin sts. ne., by the Fire Department yesterday as part of a lesson on the dangers of needlessly pulling fire boxes.

Fire Inspector S. C. Settle backed the big truck onto the playground and invited the children out to show them how a fire alarm works. On the back of the truck two alarm boxes, a punch tape machine and a bell were rigged up.

Inspector Settle pulled the box, the bell rang and the machine punched out the box number on the tape. After that he could hardly restrain the youngsters from trying it out themselves.

The principal of the school, Miss Grace Bush, explained to the children that the truck was there as part of Fire Prevention Week.

Pulling fire boxes when there is no fire, she told them, endangers the lives of firemen, pedestrians and motorists. It leaves areas unprotected in case of a real fire and is expensive.

After dismissing the children, she pointed out that it would be fine if someone would come over to the Noyes school and fix the school alarm system which has been on the blink since last week.

Year's Total 14

Mild Polio Strikes Twin Sisters, 15

Fifteen-year-old twin girls were listed yesterday as Washington's thirteenth and fourteenth polio victims of the year.

The year's polio total for Greater Washington was 41 yesterday, compared with 102 for the same date last year. Of the 102 total, 23 were from Washington at this date in 1946.

First symptoms in the cases of the twins, Jane and Julia Swartz, 3815 24th st. ne., was noted when they returned home from school on September 24. Both had stiff necks and suffered from nauseau, according to their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Swartz.

They said the girls' nausea continued three days, during which time thei rtemperatures fluctuated between below normal to 103 degrees.

Within five days the temperatures had dropped to normal.

By the sixth day, one of the girls experienced some difficulty in walking and the other complained of severe leg pains.

Doctors have diagnosed their cases as mild.

A 10-year-old boy of Chevy Chase, Md., has been admitted to Children's Hospital as a polio victim, and a 20-year-old girl from Cheverly, Md., is under treatment at Gallinger. The boy was admitted Tuesday; the girl Sunday.

Editor of Star Tells Meaning Of Free Press

W & L Journalism Students Are Told Of Public Right

Lexington, Va., Oct. 6 (AP).—Freedom of the press is a right conferred not on the owners of newspapers, but on the people who read them, Ben M. McKelway, editor of the Washington Evening Star, told Washington & Lee journalism students here tonight.

The average citizen conceive of freedom of the press as the privilege of newspapers to do such things as "inquiring into other people's business, printing facts which are obnoxious to many of those who read them, photographing men and women who have become involved with the law or divorce courts . . ." McKelway said, in opening the university's second annual journalism assembly series.

"This conception is dangerous, he said, because "some day the people, under the guidance of the wrong sort of leadership, may feel moved to curb or restrict the freedom of the press in the belief that by so doing they may punish the newspapers for pursuing courses with which a majority may disagree.

Catastrophe for Public

"No matter how severe might be the punishment inflicted on newspapers, that punishment would be as nothing compared with the catastrophe brought on the people themselves by restrictions regarding the freedom of the press.

"Curbs on the freedom to publish opinion, the freedom to publish the news, the freedom to criticize, to attack, to expose, if imposed on newspapers, would mean loss to the people—not merely to the newspapers—of a freedom which the people should be willing to preserve at all costs," McKelway said.

McKelway, who has had 30 years of experience on metropolitan dailies, has been reporter, city editor, news editor nad managing editor of the Star, and its editor since 1946.

He is the first of a series of veteran journalists who this year will bring practical experience to discussion groups of Washington and Lee students taking journalism courses.

Babel of Voices

"The power of the press is a babel of voices—not one voice," McKelway said. "And from this babel, confusing, argumentative, clamorous, finally comes the truth that the people recognize as truth. . . . Newspapers owned and edited by citizens who represent every shade of economic and political opinion, religion and moral standards . . . give the people a choice in the free market of ideas; a condition eminently to be preferred by a free people to one that casts their news and opinions in the single mould of policy laid down by a few human beings who happen to run the Government."

The responsibility of the press "must be discharged by men who are sincerely devoted to the public interest, who know enough to recognize when it is in danger, and whose love of a great and noble calling will not permit them to be anything else but newspapermen. I believe in schools of journalism, as they are now, and as they are going to be. They do not always turn out the best newspapermen. But when they turn out good newspapermen, they are better newspapermen than they would have been without the formal education they have received," he concluded.

Error Cited In Report on Plane Crash

National Airport Tower Permitted Pilot to Fly Low, Investigator Says

A Senate subcommittee yesterday received a report that National Airport's control tower "erred" in instructions to the Capital Airlines plane which crashed southwest of here June 13.

Fifty personse died when the four-engined craft, Washington-bound from Pittsburgh, rammed a rain-swept foothill of the Blue Ridge Mountains near Hillsboro, Va.

The report was submitted to the Senate's Subcommittee on Aviation of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, by Technical Staff Assistant Carl Dolan.

Received Permission

Dolan said the pilot of the plane, when it was at 5000 feet over Mrtinsburg, W. Va., received permission from the CAA tower here to descend to 2500 feet or less so he could continue into Washington without using instruments.

"The control tower erred," Dolan's report said, "in permitting the pilot to descend to 2500 feet or less in territory that the CAB has a minimum requirement of 1000 feet above terrain, which would be (in the case of the Capital plane) 2650 feet. Also, the company had a regulation of a 3000-foot minimum."

The report added "the pilot breached both these rules."

May Go to Senate

As an interim report, Dolan's findings will go to the subcommittee; then possibly to the committee as a whole and finally to the Senate for action on a general compilation of similar investigations.

Recommendations in the report included:

That the CAB should clarify existing rules and arrange for standardization of approach procedures of CAA, airlines, Air Force, Navy and foreign aircraft.

That CAB should investigate immediately the contention that some forms of altimeter static tubes accumulate moisture and water.

That instrument approaches in bad weather should give priority to and favor passenger-carrying planes.

Improvements By Business Beat Record

Philadelphia, Oct. 6 (AP).—A four million dollars spending program for new plants and equipment is planned by American business for the last quarter of this year, the Securities and Exchange Commission said today.

The amount is 100 million dollars greater than actual expenditures for the second quarter, the agency said. A study made by the SEC and the Department of Commerce showed that of the total planned expenditure, $3,600,000,000 will be spent by corporations, and the remainder by unincorporated business. Agriculture is not included in the study.

The survey showed that if planned expenditures for the third and fourth quarters are carried out, a record of $15,200,000,000 will be spent this year, approximately 25 per cent over the 1946 figure. Compared with pre-war highs, expenditures will be 85 per cent higher than in 1941, and 65 per cent above 1929, the SEC stated.

The agency added that if an adjustment were made for the substantial price increases, expenditures during this year still would be higher than in 1929 and 1941.

Manufacturing companies plan to spend $1,800,000,000 in the fourth quarter or about 45 per cent of the total for all industries, the survey disclosed.

3 Policemen Fined for Rule Infractions

Barrett Says Two Of Men to Be Moved To Different Precincts

A Pilice Trial Board yesterday fined three Metropolitan policemen for rule infractions ranging from neglect of duty to failure to report to stations.

They were:

Pvt. Floyd S. Hathorne, Fifth Precinct, fined $50 for failing to communicate with his station September 25. He pleaded guilty. He was charged with sleeping on his beat.

Pvt. Charles M. Queen, Eleventh Precinct, fined $50 for neglect of duty September 17. The charges said he failed to take a traffic post to which he had been assigned. He was found not guilty of "wilful disobedience of orders."

Pvt. Franklin R. Gue, Eighth Precinct, fined $50 for failing to communicate with his station and $75 for failing to patrol his beat. He was found not guilty of driving his automobile to his beat instead of walking to it. Charges against Gue said he also was found asleep on his beat. He had pleaded guilty to failing to report to his station, but denied the other two counts.

Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett said yesterday that Hathorne would be transfered to the Seventh Precinct and Gue would be moved to the Third.

Citizens Want 2 Greenbelt Police Back

Group Asks Council To Reinstate Men Manager Suspended

Suspension of two Greenbelt, Md., town policemen has left the town without adequate police and fire protection, a group of Greenbelt residents charged last night before the town council.

The council referred to its committee on public safety a petition asking that Policeman John Belton, who also heads the local fire department, and Robert Dodge, be restored to duty immediately pending completion of a town council investigation of Greenbelt administration.

The two men were suspended about two weeks ago by Town Manager James T. Gobbel, who declined to reveal the reason for their suspension because he said it would be "unfair" to them to publicly air charges until after a complete investigation. He has refused to comment on requests the men be reinstated.

Complaints Entered

Members of the volunteer fire department and other residents contended the fire department has been without trained leadership since Belton's suspension, and that the town police force has been understaffed.

Gobbel replied there has been an alternate fire chief to take over when Belton was off duty or ill, and that the same man is now available for duty. He said the town is receiving the same police protection it had during summer vacations.

Council to Ask Report

The council agreed to ask for a "complete and specific report from an auditing firm now examining the town's financial records. The audit was started last week to clarify charges by former Mayor George F. Bauer that Town Manager Gobbel has mismanaged the town's funds.

The council voted ot request the complete repor tafter residents of the town said they "understood" tha tGobbel had asked the auditors to make only a "general audit." Gobbel said he had issued no specific instructions, but assumed the auditors, as a reputable concern, would make a full and complete inspection.

About 60 residents of the town jammed the small municipal hall to attend the session, which was the first regular meeting of the newly elecetd Greenbelt council.

Police Head Of Boys Club Is Promoted

Police Superintnedent Robert J. Barrett gave boys club work here a big boost last night by promoting Police Sergt. Forrest L. Binswanger to acting lieutenant and assigned six patrolmen to help him in the Metropolitan Police Boys Club's work toward better citizenship.

Binswanger

The move came at the regular monthly meeting of directors at the Ambassador Hotel. Major Barrett, who has led the department's recent friend-making campaign among juveniles and who became a director of the boys club September 15, persnoally pinned on Binswanger's new badge.

Will Direct 12,000 Members

Lieutenant Binswanger and his six assistants will be in charge of the recreational activities of the 12,000 members now enrolled in the six District clubs. Their aim will be to teach the boys how to become more useful citizens.

Most of the 45 officials at the Ambassador Hotel dinner meeting, including John A. Remon, board president, and Maj. Ernest W. Brown, Boys Club founder and superintendent of police from 1932 to 1941, agreed that the promotion, and appointment of six additional club leaders, was the greatest thing that's happened to the club since it began in 1934.

The names of th esix patrolmen, all picked from precincts, are expected to be announced today.

Barrett said he had secured clearance from the District Commissioners only yesterday afternoon for this move but that he had been "bending every effort" since his appointment toward this end.

From Oklahoma

Binswanger, 46, came to Washington in 1930 from the oil lands of Oklahoma. At 15 he played semi-pro baseball with such feature big league stars as Carl Hubbell and Paul Waner—that is, until he "blowed" his arm while pitching.

In World War I he served overseas as a quartermaster in the Navy, and soon returned to his real love, "dealing with kids."

From 1923-30 he was leader of a Rock Island Railroad employes club, coaching boys in baseball and boxing.

Binswanger was appointed to the District police force from Oklahoma in 1930. Within two years he was again working with youngsters. He was a member of the schoolboy patrol, and as an amateur cartoonist originated the poster character "Safety Mike" in a city-wide school safety campaign in 1932.

He joined the boys club soon after its organization in 1934, was appointed director in 1938, rose to acting sergeant in 1939 and sergeant three years later.

Directs Summer Camp

He has served every summer since 1936 as director of the club's summer camp at Scotland, Md. He said last night he expects to expand the club's facilities in an effort to "mold more better citizens."

The six club leaders recommended by Binswanger are men he described as "experienced patrolmen who will be on the alert for unhealthy conditions."

Barrett also made a visit yesterday afternoon to Police Boys Club No. 2, 1200 U st. nw., and the Junior Police and Citizens Corps headquarters at 8th st. and Barry pl. nw.

Police Private Oliver A. Cowan, director of the Junior Police, presented Barrett a badge naming him "High Commissioner" in the name of the group's 12,000 boys.

Grand Jury Indicts Two For Murder

Cases of Mrs. Harris, Edward C. Butcher Among 33 True Bills

Two persons were indicted for murder by the District grand jury yesterday—one of them on a second degree count involving an automobile accident. The grand jury returned 33 true bills.

A first-degree murder indictment was returned against 37-year-old Mrs. Minnie Harris, 3120 13th st. nw., in the ax slaying of her union leader husband, James Edward Harris, 40, last April 26.

Edward C. Butcher, 23, of 715 1st st. nw., was indicted on second degree charges growing out of an automobile collision July 4 in which two persons were killed. At the time of his arrest, Butcher told police he was rushing a sick friend to Freedmen's Hospital.

Butcher was accused of speeding through a red traffic light at N. Capitol and H sts. and colliding with another car. Beatrice Chambers, 58, and 19-month-old Melvin Plater, jr., both of 1612 D st. se., were killed in the second auto.

Bertha Jackson, 70, of 117 11th st. se., was held on 13 counts of grand larceny growing out of acceptance of rental deposits, totaling $2573, from prospective tenants, authorities said.

She is accused of promising to rent her apartment to nine different applicants and accepting deposits from each.

John L. Nelligan, 20, now awaiting trial at Marlboro, Md., on a housebreaking charge, was indicted for assault with dangerous weapon.

The charge grew out of an attempted garroting of Miss Sandra Sado, 3200 16th st. nw., September 16. According to police, Nelligan sneaked up behind her and threw a necktie around her throat. He fled, when she screamed.

Sherman E. Buis, 37, of 2480 16th st. nw., was indicted for assault with a dangerous weapon and assault with intent to kill William R. Hall, an 18-year-old Bolling Field soldier.

Buis was accused of shooting Hall in the stomach during an altercation in Buis' rooms at the Dorchester House where he is alleged to have invited Hall. Buis charged Hall had begun looting his apartment.

John M. Holzworth, New York attorney, who last week filed a 12 million dollar suit for false arrest naming District Court justices, the United States Attorney for the District, the Superintendent of Police, and the Attorney General of the United States, was indicted on fuor counts of passing bad checks.

Mysterious Confession Letter Held Slaying Clew

Police Experts Contend Union Leader's Wife Wrote Epistle

By Alfred E. Lewis
Post Reporter

A mysterious letter of confession by an unknown man turned out to be the clew which yesterday resulted in the indictment of Mrs. Minine Harris on the charge of murdering her union-leader husband.

The Washington Post learned last night that the letter, signed by a "Jimmie Cohen," was sent to a union official sometime after the murder. In it the wrter confessed to having "killed" James E. Harris, 40, at his home last April.

Washington police charged that the letter was written by Minnie Harris under a fictitious name. Handwriting experts suport this charge, police say. Cohen, they say, is a fictitious character.

Denies Writing Letter

Mrs. Harris has steadfastly denied writing the letter or having anything to do with the ax murder of her husband.

According to police, the 37-year-old widow sent the letter or had it sent from a New York hotel to Oliver Palmer, 1114 W st. nw., a business agent for the Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers Union (CIO) in which her murdered husband was business agent.

The letter dated May 16 but postmarked September 11, read as follows, it was learned:

"I killed James E. Harris but there is no use looking for me. By the time you receive this I will be at the bottom of the Hudson River."

Identified by Expert

Written on plain white stationary, the letter was half printed and half written. It was positively identified, investigators said, by Ira Gullickson, police handwriting expert, as being Mrs. Harris' writing.

Police, in disclosing the letter for the first time, asserted that they had further substantiating evidence to suport the indictment that on April 28 "Minnie Harris purposely and of deliberate and premeditated malice did kill and murder James Edward Harris with a sharp instrument, a particular description of which whereof is to the grand jury unknown."

A missing household ax customarily kept in the basement of the Harris home, 3120 13th st. nw., which was sought by police in all the alleys and sewers in the neighborhood, has not been found so far.

Mrs. Harris was arrested September 21 as she stepped from a train at Union Station by members of the homicide squad who had been working on the case for nearly five months.

She told police that she was returning from Winnsboro, S. C., where she had been visiting relatives. She admitted spending part of her time in Atlantic City, N. J., but said that the last time she had stayed in the hotel from where the letter was mailed was 5 years ago with her husband.

The battered body of Harris was found slain by Mrs. Harris and a postman. At the time the police believed that there might have been a "union angle" to the killing. The union at that time was striking O'Donnell's Restaurant, 1209 E st. nw.

On May 9 a coroner's jury ruled that the death was at the "hands of a party or parties unknown." Testimony at the inquest revealed that the slain man and his wife were not getting along together and that Harris had purchased a radio and coat for another woman.

A $1500 reward has been offered for the arrest and conviction of the slayer.

Presbyterian Leaders Seek Unification

Northern, Southern Groups Split Since War Between States

Rehoboth, Md., Oct. 6 (AP).—Presbyterian leaders from both sides of the Mason-Dixon line met in a long session today aimed at reuniting a church that split at the time of War Between the States.

Approximately 150 ministers and laymen attended a joint session here of the Newcastle Jresbytery of the Northern church and the Norfolk Presbytery of the Southern church, and initiated a year-long study on a plan of possible union. Only a few possible points of Only a few points of difference still remain after eight years of negotiations.

To become effective, any final plan of union must be ratified by two thirds of the Northern group, known as the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America. The Presbyterian Church "in the United States" (the Southern group, insists on ratification by a three fourths majority.

Couple Rescued by Fisherman When Rowboat Capsizes in Bay

An Arlington man and his wife were saved from the rough waters of Chesapeake Bay Saturday by the 19-year-old skipper of a fishing boat.

St. John

Rescued were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Collins, 2717 S. Adams st., Arlington, whose rowboat capsized. They were clutching floating pillows from their boat when Thomas St. John of West Beach, Md., hauled them aboard his fishing craft.

Collins' brother, James, also thrown from the overturned boat, managed to cling it, and was picked up by another boat, half a mile away.

All three were treated for shock and exposure at Calvert County Hospital at Prince Frederick, Md.

St. John said Mr. and Mrs. Collins told him they had enough of fishing, adding that they "never want to see the boat again" and present St. John with their outboard motor.

Area News in Brief

Bethesda Dog Nuisance To Bring Action Today

"Immediate action" to curb the large numbers of dogs roaming in Bethesda, some of which have clawed at school children, was promised yesterday by Brooke Johns, president of Montgomery County Commissioners.

Johns said he would bring the matter before the commissioners when they meet today in Rockville. Police have received three complaints from Mrs. Verna Noffitz, principal of Bethesda Elementary School, that a second-grade boy had been "clawed" and his clothing torn by the dogs; that a fifth-grade girl's coat was ripped and her arms scratched, and that another was reportedly driven into "hysterics" by one of the dogs.

F. Barnard Welsh, counsel for the commissioners, said yesterday that one possibility of ending the nuisance might be enactment of an ordinance requiring muzzling of all dogs. He added, however: "If we did that we'd have every dog owner in the county on our necks."

The talk will begin the eighth season of the Critics' Forum, in which the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae are to participate this year.

Wesst Body Recovered

The body of 18-year-old John I. Wesst, 1933 19th st. nw., who drowned in the Georgetown channel of the Potomac Sunday, was recovered by harbor police yesterday.

Wesst was in a rowboat with two other persons when it capsized while being towed by a small power cruiser. Wesst sank before the cruiser could get to him.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of death due to accidental drowning. The body was recovered in about 20 feet of water between the railroad and highway bridges.

Other occupants of the boat were Harold L. Crockett, 19, 1929 18th st. nw., and Elsie M. Hart, 1406 Hamlin st. se.

Judge 'Suggests' Grand Jurors Sift Prince Georges Gambling

A new Prince Georges County Grand Jury, which includes six women, heard a "suggestion" yesterday from Judge John B. Gray, jr., that it look into the county's gambling situation.

The new October grand jury is the first in the county to include women.

The judge told the jury no local gambling violations had been brought to his court's attention.

Then, referring to another county in his Seventh Maryland Judicial Circuit, which he did not name, he said: "The law enforcement officers deliberately had closed their eyes to gambling laws applicable to that county and the State. Consequently no prosecutions have resulted, although there were hundreds of violations."

Gaming Drive Ordered

Prince Georges Police Superintendent Ralph W. Brown recently ordered all gambling places within the county to close and stay closed.

W. Desmond Walker, Mitchellville tobacco and dairy farmer, was named foreman of the grand jury by Judge Charles C. Madbury, who sat with Judge Gray at the opening of the October term in the Upper Marlboro courthouse.

Judge Gray, calling inclusion of women on the grand jury "a substantial departure from the practices of the past," remarked that the women would find some cases "rather grim and sordid and some tragic."

Grand Jury Members

The six women on the 23-member panel are: Mrs. Norma Bollinger, 3711 Perry st., Brentwood; Mrs. Maude Thorne, Friendly; Mrs. Eugenia Forbes, Aquasco; Mrs. Jayne E. Walker, 1656 Southern ave., Bradbury Heights; Mrs. Genevieve Stewart, 6214 60th pl., Riverdale Heights, and Mrs. Frances Irons, Seabrook.

Other members of the grand jury are Hans Bergwardt, William A. Bobb, jr., George L. Wells, Lake Koontz, Charles T. Appell, Fred Knauer, Edward M. Harman, Roy L. Allen, Solomon A. Sweeney, Walter W. Garner, Robert T. Plitt, David Serrin, Mitchell Swann, Russell Cross, Louis Bryant and Douglas W. King.

The petit jury to serve the first week includes eight women. Members of the panel are William H. Lee, Ernest F. Windsor, J. Paul Smith, Russell M. Padgett, Mrs. Grace M. Hopkins, Miss M. Catherine Ripple, John J. Edson, H. Parker Van Horn, Mrs. Frances Davies, Mrs. Daisy LaCoppidan, Ferdinand Colmus, Mrs. Mary E. Bradshaw, Charles W. Burns Wilson, William R. Davis, Horace Purdy, Roy Hopkins, jr., Kenneth G. Wilson Mrs. Mildred C. Wheatley, Kent R. Mullikin, William N. Dockett, Mrs. Catherine B. Brown, Mrs. Mary Joffe, George V. Armstrong and George A. Taylor.

Navy to Vacate Annapolis USO

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 6 (AP).—The way was opened today for possible use of the Annapolis St. Mary's Strete USO Clubhouse as a recreation center as the Navy announced it would have no further need of the building after December 31.

The announcement was made at a meeting of the Greater Annapolis Recreation Association Committee headed by Mayor William H. McCready.

The clubhouse was built on city land and the city has put a considerable sum of money into it. Teenagers have long sought the building as a recreation center. The Federal Government has a lease on it until 1952.

Bullet Holes Noted in Md. Oyster Dredge

Colonial Beach, Va., Oct. 6 (AP).—Virginia oystermen today said a Maryland dredge, operating from Monroe Bay, bears 11 bullet holes, indicating the shooting war has begun again in the Potomac.

Capt. Walter J. Smith of the Maryland patrol boat said last week that shots sometimes are fired into the air as signals to halt, but the Virgina man observed:

"The slugs that made those holes may have been stop signels, but they hardly were fired into the air."

There was some shooting last year in an attempt to enforce a dredging prohibition on the Potomac.

John E. Mayo, executive secretary of the Potomac River Oystermen's Association, said virtually all oysters shucked here are shipped to Baltimore. Most of the unshucked oysters bought by barges are sold to packers on Maryland's Eastern Shore, he continued, adding:

"Where is Maryland's much-vaunted inspection service?"

Virginia's Legislature in 1945 enacted legislation permitting dredging on a 40-mile stretch of the Potomac. Maryland still is attempting to enforce antidredging laws and the prohibition has held about 60 boats in the harbor here all season.

Most of the oysters now being taken by the dredges are from Cedar Point Bar and Swan Point Bar. The catch averages 10 to 15 bushels an hour, but the boats seldom work more than an hour or so before they are driven off by Maryland patrols.

Oysters from Cedar Point are bringing about $2.75 a bushel. Those from Swan Point bring about $1.75 a bushel.

Va. Election Boards Hit In GOP Move

Richmond, Va., Oct. 6 (AP).—Seven petitions for mandamus against local electoral boards in southwest Virginia were filed today by Republican Party members with the State Supreme Court of Appeals.

The high court is expected to receive the petitions tomorrow morning. They were filed by S. H. Sutherland of Clintwood. Virgil Goode, counsel for the defendant Democrats, said he would ask a few days' delay in the court's consideration of the petitions to enable him to file an answer. There will be no oral argument.

One of the petitions was brought by Walter Lee Rush, a member of the electoral board of Dickenson County, against Herbert J. Rasnick and R. L. Mullins, Democratic members. In another petition the entire Dickenson County board is made defendants. This one was filed by Arvil L. Kiser, a voter of that county, who predicted that enough ballots will be "attempted to be cast" under the absent voters law to effect the outcome of the November election.

Another petition was filed by O. C. Albert, Republican member of the Lee County Electoral Board, against Democratic Members John A. Richmond and L. P. Litton. Albert alleged that nearly 2600 ballots were set aside by Richmond, as secretary, for use of absent voters. He also complained that the secretary will handle all of these ballots without a full meeting of the board or without any action on them by the board as a whole. W. M. Bellamy of Lee County also filed a petition for mandamus against the board of that county.

Buchanan County also was affected in a third set of petitions which asked the court to compel electoral boards to act as a body on absent voters ballots and to prevent the board secretary from handling all applications by himself. These petitions were filed by R. G. Gillespie, who is suing his Democratic colleagues, Ernest Smith and John Anderson, and Fred Epling is suing the board as a whole. G. C. Branham, a citizen, in the seventh petition, asked that the Wise County Electoral Board be compelled to act as a unit under the absent voters' law.

The Supreme Court opened its 1947-48 term today with the chair of the late Chief Justice Henry W. Holt draped in black, and adjourned almost immediately in tribute to the 83-year-old jurist, who died of a heart attack Saturday and was buried this afternoon at Staunton.

The new Chief Justice, Edward W. Hudgins of Chase City, ordered all court business suspended for the day. Ceremonies were to have included the swearing in of Attorney General A. P. Staples as a member of the court, and of Harvey B. Apperson of the State Corporation Commission, as Staples' successor.

Jury Indicts Two Ex-WAA Officials

Richmond, Va., Oct. 6 (AP).—A 22-man Federal District Court grand jury today indicted Herbert D. Tinker and Lawrence D. Bryan, both former officials in the Richmond office of the War Assets Administration, on charges of violating the Federal bribery statute.

Tinker and Bryan, who directed electronic activities of the WAA here, have been under $2500 bond each since a preliminary hearing September 4 when Commissioner Melvin Fichengeimer heard testimony from S. A. Cisler of Louisville, Ky., that the pair offered to renegotiate his WAA bid in return for a $25,000 payment to them.

The Louisville radio station executive had made a $69,992 sealed bid for certain WAA surplus material, it was testified.

W. D. Huttinger Named As Project Forester

Warrenton, Va., Oct. 6.—William D. Huttinger of Lansdowne, Pa., has been named project forester for the area covered by Fauquier, Prince William, Stafford and Loudoun counties, State Forester George W. Dean has announced. He succeeds Fay M. Straight, who has been assigned to the Richmond area.

Md. to Gain Congressman By '50 Census

By Fred Zusy
Associated Press Staff Writer

It's still a long way off, but the forthcoming 1950 census, on the basis of present estimates, probably will cause Maryland to gain an additional seat in the House of Representatives—increasing the Free State's delegation to seven, the largest in more than a century.

The law provides for an automatic change in apportionment of seats in the House as a result of population shifts shown by a census.

Maryland had a population of 1,821,244 in the last census. In July, 1946, the Census Bureau estimated, the State had 2,186,872 persons, including military personnel stationed there. Civilian population last year was 2,109,061. However, the apportionment of House seats depends on the total figure, including military.

Figures for 1947 are not yet available but are not expected to change the present situation, which means Maryland will gain one Congressman.

Changes in 17 States

Congress faces a change in membership strength in 17 States because of population shifts since 1940. California stands to gain six seats and Michigan, two. Five other States, including Maryland, would gain one each.

New York and Pennsylvania would lose three and two representatives, respectively, and eight other States would lose one each.

The present law was passed in 1941 and Morris Ullman, Census Bureau expert on congressional apportionment, explains its workings in this manner:

1. The next census will start in April, 1950.

2. Some time in the first week in December that year, the Census Bureau will report populations of each State to the President.

3. The President, in the first week in January, 1951, will report State populations to Congress, along with an apportionment computation, which will allot the 435 seats in the House (as set by the present law) on what is called a basis of "equal proportions." This is figured on a percentage basis.

Will Notify States

4. Fifteen days later the clerk of the House will write the Governor of each State, telling him how many congressional representatives the State is entitled to.

5. The next step is up to the State and may involve redistricting to provide for election of more or fewer Congressmen. In Maryland it would mean addition of one more district. Naturally, the party in power would attempt to make any such changes, so it wouldn't be adversely affected.

Congress could, by suitable legislation, defer the reapportionment or modify the present law. This is figured as unlikely. Since a law is in existence providing for automatic reapportionment, the burden of any change would be on the small minority of States due to lose membership.

Maryland, one of the 13 original States, had six members in the total of 65 that comprised the first House of Representatives. It increased this number to nine by 1800, but dropped to eight in 1830, and to six in 1840, where the figure has remained except for the decade following the 1860 census, when it dropped to five temporarily.

Dr. Vernon H. Dyson

Frederick, Md., Oct. 6.—Dr. Vernon H. Dyson, 81, Laytonsville physician, died yesterday in Montgomery County Hospital after an illness of several weeks' duration. He had practiced for more than 50 years.

Funeral services for Harriett Graves, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Graves of Leesburg, who was killed in an automobile accident Sunday afternoon, will be held at St. James Episcopal Church, Leesburg, today at 4 p. m. Burial will be in Norfolk Cemetery. Miss Graves is survived by her parents.

Six other girls were injured in the accident, which occurred when the car she was driving struck a culvert railing on Route 7 and overturned into a creek near Round Hill. The others were Betty Sue Wright, Anna Hardy, Mary Howard, Ellen Edmondson, Shirley Grimith and Mary Lee Manuel, all of LLesburg.

Mrs. Emma Lacy

Richmond, Va., Oct. 6 (AP).—Mrs. Emma Elizabeth White Lacy, wife of the Rev. Dr. Ben R. Lacy, jr., president of Union Theological Seminary, died last night at a Christianburg hotel after a trip to Blacksburg, where she and her husband had gone to visit their son, Ben R. Lacy 3d, a graduate student ot Virginia Tech. Mrs. Lacy was stricken with a heart attack.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. tomorrow at Ginter Park Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Dr. John A. MacLean, jr., pastor, and the Rev. Dr. W. T. Thompson of the seminary faculty. Burial will be in the seminary cemetery at Hempden-Sydney.

Mrs. Lacy, a member of a family long prominent in the history of the South, was a daughter of Mrs. Susie Trigg Lorentz White and the late Rev. Dr. William McC. White.

Besides her husband she is survived by her mother; one daughter, Miss Emma Elizabeth Lacy of South Boston; three sons, Ben, William White Lacy, a student at Harvard Medical School, and Robert Burwell Lacy, a student at Hampden-Sydney College, and one brother and two sisters.

Retiring This Week, Holt Tells Court

Richmond, Va., Oct. 6 (AP).—Harry W. Holt, jr., today confirmed reports his retirement as United States district attorney for Eastern Virginia probably would become effective this week.

In urging continuance of appeals by defendants in the Fredericksburg bank case, Holt told the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals today, "It is not anticipated that I will be in office at the time these cases are to be tried." The cases are set for argument next Monday.

Holt's disclosure that he plans to retire in a matter of days indicated he would be succeeded by Assistant United States Attorney George R. Humrickhouse, only known aspirant.

Dr. Birely Of Thurmont Dead at 75

Frederick, Md., Oct. 6.—Dr. Morris A. Birely, 75, general practitioner in Thurmont for more than 50 years, died last night of a cerebral hemorrhage.

A graduate of the University of Maryland Medical School in 1894, Dr. Birely was an organizer of the Citizen's Electric Light and Power Co. and for some years was president of the mechanicstown Water Supply Co. He was a director of the Thurmont Bank and the Potomac Edison Co. and had served on the Republican State Central Committee.

He was a past president of the Frederick County Medical Society and a member of the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of Maryland, the Masonic Order and St. John's Lutheran Church of Thurmont.

Dr. Birely is survived by his wife, Mrs. Bertha Bushey Birely, and son, Dr. Morris Franklin Birely, Thurmont.

John M. Gandy

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 6 (AP).—Funeral services will be held at the auditorium of Virginia State College at 3 p. m., Wednesday, for Dr. John Manuel Gandy, 76-year-old president emeritus of the institution, who died early today of a heart attack.

Dr. Gandy, who was born October 31, 1870, in Starkville, Miss., came to Virginia State College in 1898 to teach Latin and Greek. He was the college's first professor of pedagogy and he also organized its first accredited normal school curriculum and the first accredited teachers college courses.

He became the institution's third president in 1914 and held that position until he retired in 1942. During his long tenure he was associated with the Virginia Association for Education and was president of that organization for a time.

Since 1942, Dr. Gandy has been writing his memoirs and a history of the college.

Surviving him are his widow, Mrs. Carrie B. Gandy, a daughter, Mrs. Marian G. Wyatt, Washington, D. C., and two sons, Dr. Theo I. Gandy, Santiago, Chile, and John M. Gandy, jr., Chicago.

Dr. Gandy will be buried in Blandford Cemetery. He was affiliated with the Gilfied Baptist Church at Petersburg.

Powerful Ana Started Career As Schoolmarm

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

AMONG SIGNERS of the Communist pact to fight United States "imperialism" is a single woman, Ana Pauker of Romania. We've seen her, talked to her several times—here's a thumbnail sketch of one of Europe's most powerful women. Born in Bucharest, daughter of a rabbi, she taught school before becoming entangled in the Communist movement. Arrested in a plot to blow up the Parliament building, she was tried, sentenced to 10 years.

While in jail, as compliment to her work, a Communist regiment fighting in the Spanish Civil War was named after her. In 1941, shortly before Russia entered the war, in an exchange of political prisoners, Ana was swapped for a Romanian.

The mere fact that the Soviets had asked for her return showed they considered her Russian. Anyway, she went back (she'd been in Russia before) in great style. A Soviet gunboat fetched her at Galatz and as the anchor lifted, red flags were run up, the International played. In very short order she became a Soviet citizen, an honorary colonel and a member of the Comitern's Central Committee. In 1943, when Russia was hard pressed and needed United States assistance, Ana signed the manifesto dissolving the Comintern, now she's helped bring it to life again.

Took Magda's Villa

IN AUGUST, 1944, when a coup d'etat toppled the Nazis out of Romania, invited Russians in as saviors, Ana and two Russian-trained Romanians were flown in from Moscow. Amidst general confusion they set up shop, started Communist wheels grinding. Without hesitation, Ana took over Magda Lupescu's villa, requisitioned a huge limousine, began serving wonderful meals with all the luxury and trimmings.

She made a series of flaming speeches and, as part of her trade, was responsible for countless arrests and executions. In fact her cruelty became so notorious that about two years ago she was read out of the Jewish religion, her father actually taking part in the ceremony.

Twenty years or so ago she married Pauker, member of a wealthy Bucharest family. Pauker went to Russia, differed politically from his wife and was "purged." Rumor has it that fanatic Ana turned him over to the secret police for execution. It's possible, of course, but not substantiated. Nowadays, Ana receives guests in a mansion far grander than Lupescu's villa. She serves tea from an expensive (requisitioned) silver tea set, wears subduedly expensive dark dresses. All that's missing from an otherwise superbly respectable scene is an English butler.

Physically, she's shaped like a tumbler, her gray bobbed hair shoots forward over each cheek. She has the intense look of all fanatics, the cynical disdain of highly placed Communist officials. She's so intelligent, so powerful that men, terrified, court her like a queen.

Nights, when she attends a "party," she's wrapped in furs, followed by flunkies, attracts more kowtowing attention than a Hollywood star.

Visiting MP's

THESE LAST few days Washington's been fairly crawling with MP's—not military police, but Members of Parliament. Leading off were John Foster and Crossthwait Eyre, Conservatives, and Henry Usborne, Labor. The latter two are lecturing like mad. Foster came to address the American Bar Association in Cleveland and, on the side, to represent the current Duchess of Westminster who may sue one of our news weeklies. The three lads got about socially, saw an incredible number of people, between them came up with some choice Churchilliana.

So here goes. Some one commented to the former Prime Minister that his successor, Clement Attlee, was not doing badly. "Humph!" sniffed Churchill, "feed a grub on royal jelly and it'll turn into a queen!"

Another ill-advised person mentioned that Prime Minister Attlee was so unusually modest. "Indeed he is!" Winston agreed heartily, "and has every reason to be!"

No Lunch for Steelman

LAST WEEK the Citizens Food Committee met in the White House conference room to work out details of President Truman's food conservation program. Hard-working John Steelman, who sits in for the President, has been instrumental in pulling the program together, ironing out almost incredible difficulties. Opening the meeting, Steelman got a good belly laugh out of his harassed confreres. "Gentlemen," he commenced, "as far as I'm concerned, the campaign's already started—I haven't had any lunch today!"

Variety Keynotes Style Shows

By Peggy Preston

SOPHISTICATED clothes for town and evening wear . . . wonderful buys in swirling skirts and blouses for the G-Girl . . . sports suits for the country club and furs for all hours. And, of course, hats and more hats.

Items such as these (and many more as well) are dominating the current fashion showings in Washington. Westerday, during the luncheon hour in the Mayflower Lounge, the regular weekly fashion show featured smart woolen suits by name designers and a small collection of evening wear. Saturday's luncheon show in the Pall Mall room at the Raleigh was aimed straight at the Government girl who is ever on the lookout for inexpensive, young clothes. Today, several hundred members of the Congressional Country Club will attend a buffet lunch in the club's dining room and at the same time watch a parade of town and country clothes.

Accent on Woolens

The Mayflower show, with its accent on woolens, was a salute to Dr. Edgar H. Booth of Sydney, Australia, who is a visitor in Washington this week. Dr. Booth is chairman of the International Wool Secretariat and is in this country to confer with Government and industrial leaders on the uses and consumption of wool.

One of the notable costumes shown was a rich white-beige woolen suit by Adele Simpson. Collar and lapels were of brown, close-clipped fur. With it the model wore a brown crepe blouse and wide-brimmed beaver hat in the same shade as the suit. Providing an interesting highlight to the costume, without introducing a new color, were the double necklaces of imported mock amber. These were knotted at the high neck of the blouse.

Classic black broadcloth was shown in several suit versions. Appropriate for cocktail and dinner wear was one black suit with shoulders appliqued in gold sequins. Another featured double rows of sparkling buttons.

A hint of things to come was first cruise-wear costume shown this fall in Washington. It was a winter-white gabardine suit worn with a huge matching beaver, a silk scarf draped around the crown, pirate style.

Noteworthy in the evening collection was a svelte black satin designed by Ben Reig and a Ceil Chapman dance frock made of Roman-striped taffeta. A surprise among the hats shown was a conservative black beret, carrying the label of John Fredericks and named "Matron's hat."

'Uniform' Glorified

Young business girls saw their traditional uniform—the blouse and skirt—glorified at the Raleigh Hotel show. Nothing else was shown, although the shop where the ensembles are available carried an assortment of dresses, suits and other articles of clothing.

The skirts were all wide and full, swinging from snug waistbands. Most popular with the audience were the eight-gored felt skirts shown in a wide assortment of colors, ranging from coffee brown to gray. With the skirts, all medium-length, were shown long-sleeved blouses in contrasting colors.

In Bridal Procession

In a candlelight ceremony in Hamline Methodist Episcopal Church on October 4, Miss Helen Burnette Hazzard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Waller Carroll Hazzard of Bethesda, Md., became the bride of James Nelsen Ake, son of Mrs. James Nelsen Ake of Chevy Chase, Md., and the late Mr. Ake. The Rev. H. W. Burgan officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an off-the-shoulder gown of white satin with bustle back and lace bertha embroidered with seed pearls and sequins. Her finger-tip veil fell from a pearl tiara and she carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Joan Hazzard attended her sister as maid of honor and little Susan Tuck acted as flower girl. Both were costumed in bustled frocks of rose velveteen with matching pokebonnets trimmed with ostrich plumes. They carried Johanna Hill roses.

Similarly attired in emerald green velveteen with bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums were the bridesmaids—Mrs. Robert Southard, Mrs. Frank J. Leach, Mrs. Joseph H. Ross 3d, Miss Jane Reed, Miss Frances Martin, and Miss Mary Ellen Kincannon.

Harold N. Ake was best man for his brother and ushers were Thomas B. Ake, Thomas B. Ake, Jr., John N. Ake, Frank J. Leach, Joseph H. Ross 3d, and John M. Hughes.

Tuel—McAllister

Miss Elizabeth Marie McAllister, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Basil F. McAllister, and George Murray Tuel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guy L. Tuel, were married September 6 in St. Anthony's Church. The Rev. John L. Bailey officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and had as her only attendant her sister, Mrs. Margaret Richards. Francis Boccabella of Greenbelt, Md., served as best man.

After the reception the newly married couple left for Virginia Beach. They are now making their home in Washington.

Quinn—Etheredge

Miss Ora Mae Etheredge, daughter of Mrs. Arthur Lee Etheredge and the late Mr. Etheredge of Robertsdale, Ala., was married Sunday in Walter Reed Memorial Chapel to Lieut. Leo J. Quinn, son of Mrs. S. M. Quinn and the late Mr. Quinn of Englishtown, N. J. The Rev. Hugo McCord officiated.

Escorted by Edwin G. Fitch, the bride wore an ivory satin gown featured by close-fitting bodice, full train and lace-trimmed marquisette yoke. Her circular veil was caught with a pearl butterfly coronet and her earrings and necklace of Japanese pearls were a gift of the bridegroom. Her bouquet was of white roses with orchid center.

Acting as matron of honor, Mrs. Richard Gibson wore a hoop-skirted gown of pale yellow nylon and carried an old-fashioned nosegay of talisman roses. Miss Louise Cashion and Miss Elselene Johnson, bridesmaids, were costumed in apple green and lavender tulle over taffeta and carried old-fashioned bouquets.

Capt. R. C. Harrison served as best man and ushers were Maj. George Hewitt and Lieut Edwin E. McNeil. A reception followed at the Walter Reed Officers' Club.

ANNA MILLER EVOKES THE SPIRIT OF 1913

JULIUS GARFINCKEL & CO. REPORTING

Fashion has settled firmly on an infinitesimal waistline and rounded hips. From there, two things can happen: your skirt may spread to a circumference of yards and yards—or narrow almost to a point. If slim, your silhouette must be very slim to look new. In either case, your hemline flirts with the floor.

The tapered line is drawn beautifully by the Anna Miller collection. The dresses carry a sense of sophistication and bring back a world of leisured elegance, of days culminating in tea dances and shiny square white boxes from the florist.

This is sophistication with allure—not the brassy kind. All hard edges are melted, and the silhouette follows a sinuous curve from gentle shoulders to a pointedly longer skirt.

Peg-topped skirts make the hips bigger, the hemline narrower . . . bound midriffs play up, by contrast, curved bosoms, curved hips. A folded-back pouff, blown up on one hip, is a charming and original feature. Often it finds echo in a softly draped décolletage.

We sketch a parma-purple rayon crepe, equally interesting front and back. The wide bosom tuck is as flattering to the midriff as a bolero. We show also a black rayon crepe with the blown-up side pouff.

For Men Only—A 10-Day Diet

Does your husband pretend it's the dry cleaner who has made his old winter suit feel tight around the belt and cramped where he sits down?

Does he growl that the 15c neckband is choking him because the laundry shrunk the collar?

Does he explain that he can't touch his toes any more because he's growing taller?

YOU, HIS WIFE, KNOW

(1) That the springs in the bathtub scales are all right.
(2) That the bulge around your hero's waistline isn't a symptom of starvation.
(3) That travel isn't the only thing that's broadening.

THE WASHINGTON POST will print a TEN-DAY DIET FOR MEN. It will never be read, will never be followed or enforced, unless the Little Woman, in a burst of candor, convinces the family Big Shot that his figure isn't exactly what it was when he was in the Boy Scouts. Get him started on Lucia Brown's diet the FIRST day. It starts on the women's pages tomorrow.

Exercise Them Away

Give-Away Spots Tattle on Your Age

By Ida Jean Kain

Can you name six spots that give age away? Not yours, we hope. But let's start head first. The first sign of age comes in those small "break" lines in the cushion of muscle that covers the chin and jaw. The jawbone is covered by broad, flat muscular bands that originate underneath the bone, extend upward and attach to the cheekbone. It's easy to figure what happens when they fall down on the job.

To make matters worse, the chinline then slips. Right under the chin is a thin sheet of muscle fiber, popularly termed the cosmetic muscle, for its role is to contract the skin of the throat and keep it snug and unlined. When this muscle loses tone, the chinline droops and most certainly gives your age away.

Both of these troubles stem largely from drooping the head forward, which brings out the third spot, the hump, perched on the back of the neck, its presence marking your age as past 40.

But hold on. We might better fix these places before naming the others. To tone the muscles that cushion the jawline, try deep, firm rubbing. It is quite effective. Place tip of chin in the heel of hand and press along the jawline in a firm, kneading action, working firmly up toward the ear.

Carry on and tone the chin muscles by this method. Tip head back on shoulders, open your mouth and "set" the lower jaw, and resisting with lower jaw muscles, slowly close your mouth and continue the upward pull until lower lip is thrust over the upper lip. Relax slowly, and repeat three times only, make slow, even movements, never jerky ones.

Then make an all-out effort to improve your head posture . . . that will help more than anything else. Keep that line at the back of the neck pulled up to get over the hump, and the chin level to take up the slack there.

Two other spots that reveal age are the backs of the upper arms. When the triceps muscles sag, you're slipping. To tone the sagging triceps, make tiny circles with arms held out at shoulder level, elbows straight . . . or thrust arms vigorously out from sides, shoulder level.

Of course the bulk of middle-aging evidence is through the middle of the figure. Soft muscles, plus added weight, plus gravity equal the middle-age spread. The cure . . . exercises to put tone back in the girdle muscles, and better posture.

TAKE a fling at this exercise demonstrated by lithe and lovely Kay Christopher, screen actress. The technique is to stretch up . . . twist at waist and increase the stretch by bending down to touch toes, knees straight. This slims the middle measurements

Culinary Tips

Because recipes developed in aluminum pans may give different results in enamelware, glass or tin, the cook may need to change baking time and temperature accordingly.

Quick and hearty: Add a little minced onion and parsley to seasoned mashed potatoes and put between two slices of luncheon loaf. Bake for 20 minutes in a moderate oven. One "sandwich" to a person makes a hearty main dish.

Fruit that is fully ripe and too soft for canning or freezing whole may be made into a fruit puree and frozen for future use.

Second Marriages Do Work

Seven million Americans have tried and proved that second marriages do work. That is what Jean Libman Block says in her October Coronet article on the subject of remarriage.

The Census Bureau gives a recently divorced person seven out of eight chances to remarry within the next few years, the article says. If widowed, the expectations are not quite as spectacular, but they are still substantially better than if not wed at all. The prospects of marriage normally decrease with advancing age, yet a divorced man of 45, or a widower of 40, is as likely to find a new helpmate as a bachelor of 30. The same holds true of a divorcee or a widow, but for a spinster of 45 the chances of matrimony are about zero, points out Coronet.

If there are children by a previous marriage, the partners of the new relationship must both choose with care, writes Miss Block. There is no single magic formula, she says, which will produce lasting harmony between children and step-parents.

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

Please advise how you starch crocheted linen doilies? And how are they made? K. J. F.

Wash the doilies well and dip them in a heavy household laundry starch. Make the starch according to the directions on the package. To dry, stretch them flat on a board and thumb tack them to hold them in the correct shape. Directions for making crocheted doilies may be secured from the instructor in the fancy work department of most Washington department stores.

Could you tell me how I can wash a shower curtain? Also, how I can remove mildew from the curtain? The curtain is made of a material which is supposed to be washable. R. B. M.

Spread the shower curtain on a flat surface and sponge a small part at a time with mild soap suds and water. Rinse well with a cloth wrung out of clear water. Repeat on both sides until the entire surface is cleaned. Hang up to dry thoroughly.

Mildew is sometimes difficult to remove because it actually changes the fabric. However, you might sponge the spots with a cloth wrung out of a diluted household bleach. Be sure to test this treatment on an inconspicuous spot to see the effect on the color. Spreading the curtain to dry on the grass in the sun may help to bleach the spots, also.

1. What can I use to remove rust stains from a white organdy bedspread?

2. How can I refinish walnut tables which are badly stained? V. D. K.

1. Spread the stained article over a pan of boiling water and squeeze lemon juice on it. After a few minutes rinse, then repeat the process. This method is slow, but does not harm fine cottons. Another method is to sprinkle the stain with salt, squeeze lemon juice on it and spread in sun to dray. Rinse wel. If these methods do not remove it, spread the stained article over a bowl of hot water and put crystals of oxalic acid directly on the stain and moisten with hot water. Rinse in hot water and repeat until the stain disappears.

2. To refinish the walnut tables, first remove all of the old finish with varnish remover and sandpaper. If the tables are veneer, care must be used in applying varnish remover lest it get beneath the veneer surface and dissolve the glue. After all finish has been removed, wipe surface with denatured alcohol, then sand until any remaining stains are removed. Next apply a walnut stain, if you wish a darker wood, and after this dries thoroughly, apply a finish. For the finish, you can use clear varnish, thinning it with turpentine (one part turpentine to six parts varnish). Use two or three coats allowing each to dry thoroughly before applying the next. Rub with fine sandpaper between coats. After final coat is dry, rub with rottenstone and oil. Clean off with a rag dipped in oil, removing all excess oil with a fresh cloth. Finish by waxing.

Housewife Should Avoid Nail Lacquer

If you cannot take the proper care of your fingernails due to so much housework, you are wise to avoid the colored nail polish which is painted on. It takes time and care to keep painted nails looking nice and the busy housewife is far better off with well-trimmed nails and a cream polish put on with a buffer. Then if forgotten there is only the fact of dull nails, not nails with polish half on and half off.

Your Baby—

Only Children May Need Help In Adjusting

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

WE take it for granted that children will enjoy going to school. By 4½ years of age even the mother can see that the child has become tired of the sort of entertainment he can concoct alone and is physically and psychologically ready for the work and associations of school.

Mrs. F. B. wonders if I would talk about the child who doesn't want to go to school. "My sister and quite a few of my friends are having difficulty getting their children to want to go to kindergarten. My sister's girl attended summer school last year for two weeks and wouldn't go for more than two weeks this year."

Perhaps It's Teacher

You have told me too little upon which to base an opinion. Are these "only" children who are very much attached to the parent and not very well acquainted with other small children in the neighborhood? That could be one reason. Another might be the particular teacher who was in charge of the summer school.

The talk of older children can be both a stimulant and a discouragement to the little ones. Sometimes, for the sake of seeming to be heroic, they multiply the difficulties of school or the quarrelsomeness of playmates and actually frighten the child. The right child can make school seem to be a fascinating place and this is the companion your sister and her friends should cultivate for their children.

Place for Fun

You may have to talk down school if the child gets too excited at the thought of it, or talk it up if there is lack of interest. Everyone goes to school, you may reiterate, it is a place to have fun, to play with children, to learn new and exciting things and to grow up. Too much emphasis upon not making teacher cross, or getting high marks can terrify a child instead of inciting her ambition, since the whole system is so new to her.

Bring new children into the home. Have one or two of her classmates for lunch, then one or two others, until she feels when she goes to school that she is playing with familiar children, instead of meeting a lot of strangers.

Most mothers do not have to go to such lengths since the average child wants to do the things other children her own age are doing and going to school is one of these. But the mother of an "only" or a child who has had few playmates may have to make this effort to help the child adjust to groups of strangers, and making school a pleasant place.

Churches and Welfare Agencies Form Bridge of Help for Needy

The Washington Post

PLAYTIME at the Receiving Home for Children, 5200 Little Falls rd., is directed by volunteers representing the Washington Federation of Churches. Here Miss Gayle Harmon, of Foundry Methodist Church, lends a helping hand to some of the little guests at the home. Washingtonians support work such as this through the Community Chest

By Ruth Allison Hudnut

If you're a church member in Washington, and you're in a bad way, you're apt to go to your pastor for help. He's the fall guy for folks in distress. It is part of his job. In fact, churches are often the first to hear of people who are down and out.

And today they are in a particularly good position to get help for them. Why? Because Washingtonians support through the Community Chest this agency called the Department of Social Welfare of the Federation of Churches.

The Department of Social Welfare can be likened to a bridge between the local Protestant churches and their vast but often unchartered resources on the one hand and the private and public welfare agencies on the other. It helps the one make use of the other.

This is how it works. A husband comes to his pastor. He is a nice "forgotten man" type like you and me and the other fellow. He has always been able to make a living for his family of three children. But he has been lucky. He has had his health. Now he has suffered an accident. His small savings are expended. He has waited to ask for help until his last pennies are gone.

In making a plan for him, the pastor steps onto the Social Welfare Bridge to be guided to the best Red Feather agency for this man's particular problem. The welfare worker picks up a Red Feather pointer and points to the Family Service Association. And there the man finds skilled counseling, arrangements are made to care for his disability and money furnished to tide his family over the emergency.

The Social Welfare Bridge has saved him the experience of being tossed like a baseball from one agency to another before arriving at home plate.

There's a zeal, too, in church circles for helping others, and this is syphoned over the bridge into the agencies in the form of eager volunteers. They are especially active in children's institutions, bringing to these young lives friendship, understanding and fun in the shape of parties, dances, movies and lessons in arts and crafts. Workers on the Social Welfare Bridge cooperate closely with the Bureau of Rehabilitation, another Red Feather Chest agency, devoted to helping prisoners, parolees and their families.

So don't forget the Bridge of Social Welfare next time you need to benefit from one of the Red Feather services to which you have contributed through your Community Chest. There's a slogan this year, "Everybody benefits, everybody gives."

Be Sure Yours Is Good Home to Offer Child

All over America thousands of married couples are considering adopting a child—many more, in fact, than there are children available. What may they expect and what will the agencies with which they deal expect of them?

Many of the answers are given in The American Home magazine for October by Norma Trowbridge, herself an adoptive mother. Registered nurse and wartime bride of an Army Air Force pilot, she and her husband have settled in an Iowa home with an adopted son, after she had worked in delivery rooms and maternity wards of Army hospitals and defense plants in various parts of the country. Her article is called "Children Who Come to Stay."

Adoption, Mrs. Trowbridge warns, definitely is not for those couples whose lives are not adjusted and who feel a child may "pull them together." The basic need of every child, she insists, is a home with happy, well-adjusted parents.

What about heredity? Well, Mrs. Trowbridge points out, there is doubt among geneticists as to whether traits of character and personality are inherited. But no matter what inheritance a child may have, she argues, the most favorable environment will stimulate development of his best potentialities and help to overcome undesirable traits.

When should a child be told he has been adopted? Even before he is able to understand fully, urges Mrs. Trowbridge. Parents should explain they wanted a child so much they chose one for their very own. "To a child, being chosen is a wonderful thing," she adds.

Infants fit best, she says, into homes where the parents are under 35.

GETTING together for an informal chat at the D. C. Europe Needs Help, But—

Beware Red Scare, Goff Tells League

By Genevieve Reynolds

REPRESENTATIVE ABE McGregor Goff of Idaho yesterday indorsed the principles of the Marshall Plan and at the same time cautioned against permitting European countries to throw the Communist scare into the United States to obtain unlimited giving.

Speaking at the opening meeting of the D. C. League of Republican Women held at the Mayflower Hotel, he warned, "We must be careful that European countries are not deliberately fostering our fears that they will go Communist in order to scare us into unlimited giving.

"There may be some theatrical pretense in this appearance of being almost ready to throw their arms around Stalin's neck," he continued. "Nothing would please Russia more than for us to bring on economic collapse here by unwise spending. The planners in the Kremlin are smart enough to know that peaceful infiltration of a bankrupt nation is a lot cheaper and more effective avenue to Communist success than a war."

Referring to the President's voluntary self-rationing program, Representative Goff declared, "If we are to save 100 million bushels of wheat to save Europe, this means some real sacrifices and savings on the part of the American people. Hence Europe ought to be informed that we are making sacrifices and thus dispel the all-too-prevalent idea that we deserve no thanks because we have so much of everything, that we are like a surfeited gourmand giving away table scraps which he does not want and could not eat."

The speaker pointed out the necessity and urgency of an enlarged program to give the world the facts about the United States. "Not the least of this will be an aggressive and extremely carefully planned effort to really penetrate the Iron Curtain and give the ordinary Soviet citizen some genuine knowledge concerning this country."

"While we are spending the necessary sums for armament, we had better see that the world is truthfully informed about us, as a major preventive of Communist expansion in Western Europe and South America," asserted Representative Goff. "We must dispel the blasts of misinformation by which the selfish and ruthless leaders of the U. S. S. R. have fanned and fostered a hatred of this country. The seeds of war always are sown by falsehoods.

"There is no question that the peace and security of the world, and thus our own self-interest, are tied up in the right kind of aid to Europe," he emphasized. "The general principle of the Marshall approach is good—insisting on self-help if there is to be aid from us."

Representative Goff told the GOP women leaders that it is "up to our party to have a hard-bitten, realistic, business-like, practical outlook on our foreign relief."

Mrs. Joseph R. Farrington, league president, presented the speaker and announced a series of future events, among which will be a buffet supper on October 16 for the newly-formed night Political Study Group, of which Mrs. Edward A. St. John is leader.

Two outstanding social affairs will be held October 22, a benefit for the Virginia White Seppel Memorial Fund and a tea honoring new members, at which Mrs. Carroll Reece, wife of the Republican National Chairman, will be hostess.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Bride's Affluent Parents Are Icily Miffed Because She and Husband, Fiercely Proud, Won't Accept Offers of Financial Backing

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband Bob and I have been happily married for eight months. We have a very decent (rented) place to live, which we found and fixed up by our own toil and sweat.

We've bought furniture for living room, bedroom, kitchen and an office (at home) for my husband; also a new stove, refrigerator and washing machine. Now we are buying a new car which Bob needs for his business; and we don't owe a cent, except for the car.

We are fiercely proud that we have done this all ourselves; but the problem is my parents. I am an only child, I regret to say; and currently my parents aren't speaking to Bob and me because they say we are ungrateful about the things they wanted to do for us.

What they call our "ingratitude" stems from our desire to do things for ourselves. We have tried to explain this, to no avail.

Married Chums Live in Style

MY MOTHER points to other couples with whom we chum, and almost without exception the husbands are working for father or father-in-law at a good salary, living in a fine house owned by father or father-in-law, with a car given to them, with elegant furniture either borrowed or unpaid for,—and making purchase-payments to "dad" for the house.

Mother argues that if Bob "really" loved me, he would provide these things for me—things I've "been used to," she says—by borrowing, accepting or the like. She means a home of our own, a new car, etc., which normally take years to accumulate.

Bob and I have been particularly cautious now, because when the false prosperity breaks we don't want to be caught with extravagant commitments. Also we hope to have a child by then, and a nest-egg saved; and maybe three more dogs. We already have two.

Tell me: Are we wrong in being so proud and independent? Should we accept help now—as times to come might not be so flush—and live in style like our friends, paying our parents back as we can? It might make family relations better; and we're certainly not held in any higher esteem because of our self-reliant policy. Not one soul has patted us on the back for it. Please advise. J. B.

Parents' Spirit Isn't Generous

DEAR J. B.: If the price of peace with your parents is letting yourselves be coddled like a pair of Pekinese pups, primarily so Mother can wear blinders to reality and go on kidding herself that her benefactions are indispensably important to her "only child's" welfare, I say the price is too great to pay.

Your parents are bullies if they're trying to freeze you into accepting handouts that would put Bob and you in a more or less "strapped" position in social relation to them. Such a policy on their part, such pressure so applied, would mean that your defiant independence is absolutely justified.

Possibly the self-reliant course was struck by Bob, with you following suit in wifely fealty. If such is the case, you're both right; and though you may lack "soft living" today, you're years ahead of your parasitical chums on the score of survival-aptitude or bona fide character.

Parasites' Faces Tell Sorry Tale

STUDY the faces of those young-marrieds who are enjoying the so-called good things of life in parasite-protege relationship to a "successful" dad and what do you see? Empty faces, childish faces, cynic faces—anything but strong, definite, vital, memorable faces. The eye may be the window of the soul, but the face is an approximate portrait of character any time after 23.

Naturally you'll get no pat on the back from such as these, for doing what they haven't the vigorous selfhood to do. Mockery or feigned indifference is their defense against the better example.

Like your mother, they cling to "the old order" for childish self-indulgent reasons. She is fixed on using your father's means and her influence with him to box up you and Bob in endless obligation to their largesse,—as a way of preventing, if possible, final severance of "the silver cord."

In refusing to speak, she's stooping low in attempt to conquer. And my advice is: don't weaken. On the other hand, don't be "fiercely proud" and chip-on-shoulder about your strictly self-help program. Rather be mild in manner but immovable in purpose in sticking to it. M. H.

To Get Daylight

To get the same amount of light from a daylight bulb as from an ordinary bulb, a higher wattage should be used. If a 100-watt ordinary bulb is used over the washing or ironing board, a 150-watt daylight bulb would be needed to furnish the same quantity of light.

Beta Sigma Phi Chapters Hold Conclave Here

A discussion Saturday evening by Jennings Randolph on "Can We Avoid World War III?" high-lighted the two-day convention Saturday and Sunday of the Middle Eastern area chapters of Beta Sigma Phi sorority.

Mr. Randolph, former Representative from West Virginia and currently assistant to the president of Capital Airlines, spoke at the dinner in Wardman Park Hotel. Miss Agnes Nemanich, general chairman, presided.

Mrs. Virginia Ruggiero, president of New York City Beta Sigma Phi Council, played several piano selections. Preceding the dinner a cocktail party was given in the Burgundy Room of the hotel.

Sunday's sessions opened with round table discussions, presided over by Miss Alice Shafer, president of the D. C. City Council. Assisting her were Mrs. Norman Smith, Miss Leah Moody, Miss Jean Roudebush, Miss Helen Rose, Miss Margaret Miller, Miss Minnetha Coe, Miss Aline Crossfield and Mrs. Alma M. Youse.

Mrs. Harold H. Burton, sponsor of the D. C. Council and wife of the Supreme Court Associate Justice, and Miss Mary Bell Baker of the sorority's international field staff, were special guests at the luncheon that followed.

At the afternoon meeting, Miss Ruby Arrowsmith, former president of the D. C. Council and now president of Xi Beta Exemplar Chapter, reported on her recent visit with her Beta Sigma Phi group in England and Scotland.

Representatives from Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey, Connecticut, New York, Massachusetts and West Virginia attended the conference.

Cripple Heads Volunteer Help For Shut-ins

From her wheelchair in St. Louis, Miss Marjorie Lang directs the work of 640 people who bring free movies to shut-ins. They are members of the Volunteer Films Association, which she founded eight years ago. Her story is told in the October issue of Coronet magazine.

The association came into being after Miss Lang's career as a medical student was cut short when she was stricken with multiple sclerosis, for which there is no cure. In February, 1939, a friend showed Miss Lang some movies of a recent trip to Mexico. As she watched the pictures she said suddenly: "I wish every person in a wheelchair could see these films."

With an intuitive flash, the organization that has brought new interest to the lives of shut-ins was formed. The group obtains films, mostly free from industrial concerns, film libraries of the State and Federal governments, universities and schools. Before the films are shown the previewing committee selects proper films for each patient with the cooperation of the doctor.

The Maid's Room

Keep a careful check-up on the maid's room and see that it is as systematically cleaned as the rest of the house. Many servants are apt to let down a little when it comes to their own room, and when they leave, their rooms are found to be in very bad condition. Allow the maid time for this weekly cleaning. It will pay.

Iraq Would Have U. S. Stop Jewish Help to Palestine

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 6 (HTNS).—Iraq called upon the United States today to stop American citizens from sending "money, arms and ships to Palestine to disturb peace through terrorism and illegal immigration."

It is inconsistent, Iraq charged, to find the United States fighting Communist "outside pressure" that creates "armed minorities" in Greece when the "outside pressure" of American money helps the "armed minorities" of Jewish terrorists in the Holy Land.

"The same principle of noninterference which applied to Greece should be applied to Palestine," it was asserted by Dr. Fadhil Jamali, Iraqi Foreign Minister, before the Palestine Committee of the United Nations General Assembly.

Jamali charged that "schools" are operated in the United States "to instruct Zionists in modern warfare and terrorist activities." He demanded they be closed.

Jamali also resounded the Arab demand for an immediately independent Palestine under its 2-to-1 Arab majority.

Panama came out for the Palestine partition plan now before the U. N. Uruguay also lined up in support of partition and announced the imminent introduction of a resolution calling for immediate immigration to Palestine of 30,000 European Jews, including orphaned children and pregnant women.

GM GENERAL MOTORS HYDRA-MATIC DRIVE *Optional at extra cost

These words from Oldsmobile's new "radio song" have never been so aptly illustrated as in a typical ride to a football game. There's often a long distance to be covered. There's always traffic to contend with. Yet, if you're the driver of an Oldsmobile with Hydra-Matic Drive, you can . . . "Just forget the clutch and gear. All you do is sit and steer!" That's true in football traffic, or any other traffic. True on the highway, too. Hydra-Matic Drive takes care of all gear shifting—automatically—through four forward speeds. And the clutch pedal is eliminated completely!

What makes it even more impressive . . . this will be the ninth football season in which Hydra-Matic Drive has enabled Oldsmobile-owning fans to go to the games the easy way. GM Hydra-Matic Drive is a fully perfected, fully proved feature—and there's still nothing else on the market to compare with it.

Oldsmobile introduced Hydra-Matic Drive 8 years ago. Today, Oldsmobile is still the lowest-priced car to offer* this effort-saving feature. Add to this Oldsmobile's traditional smartness and style-leadership—plus Oldsmobile's all-round, fine-car quality—and you'll see why so many football fans are Oldsmobile fans as well. You'll agree with them that . . .

The communicable disease chart of the Department of Health, prepared in Cooperation With the Board of Education and Congress of Parents and Teachers, follows:

DISEASE	EARLY SYMPTOMS	INCUBATION PERIOD	SCHOOL EXCLUSIONS		READMISSION REQUIREMENTS		MODES OF TRANSMISSION
			PATIENT	CONTACTS	PATIENT	CONTACTS
CHICKENPOX	General feeling of illness, slight temperature, rash, scabs in 3-4 days.	2-3 weeks.	Minimum of 10 days or until all scabs removed.	No exclusion.	On recovery at end of exclusion period without Health Department certificate.	Not excluded.	Spread from person to person through secretions of nose and mouth—chiefly by hand-to-mouth transmission.
COLDS (Grippe, Influenza)	General feeling of illness, dryness of nose and throat or watery secretions.	Irregular.	Until free from symptoms. Subject to examination by school physician.	No exclusion.	On recovery without Health Department certificate.	Not excluded.	Spread by contaminated hand-to-mouth transmission of infection and by carelessly washed dishes. These and the other diseases below which affect the respiratory tract may be spread by droplet infection.
DIPHTHERIA	General feeling of illness, sore throat, fever.	Usually 2-5 days. Maximum 7 days.	Until released by Health Department after two negative cultures.	Until negative culture by Health Department after termination of isolation, or removal from placarded premises.	On recovery only with Health Department certificate.	On Health Department certificate.	The infecting organism is in the throat and in the saliva. It gets on the hands and dishes and spreads to others. Spread is prevented by clean hands and sterilized dishes.
GERMAN MEASLES	Few or no constitutional symptoms—if present—like measles.	14-21 days.	7 days.	No exclusion.	On recovery at end of exclusion period without Health Department certificate.	Not excluded.	See Measles.
IMPETIGO	Superficial sores with scabs or crusts.	Variable.	Until well. Subject to examination by physician.	No exclusion.	On recovery without Health Department certificate.	Not excluded.	Personal hygiene and cleanliness prevent spread.
MEASLES	Fever, watery eyes, cough, discharging nose, eruption in mouth, rash.	8-10 days to appearance of fever. 12-14 days to appearance of rash.	7 days.	Nonimmunes 14 days. Immunes see readmission requirements. Teachers not excluded if not in attendance on patients.	On recovery at end of exclusion period without Health Department certificate.	Nonimmunes at end of exclusion period without Health Department certificate. Immunes at once on written certificate from parent.	Highly contagious in early stage. Spread by contact through hand-to-mouth transmission. Practice hand cleanliness.
MENINGITIS (Epidemic Cerebro-Spinal)	Fever, headache, nausea, vomiting, stiff neck and back.	Irregular.	14 days.	No exclusion.	On recovery only with Health Department certificate.	Not excluded.	The organism is in the nose and throat. Personal cleanliness, sanitary surroundings and avoidance of crowding prevent spread.
MUMPS	Fever, swelling and tenderness of salivary glands.	12-26 days.	Minimum of 7 days until swelling has disappeared.	No exclusion.	On recovery at end of exclusion period without Health Department certificate.	Not excluded.	Spread by direct contact from sick to well through soiled hands.
PEDICULOSIS	Itching of scalp, presence of parasites and nits in hair.	Variable.	Until free from infestation. Subject to examination by school physician or nurse.	No exclusion.	On recovery without Health Department certificate.	Not excluded.	Spreads by contact. Thorough inspection and simultaneous delousing of patient and all home contacts necessary for prevention and eradication.
POMOMYELITIS	Fever, headache, vomiting irritability, stiffness of neck and spine.	Irregular. About 7 to 21 or more days.	Isolation 14 days.	No exclusion.	On recovery without Health Department certificate.	Not excluded.	Spread through carriers by direct and indirect contact.
RINGWORM	Ring shaped skin lesions and scaling. In scalp loss of hair in spots.	Variable.	Until recovery. Subject to examination by school physician.	No exclusion.	On certificate of recovery or with conditional certificate by Health Department or attending physician.	Not excluded.	Spread through personal contact and by soiled articles including unsterilized barbers' tools; Prevented by personal cleanliness and sanitation, including use of stocking cap sterilized daily by boiling.
SCABIES	Itching, scratch marks, skin irritations, usually between fingers and in folds of skin and elsewhere.	Variable.	Until recovery. Subject to examination by school physician.	No exclusion.	On recovery without Health Department certificate.	Not excluded.	Spread by contact with patient or infested articles. Day to day cleanliness prevents.
SCARLET FEVER	Nausea, vomiting, fever, sore throat, rash.	2-7 days.	14 days or until recovery.	Nonimmunes 7 days after date of last exposure. Immunes see readmission requirements. Teachers not excluded if not in attendance on patients.	On recovery only with Health Department certificate.	Only on Health Department certificate. Nonimmunes at end of exclusion period. Immunes at once, but parents must furnish Health Department with written statement of immunity	The infecting organism is in the throat and in the saliva. It gets on the hands and dishes and spreads to others. Spread is prevented by clean hands and sterilized dishes.
WHOOPING COUGH	Slight fever, cough which becomes spasmodic and is followed by inspiratory whoop.	7-16 days.	Minimum of 3 weeks after onset of typical paroxysms.	No exclusion.	On recovery at end of exclusion period without Health Department certificate.	Not excluded.	Early catarrhal stage very communicable. Spread by direct and indirect contact.

THE PERIOD OF EXCLUSION: For all communicable diseases not designated on this chart shall be in accordance with the instructions issued by the school physician or the Health Department in each case.
VACCINATION AGAINST SMALLPOX: Is compulsory for school attendance by an Act of Congress. After several unsuccessful attempts at vaccinations, the Health Department on request of the parent will exempt pupils from further vaccination after performing a vaccination to determine the presence of immunity.
DIPHTHERIA AND WHOOPING COUGH PREVENTION: Children should be immunized against diphtheria and whooping cough between six and twelve months of age, and preferably again at 6 years of age. If they have not already received the preventive treatment, this should be done before entering school for the first time.
PARENTS' RESPONSIBILITY: Parents should not send their children to school with fever, cough, sore throat, flushed face, discharging nose or other symptoms of illness. These symptoms may be the beginning of serious infectious such as scarlet fever or diphtheria. Parents should consult their family physician before returning such children to school.
PENALTY FOR VIOLATION: Violation of the communicable disease rules and regulations of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia is punishable, on conviction thereof, by a fine not exceeding $300 or by imprisonment not exceeding 90 days or both

Health Dept. Revises Child Disease Rules

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

Changes in periods of isolation for children with communicable diseases are to become effective this year in District public, parochial and private schools.

The changes, which grew out of revisions in the District communicable disease laws and regulations, were made by the Health Department last April and are incorporated in a new chart which will be distributed to schools as soon as it can be printed.

The chart lists 14 principal communicable diseases of children and for the first time includes poliomyelitis. Tonsilitis is omitted, because the Health Department no longer considers it important.

Shown on the chart are descriptions of early symptoms, incubation periods, length of time in which a child and his contacts are excluded from a school, requirements for readmission, and ways diseases are transmitted.

Measles Period Cut

Under the revised schedule, the period that a measles victim is excluded from school has been reduced from 10 to 7 days. Contacts, which the Health Department describes as brothers or sisters, or other children living with the victime, formerly were excluded from school for 14 days.

Only children who have not previously had the disease are excluded now. Children immune from measles may return to school at once if they have a letter signed by a parent attesting their immunity.

The same regulation applies to contacts of scarlet fever patients, with the exclusion period listed as seven days for nonimmune contacts.

Readmission requirements for children infected with ringworm have been stiffened by the Health Department. Formerly a child was allowed to return to school without a certificate. Now he must have a statement from a physician or from the Health Department certifying to his recovery.

Whooping Cough Rule

For the first time, children must be immunized against whooping cough. An immunization program is being carried on in the schools by the Health Department.

Mumps patients who have been excluded from school a minimum of 10 days, or until swelling disappears, will be permitted to return to school after seven days if their faces are normal.

A change also has been made in meningitis rules. Brothers and sisters of persons so affected are not excluded from school under new regulations. Previously they were barred for seven days.

The chart containing communicable disease information is believed to be in keeping with current medical practice. Diseases listed in addition to poliomyelitis are chicken pox, colds, diphtheria, German measles, impetigo, measles, meningitis, mumps, pediculosis, ringworm, scabies, scarlet fever and whooping cough. The chart lists heavier penalties for violating provisions of the communicable disease law.

Conviction now carries a fine not exceeding $300 or imprisonment not over 90 days, or both. Under previous regulations, the fine was $100 and imprisonment term was 30 days, or both.

Boston Watches 100,000 March in Holy Name Parade

Boston, Oct. 5 (INS).—An estimated 3,500,000 persons lined Boston streets today to witness the largest demonstration of religious faith ever held here.

More than 100,000 Catholic men, all members of the Holy Name Society, staged a day-long parade accompanied by 100 bands.

The parade, concluding the fourth national convention of the Holy Name Society, was led by Archbishop Richard J. Cushing, clad in his purple robes. Among the marchers were delegates from 360 parishes in the Boston archdiocese and delegates from all parts of the United States and Canada.

1500 Attend Legion Post's Horse Show

The first horse show sponsored by Cheverly, Md., Post 108 of the American Legion was held yesterday at Lewisdale, at Riggs and Ager rds., Chillum, Md.

Nearly 1500 spectators saw Col. William Walsh's horse, Be Fit, take the hunter championship in a close race with U. S. Randle's Randles Satin, from Warrenton, Va.

Be Fit, a favorite in many local horse shows recently, was shown for the last time in this area. His owner, Colonel Walsh, of 1212 Geranium st. nw., who has served for 15 years in the U. S. Army Chaplain Service, will retire in October. Chaplain Walsh is going to his new parish in Minnesota.

Woman's Death in Jail Due to Natural Causes

A certificate of death from natural causes was issued yesterday in the death of Emma Wilson, 59, 1536 Levy st. ne., who was found unconscious about 6 a. m. yesterday morning on her cot in the District Jail.

Mrs. Wilson had been admitted to the District Jail on October 2, to serve 60-day sentence on charge of inebriation. Donald Clemmer, head of the department of correction, said that she had served sentences for drunknness numerous times, and that she had been in good health Saturday night.

Split-Income Tax Measure Forecast in '48

By The Associated Press

Senator McClellan (D., Ark.) predicted yesterday that Congress would approve a tax revision bill early in the next session including his "community property amendment."

The Arkansas Democrat said that Republican leaders had promised him their support for favorable action on this provision. It would allow husbands and wives to split income for tax purposes. This results in considerable savings in taxes upon medium and upper-bracket incomes for married couples.

"I am going to urge Republican leaders to bring out a tax revision bill ahead of any tax reduction measure," McClellan said. "There is very little controversy about the revisions and we could pass that in a hurry."

McClellan made a stiff Senate floor battle to have the community property amendment written into the two tax bills pushed through the first session of the present Congress, but lost. Several Senate Republicans at that time pledged support later.

McClellan said there is strong Senate support for two other tax changes:

1. Elimination of so-called "double taxation" upon the dividends of corporations.

2. Increase of the present $500 personal exemption to $600.

Handbag Mystery Uncovered by Treasury

By The Associated Press

The Treasury, celebrated in Washington for its caution on most subjects, crawled out on a limb last night by undertaking in a tax analysis to explain the mystery (to males) of women's handbags.

"The demand for women's handbags," it pronounced somberly, "is in part necessitous because of its (sic) function as a container for numerous and assorted articles of personal use.

"However, it has tended to become a part of the costume, and represents a substantial element of adornment somewhat similar to costume jewelry."

High Taxes Seen Cutting Sales of Luxury Items

By The Associated Press

The Treasury said last night that the present "relatively high" Federal taxes on retail sales of furs, jewelry and luggage will, in time, hurt sales of those articles and the profits of their makers.

But it said it does not expect sales of perfumes, cosmetics and other toilet preparations to be troubled, or profits of the industry hurt, by the Federal retail tax on those items. As with furs, jewelry and luggage, the tax on them is 20 per cent of the retail price.

The comments were contained in a study prepared for congressional committees studying proposals for postwar tax revision. The Treasury carefully avoided comment on whether the taxes should be retained, reduced or eliminated.

Nine Killed on Border

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 5 (U.P.).—Bulgarian frontier guards announced today that nine men were killed attempting to cross the border illegally into Turkey on October 3.

Hearts, Not Atom, Held the Real Peril

"There is no danger in atomic fission, but the peril is in the hearts of the men that use it," the Rev. Charles H. Frick, pastor of the Mount Rainier Christian Church, 33rd st. and Bunker Hill rd., told his congregation last night.

The audience also saw two films, "One World or None," and "The Way of Peace," put out by the Wittenberg Press of the Lutheran Church. The meeting was a preview of the program of Prince Georges County Atomic Energy Week, October 12-18.

Chilean Coal Mines Idle Despite Work Edict

Santiago, Chile, Oct. 5 (AP).—Most of Chile's coal mines were idle today, with about 20,000 workers on strike despite a government order that work be resumed under a new and higher wage scale.

The government, which temporarily took over the mines, gave the workers all day in which to decide whether they would accept the government-decreed increase. Union leaders said the men would consider the proposals.

Neighbor Confesses To Slaying Woman

Billerica, Mass., Oct. 5 (AP).—State Police Lieut. James Conntiff said that a neighbor of pretty Mrs. Roberta Coy Dunn, 23, of Billerica, had confessed to her slaying last Wednesday.

Coniff said Walter H. Caselden, 48, Billerica, had been charged with murder of the young woman, whose strangled and ravished body was found by her husband Frank, and her brother, Howard Coy, in the cellar of an unoccupied overnight cabin owned by Caselden.

Child Hurt in Fall

Two-year-old Terri Roche, daughter of Army First Lieut. and Mrs. John Roche, 336 S. Carolina ave. se., suffered a possible skull fracture yesterday when she fell while alone in a room at their home. The father said he was in an adjoining room when he heard her fall. Terri was treated at Providence Hospital.

WHAT'S THE SCOOP, TWO-WAY? THINKING HOW FAR IT IS TO MIAMI AND THAT MARINE CORPS REUNION?
YEAH— BUT MOSTLY I'M THINKING OF THAT PIT FILLED WITH BROKEN AIRPLANES!
OUR AIRCRAFT IS ON THE EDGE OF THE GULLY, BUT IT IS GUARDED BY A MOB OF HERR SPLITZ'S NATIVES!
MAYBE WE COULD SALVAGE ENOUGH STUFF FROM THE WRECKS TO BUILD A RADIO TRANSMITTER AND PUT OUT A DISTRESS SIGNAL...
BIG JOB, TWO-WAY!
MAYBE—BUT IF OUR AIRCRAFT IS FLYABLE, WHAT'S TO PREVENT THAT SPLITZ GUY FROM FORCING STEVE CANYON OR BRECK TO HAUL HIM AND HIS DIAMONDS OUT OF HERE—THEN SHOOTING THE PILOT AND BAILING OUT OVER SOME POPULATED SECTION?

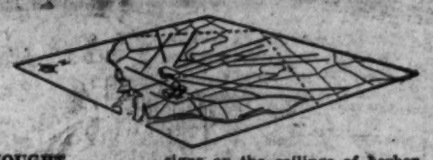
THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Here's a Chance to Serve as Traffic Judge



Here's a chance to serve as judge in a complicated traffic case.

Mrs. Edward W. Libby drove from Michigan to Washington to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund C. Wood of 4814 MacArthur blvd. nw.

Then she decided to fly down to Norfolk, to see her brother. She drove out to National Airport, and arrived there just before the departure time of her plane.

So she left her car out front, hopped out, dashed to the Capital Airlines ticket counter, and tossed the keys to the car to the first person she saw behind the counter, William Sietz of 3700 Davenport st. nw.

Mrs. Libby explained that she was returning from Norfolk the next day, and Bill promised to park her car for her.

But when he went out front to drive it away, an airport policeman presented him with a ticket for illegal parking.

Bill tried to explain that it wasn't his car, but the cop handed him the ticket anyhow. So Bill crumpled it up and threw it aside, whereupon he was escorted to the police station.

The collateral for the parking offense was $3, and Bill was completely devoid of funds. So colleague Leslie Ehringer of 12 W. Mount Ida ave., Alexandria, Va., had to hustle over with the $3 before Bill could get sprung.

The police say they're going to keep Ehringer's $3 until Mrs. Libby pays for her ticket.

Mrs. Libby says she doesn't intend to pay for any ticket because the airline promised her over the phone that one of their people would park her car if necessary. Besides, the car was only there for a few moments.

Sietz still mutters grimly, "But it wasn't my car," and Ehringer wonders how he ever came to be involved in the deal.

If you were the judge, what would you do?

RECORD DRIVE

Dave Marx of 742 Princeton pl. nw., president of the local chapter of Junior B'nai B'rith, writes:

"We're going to spend the next two months collecting phonograph records for the fellows in such service hospitals as Walter Reed, Bethesda, and Forest Glen.

"Can you lend a hand to a worthy cause by printing our phone numbers? Anybody with records to donate can have them picked up by calling either Columbia 8499 or Columbia 9760."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Eight-week-old male kitten. Also 3-year-old female cat, good rat catcher." (ADams 6464).

"Two-month-old kitten, also 6-month-old." (EMerson 9028.)

VAGRANT THOUGHT

"Is it true that many ground floor elevator buttons are dummies, and serve no purpose except to make impatient people think they're getting quicker service? (Neal L. Boykin, 820 Kentucky ave. se.).

BARGAIN

One of our afternoon contemporaries has at least two alert readers.

Mary Rogers Krausman of 1915 Minnesota ave. se. and E. L. Besley both clip and forward an advertisement which offers:

"Look: $19 Lightweight Wool Coats—$38."

CEILING ZERO

W. C. Fahey of 3408 Macomb st. nw. agrees that advertising signs on the ceilings of barbershops are old stuff.

A shop in Del Rio (Texas) had such signs 30 years ago.

WARNING

Mrs. P. S. Bond of 2205 California st. nw. writes:

"Some one has been despicable enough to put out poison for cats and dogs in the vicinity of Phelps pl. and California st. nw.

"One gentle, harmless, and much beloved cat (not mine) has already been poisoned.

"Will you please publish this so that all owners of animals around here will be properly warned to take precautions against the murder of their pets?"

FULLY AUTOMATIC

A medical genius named Hendricks
Went mad redesigning a Bendix.
He was nabbed, he was jailed;
But his gadget prevailed;
It took out the buyer's appendix.

Grin and Bear It

"—And I say, operate! I feel the patient is entitled to the benefit of our doubt!"

Leonard Lyons

Here's a Cop Who Loves His Work

NEW YORK.—Senator Taft has been invited to address a dinner given by a bankers' club in Dubuque, Iowa. Some of the local labor leaders issued a warning that they will picket Senator Taft there . . . The orchestra which was engaged to play the dinner music wrote to James Petrillo, and asked the head of the musicians' union if they should recognize the picket line and refuse to enter the meeting room . . . Petrillo ruled that the picketing of Senator Taft is merely a personal expression and not a legitimate picket—and that the musicians, pursuant to their contract to supply the music, may pass the picket line.

THEATER DEPT.: Near Piccadilly there is a police constable who directs traffic while a crowd of onlookers applauds his every gesture. He's Jack Hulburd, the former film and music hall favorite. His wife, Cicely Courtneidge, has just opened on Broadway in "Under the Counter," the show which had a two-year run in London . . . Hulburd joined the emergency police force during the war. When the war ended Val Parnell, the West End manager, wanted Hulburd to return to the stage. "No, thank you. I like being a cop better," said Hulburd. "It gives me a chance to see shows. And I do love the theater, from the front."

TRAVEL NOTES: James Stewart, the screen star, was in Chicago last week with Robert Riskin, who produced the new Stewart picture, "The Magic Town." A man approached them in a restaurant there, and asked Stewart for his autograph. The star agreed, and the man said: "Would you please autograph the menu to my children. Their names are Michael, Dennis, Terence and Theresa." . . . Stewart wrote the inscriptions, then asked the man: "How old are they?" . . . "Michael is 6, Dennis is 4, Terence is 2," said the man, and Theresa isn't born yet."

BOOK DEPT.: Nunnally Johnson visited the library at Eton last week and saw the noted collection of a thousand volumes, each bearing the autograph of the author. One of the books was a specially bound copy of Adolf Hitler's "Mein Kampf." Johnson opened the book to the first page, looking for the autograph. He found a typewritten slip, pasted onto the page, which read: "The autograph of the author is not available at the present time."

NEWS DEPT.: The Yankee ball players voted half shares to Mel Queen and Al Lyons, who were with the Yanks earlier this season and now are in the National League. They're awaiting Happy Chandler's ruling on whether shares may be given to players in another league. . . . Nelson Rockefeller will take over the LaGuardia offices at Rockefeller Center. . . . Mrs. Warren Wright has received Jockey Club approval on the name, Flying Disc, for a filly.

FOOD DEPT.: Sir Cedrick Hardwicke supped with Victor Saville, the director, at the Stork club the other night. Hardwicke ordered a dish of chicken chow mein. After 10 minutes and countless forkfuls, Hordwicke sighed: "Chinese food puzzles me. It seems to me that the more I eat the more there seems to be remaining on the plate."

When Did U. S.-Soviet Troubles Really Begin?

Did our difficulties with Russia start after President Roosevelt's death—or before? James F. Byrnes, Roosevelt's "assistant president," watched the two leaders last time they met, at Yalta . . . took careful notes of their conversations. He tells what he saw and heard in his inside story, "Speaking Frankly."

Don't miss this dramatic, revealing series of articles, starting Wednesday, October 15, in The Washington Post.
